3 BILLS PUT UP TO END SCHOOL DEBT PROBLEM

$40,000,000 Bond Sale to U. S. Sought.

Three legislative proposals which the Chicago school board believes hold the key to a solution of the city's educational difficulties were put forward yesterday. School legislation promises to be one of the most important subjects before the general assembly when it convenes on Tuesday in a third special session and the Chicago plan was expected to receive much consideration.

The principal bill in the program embodies Mayor Kelly's plan for the sale to the federal government of the $40,000,000 bond issue not yet sold. This plan would permit the payment of $25,000,000 in back salaries to teachers and other employés of the school system.

As outlined by attorneys, this bill would give the board the right to pledge property it owns but does not use for educational purposes to the government as additional security for the bonds. There are about 200 pieces of such property owned by the board with a combined estimated value of $30,000,000. Ten of the properties are in the loop.

Limitation on Pledging

At present the state law gives the board the right to sell or lease these properties, but not to pledge them for loans. The bill now prepared would allow the board to pledge them only to the federal government.

The other bills relate to clearing up back obligations and the wiping out of the board's $17,000,000 deficit in its education fund. Bill No. 2 would permit the transfer of 20 cents from the building fund tax rate to the educational or operating fund rate.

The building fund rate is now limited to 58 cents and the education fund to $1.65, but the levy for the building fund was only ten cents for 1932 and 1933, due to the intervention of the committee on public expenditures, which took the board's affairs in hand and recommended the low rate. The effect of the transfer, therefore, is to increase the net school tax revenue. The plan has the committee's support, however, and this, it was expected, will aid it at Springfield.

Bill for Bond Issue.

The third bill would allow the board to issue 4½ per cent refunding bonds and exchange them for tax warrants and accrued interest outstanding on 1928 and 1929 warrants issued by a former board. The former board overissued its warrants and about $19,000,000 of them are outstanding. In the opinion of Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the city council finance committee, no more than $9,000,000 of this amount can be expected from delinquent tax collections. Thus, the board wishes to be in a position to issue about $10,000,000 of the refunding bonds if the need arises.

Of secondary interest in the governor's call for a special session was the provision allowing bills for the consolidation of local governments. What Chicago legislation would be introduced was not certain yesterday, but it became known that a committee of the Chicago recovery administration was considering several proposals. One would consolidate the sanitary district board with the county board and place the operation of the canal district under the consolidated board.

Prof. A. R. Hatton of Northwestern university, chairman of the committee, stressed that the committee has only talked of the proposal. The group is expected to meet later in the week, but it was considered doubtful that if it does approve the consolidation a bill could be prepared for the coming session.

The Canal District Program.

The sanitary district program, it was announced yesterday, will consist of four bills, all relating to the $42,000,000 grant of the federal government to allow the construction of sewage treatment works in compliance with the decision of the United States Supreme court.

The sanitary district bills were summarized as follows:

1. Authority would be granted to the district to establish a scale of charges for the treatment of factory and packers' waste and the pledging of receipts to the government as part security for the loan.

2. Authority would be granted to the district to pledge to the government judgments rendered in the district's favor for the sale of electricity.

3. The district would be authorized to use for construction purposes any

INSULL'S 'BLACK DAY' PICTURED IN COURT DRAMA

Judge Opens Inquiry on Receivership.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.

Samuel Insull Sr., fugitive financier, who made and lost millions for himself and others, was denounced as "a cowardly crook" and extoled as "superbly courageous" in a dramatic federal court hearing yesterday.

Praise and epithets were heaped on the absent Insull's head at the opening of a battle over the integrity of the receivership of his Middle West Utilities company before Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley. Insull's personal integrity loomed immediately as the greater issue.

Ettelson Attacks Insull.

It was Samuel A. Ettelson, former corporation counsel and vociferous critic of the multiple Insull receiverships, who assailed the fugitive as "the biggest thief of modern times, building his fortune on other people's money, running his companies into the ground and hiding now in Greece, afraid to face the music."

It was Arthur Andersen, head of the accounting concern employed to audit the Middle West books, who insisted quietly but firmly that, criminal indictments notwithstanding, Samuel Insull "possessed the keenest intellect I ever knew and retained unlimited courage, business judgment and integrity." All this, the witness insisted, even in the wreck of the companies Insull had created.

Tells of "Black Friday."

As the first witness called in the Middle West inquiry, which was started by Judge Lindley after Mr. Ettelson charged the receivership amounted to practicing fraud on the court, Mr. Andersen gave a new picture of Insull's distress on that "Black Friday," April 8, 1932, when the bankers decreed the necessity of receivership.

He pictured the erstwhile master of millions, accustomed to have bankers at his beck and call, going hat in hand to a New York conference, his spirit bowed by the weight of $27,000,000 of his companies' debts, humbly seeking an extension of credit, which the bankers had to refuse.

"'I wish my time on earth had already come,'" Mr. Andersen quoted Insull as saying when the bankers denied his plea. Then the witness added: "Mr. Insull seemed to be in a state of collapse. I felt terribly sorry for him."

New York Bankers Fearful.

The disaster which overtook the Insull empire that April day had been threatening for several months, Mr. Andersen explained, and the apprehensive New York bankers had established the Andersen accounting company as a kind of super-control in the Insull picture, with power to veto vouchers in all the companies.

This testimony was of vital import to Mr. Ettelson, who maintains it was the bankers, not the stockholder-owners or the unsecured debenture holders, who got consideration when the receivership was instituted.

Mr. Andersen led up to the "Black Friday," when Insull met the New York bankers in the office of their spokesman, Owen D. Young. Mr. Young's General Electric company had advanced a $500,000 loan to Middle West, Mr. Andersen explained.

Andersen Gives Report.

"There was a general feeling that the situation was utterly hopeless," the witness said in a quiet voice. "I presented my report on the condition of the companies and Mr. Insull insisted I must be wrong. Mr. Young said the bankers had confidence in my report.

"Then the bankers went into Mr. Young's private office, leaving Mr. Insull out there alone."

The witness corrected this last statement an instant later. He himself and Harry L. Stuart [head of Halsey, Stuart & Co., investment house] stood with Insull in a corner while the bankers privately discussed Insull's fate, he recalled.

"Well, what was said there?" Mr. Andersen was asked.

Insull in Reminiscence.

"O, Mr. Insull reminisced on his past—talked most entertainingly. He said he had always been a daring operator, but expressed his firm confidence in the soundness and the future of his company. He spoke of a time many years ago when he ordered the first big steam turbine from General Electric and went to a generating station to see it go, even though the engineers had warned him it might fly to pieces."

The examining attorney, Henry L.

HUNDREDS OF RIOTERS SHOT DOWN BY TROOPS

TRIBUNE MAN IN MIDST OF MELEE DODGES BULLETS

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 6.—This is a duck by duck account of the fighting which took place in the Place de la Concorde this evening, and of the things which I ducked—stones, fists, charging horses and bullets.

I was in the crowd and as far as the forces of the law are concerned, I was just another target. Consequently, my impression is a confused one of yells and screams, of leaping flames from blazing barricades and of fallen bodies, glimpsed for a second over my shoulder as I ran for my life with the stampeding crowd.

It was 6:30 o'clock when I tore myself away from the most lurid session in the chamber of deputies I have ever attended to see what was going on in the streets.

Mob Burns Autobus.

Crossing the bridge over the Seine in front of the chamber of deputies, with the roar of the mob ringing in my ears, I walked through the police lines on guard at the bridgehead and found myself almost instantly swallowed up by the milling crowd which surged out of the Champs Elysees and almost filled the enormous Place.

In front of the Hotel Crillon and the American embassy the mob was massed heavily—it was no use trying to count how many thousands. They had stopped an autobus, forced the passengers to descend and set fire to it after pouring gasoline on the tires.

Suddenly a shrill cry of alarm went up—the Gardes Republicanes, brass cuirasses gleaming in the lamplight, horse hairs streaming from helmets, came sweeping across the Place from the bridgehead, horses' hoofs clattering on the pavement.

Guards Charge Into Crowd.

Caught in a surge of the crowd, I tried to stand still, figuring the guards would charge the howling savages who were dancing around the blazing bus.

They did, scattering the crowd in all directions. The rioters entrenched themselves behind the stone balustrade on the western side of the square where the horses could not reach them. A sudden movement of the crowd left me standing alone on the pavement. I saw a column of mobile guards with their grim steel helmets marching behind the horsemen on my right flanking the crowd. I started to trot along with them, about half way between the moving column and the jeering crowd.

Suddenly a ten pound paving stone floated from behind a barricade and crashed on the pavement almost in front of me. A storm of smaller missiles aimed at the guards whistled close to my head. I looked wildly for cover as the guards broke ranks, rushed for the stones lying on the ground and started to charge the Americans Periled as Crowds Demand Fall of Cabinet.

PARIS, Feb. 7 (Wednesday).—(AP)—Early today fresh troops were ordered to Paris from the provinces. Determination of the government to fight rioters to the limit was announced by Minister of the Interior Eugene Frot after a cabinet session. Wholesale arrests were expected today.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

PARIS, Feb. 7 [Wednesday].—[By telephone to London to avoid censor.]—Paris this morning was war stained and filled with blazing wreckage after five hours of the hottest fighting the capital has seen since the commune insurrection of 1871.

Several hundred persons were wounded and six are known dead. Other reports place the death list between 23 and 30. Among the wounded are Assistant Director of Municipal Police Marchand and Municipal Councilor Pinelli.

The bloodshed occurred when troops and police opened fire on a mob in the Place de la Concorde as it was trying to storm the chamber of deputies as a protest against the Daladier government. The rioting was a direct outgrowth of the $60,000,000 Stavisky bond scandal of a few weeks ago, which culminated a couple of days ago in the discharge of Jean Chiappe, powerful and popular prefect of police, who was accused of laxness in duty.

Troops Shoot Down Rioters.

Last night's rioting constituted the wildest scenes most living Parisians have ever seen. The disorders culminated in the authorities turning mounted troops loose in the boulevards. Machine gun, rifle, and pistol fire raked across the infuriated mobs, which fled in panic only to reform and come back for more.

Three times the gunfire was turned against the densely packed crowds in the streets. The first time was from the steps of the chamber of deputies, where machine guns raked the approaching mass of humanity. The second shooting was rifle fire from the head of the bridge leading to the chamber. The third outburst was indiscriminate pistol fire into the crowds.

Assisting in the efforts to suppress the uprising were the famous Moroccan Spahis, most of whom are Negroes. Mounted on their swift Arabian horses, they charged up and down the streets, riding down the screaming and hooting crowds.

City at Mercy of Rioters.

A large part of the city was at the mercy of the rioters and a virtual civil war had broken out between Red workers and Nationalists, including thousands of war veterans. At midnight furious fighting was still going on in the Place de la Concorde.

Police clubbed mercilessly every one in sight, regardless of age or sex, and troops charged, firing pistols as they ran. Scattered gunfire swept the Rue Royale from one end to the other as this message was being phoned to London.

The government has clamped down a censorship on all messages referring to deaths, injured, or gunfire.

Break Police Lines.

The rioting, which began early in the evening, increased in violence as the police and soldiers put up stiff resistance to the efforts of the crowds to storm the chamber.

Leaving the fallen to lie on the sidewalks, the mob succeeded about 8:30 p. m. in breaking through the tight lines of police and mobile guards, who are known as the toughest police in France. The crowds raced across the bridge to the gates of the chamber. When the roar of the mob penetrated inside Premier Daladier requested that the session be suspended and the deputies hastily fled by back ways.

In a counter charge republican guards, swinging their sabers, cleared the quai in front of the chamber, but police on the bridge were obliged to climb down and seek refuge under it to save their lives. A few minutes later heavy reinforcements dashed up in trucks and the Place de la Concorde was finally cleared with the aid of machine guns.

Regardless of fallen or falling comrades, the mob continued to charge and beat the police back with deadly hailstones of lead missiles. The police and troops replied with gunfire.

COURT SETTLES BACKYARD CAT AND BIRD FIGHT

Mrs. Lucy Muvrin, 5257 Northwest highway, was awarded damages of $100 by Superior Judge James J. Kelly yesterday in a $10,000 suit alleging slander which she had filed against her neighbor, Mrs. Melissa McNally, 5271 Northwest highway, wife of the publisher of the British-American newspaper. The suit resulted from a back yard quarrel which occurred on Nov. 22, 1932.

It was brought out before Judge Kelly that Mrs. Muvrin liked cats, while Mrs. McNally was a friend of wild birds, and had encouraged a number of them to come to her yard and eat crumbs. While the birds were eating the crumbs, Mrs. Muvrin's two cats ate some of the birds, and Mrs. McNally retaliated by killing the cats, the judge was told.

This led to a dispute in which, Mrs. Muvrin charged, Mrs. McNally said a number of unkind things. Mrs. McNally admitted the remarks, but asserted they were founded on truth. Judge Kelly then fixed the damages at $100.

Vandals early today shattered the windows of nine independent, cut rate milk stores on the far south side and tossed stench bombs into the places, apparently with the object of terrorizing the owners into quitting the business.

Nearly all the window breakings were simultaneously accomplished, indicating to the police that from four to eight gangs were involved in the outrage.

Doug Is Served in Divorce Suit by Lord Ashley

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Picture on Page 5.)

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Douglas Fairbanks Sr., king of movieland's swashbucklers, was served notice this morning that he has been named corespondent in the divorce suit which Lord Ashley has instituted against his actress wife, the former Sylvia Hawkes. Lord Ashley is the son and heir of the ninth earl of Shaftesbury.

Later in the day Lady Ashley was notified of the suit at her fashionable Mayfair residence.

And in the meantime a tremendously excited London was exchanging tidbits of gossip. It talked of the many fashionable affairs in London and on the Riviera at which the popular American film actor has been seen with the vivacious English girl whose beauty contrasts so markedly with the quiet beauty of Mary Pickford, Doug's estranged wife.

Doug Appears Irritated.

Fairbanks was served the legal notice at the home of F. M. Guedalla, his attorney. Though he refused to comment, his appearance indicated that he felt considerable irritation over the affair. A remark by Douglas Fairbanks Jr., a movie star in his own right, bore this indication out tonight.

"He's mad through and through about this," the son of Doug's first marriage to Anna Beth Sully, said. "I am very much embarrassed by the whole affair. I do not want to be interviewed by anybody. I have nothing to say."

The elder Doug did, however, issue a statement through his London representative.

"I have nothing to say," it said. "I have never made a practice of talking about my personal affairs and do not intend to begin now."

May Leave for Spain.

It was recalled that Doug had also acted the sphinx when Mary started suit for divorce from him in Los Angeles last December and thus brought to a disappointing end a 15 year romance which even the most skeptical had begun to believe was the acme of married happiness. The suit is pending.

Doug is reported to be leaving for Spain soon in connection with the making of a picture to be known as "Exit Don Juan." Doug Jr. is slated to accompany his father. Both Doug Sr. and Lady Ashley have three weeks in which to file answers to the suit against them.

Lady Ashley was somewhat more demonstrative than her co-defendant when she was notified of her 33 year old husband's action. Emotionally she declared she had known nothing of its imminence.

"I am sorry," she said. "I just can't make a statement."

The slim former "Midnight Follies" girl and actress has a reputation among her friends for being "daring" and "sensational." Her various exploits have caused more than one raised eyebrow in London society. On one occasion Lady Ashley donned dungarees and worked as hard as any man in the pit of Sir Henry Birkin, a racing driver, at the Belfast auto races in 1931.

It was such adventures as this which caused the earl of Shaftesbury to try desperately to forestall the marriage of his son with the actress in 1927.

Together Only a Year.

The couple were together, however, for little more than a year. In July, 1928, a notice appeared in the press in which Lord Ashley declared he would not thereafter be responsible "for any debts incurred by my wife."

Lord Ashley himself, sober faced heir to an earldom which dates back nine generations, was secluded at Swindon, 70 miles from here, today. He, too, refrained from comment on the excitement he has created.

The peer is apparently not the most popular among his set, judging from comments by one of his intimates tonight.

"The whole thing is amazing," this gentleman said. "The whole point is that Ashley has at last decided to get rid of his wife. But why he should choose to single out Fairbanks for the honor of co-respondent is a mystery to me."

HIGHBROW FRIENDS OF STRIKERS BRAWL IN WALDORF-ASTORIA

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—An old fashioned free for all threw the Empire room of the Waldorf-Astoria into an uproar tonight when a group of "intellectuals" tried to get the diners to walk out in a gesture of sympathy to striking waiters.

House detectives punched, kicked, and manhandled the "missioners" while women customers screamed and men shouted. Tables crashed, cascading glass, silver, and crockery. Selden Rodman and Alfred M. Bingham, former Yale men and members of the staff of the magazine "Common Sense," and Norman Burnstine took a good share of the buffeting.

Alexander Woollcott, Robert Benchley, and Dorothy Parker lent strong, purely vocal, support as Rodman and Bingham harangued the diners, and took the mauling.

The Waldorf became the chief enemy of the strikers by refusing to deal with them through the Amalgamated union. An NRA luncheon of the millinery trade there tomorrow, with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as speaker, has been shifted to the Hotel Roosevelt.

palace, where President Lebrun lives, the most sanguinary encounter of the evening took place. War veterans, great masses of them, walked fearlessly toward the poised muzzles of guardmen's guns, waving the flag of the republic and singing the "Marseillaise."

The republican guard charged pitilessly, fearful that the mob might sack the palace and kill the president in its fury. But still the veterans surged forward despite vicious saber charges that literaly cut those in the van to pieces. Within a few seconds wounded strewed the ground as the ex-soldiers drew back momentarily. But these men, who faced German shell fire, stoically reformed once, twice, three times, becoming smaller each time, but more compact and determined.

The guards finally were yielding ground. Not a few veterans were at the palace gates. A score actually broke through only to be brutally beaten down. Heavy streams of water played on them, but proved no deterrent, and for a while it looked as though victory was in their grasp. However, mobile guards afoot joined the attack on the former poilus, many of them fighting though wounded, and slowly pushed them back to Place Clemeanceau.

Americans Are Periled.

Many American lives were endangered when a machine gun covering the Concorde bridgehead was fired above the heads of the crowd, spraying the front of the Hotel Crillon. The hotel is next to the American embassy, which also was sprayed with bullets.

A number of prominent Americans, including Theodore Marciner, counsellor of the embassy, who were standing on the balcony or roof of the hotel watching the fight below, heard bullets whistle all around them. A young French chambermaid standing on the roof between the manager of the Crillon and Mrs. Gustave Porges, a prominent American society woman, was shot between the eyes and killed.

A moment later a Frenchman standing on the pavement in front of the hotel was hit in the heart and carried into the hotel, where a suite was converted into an emergency hospital. Thereafter a steady stream of wounded was brought to the hotel, including the Count de Vallombrosa, brother of the duke of Vallombrosa of the Paris branch of the Morgan bank. He was suffering from a deep scalp wound.

Americans Help Wounded.

American visitors in dinner jackets and evening gowns huddled in the lobby or volunteered to aid in carrying the wounded.

Robert Pell, chief of the European information service of the state department, attached to the American embassy, narrowly escaped injury when caught with a party of friends in street charges. Waving his diplomatic identity card at the police to no avail, he was roughly shoved along and threatened with clubs.

Harold Williamson, second secretary at the embassy, was hit over the head with a club, as was Bradish Johnson, a reporter on the European edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Several other Americans were roughly handled.

Former Premier Edouard Herriot narrowly avoided being beaten by rioters. Senator Gaston Menier, wealthy chocolate manufacturer, was beaten in the Place de la Concorde. Knocked down and kicked, his condition was reported to be serious.

Fear New Disorder Today.

This nightmarish situation has developed from the failure of the law forces to prevent the demonstrators from assembling and the brutality of the police charges. If reinforcements had been sent in time to the Place de la Concorde last night it might not have been necessary to fire on the crowd—or maybe someone lost his head and fired without orders.

Those shots turned the riots into insurrection and the entrance on the scene of communists and other workers turned it into a miniature civil war.

It now appears that authorities will succeed in restoring order by morning, but what the day will bring nobody knows. One thing the situation is almost certain to bring is the resignation of Premier Daladier, who last evening at the end of a stormy session won a vote of confidence.

In any event, a critical political situation has been created. The immediate danger is a resumption of rioting to avenge the fallen.

Premier Issues Statement.

Premier Daladier visited President Lebrun about 1 o'clock this morning. He then held a cabinet meeting, after which he issued the following statement:

"The appeal which the government issued this morning was heard by former soldiers who refused to associate themselves with professional agitators. On the other hand, certain political leagues multiplied their incitement to riot and attempted a violent attack on the republican régime. Bands armed with knives and revolvers attacked the police of the republican guard and the garde mobile. They opened fire on the defenders of order and many police were wounded. Identification of arrested rioters proved there was a real armed attack on the security of the state.

"Thanks to the admirable courage and self-restraint of the police, these assaults were broken and the objectives of the rioters not reached. Necessary measures are being immediately taken to prevent any new attempt. Conscious of its duty towards the country, which desires order and peace, the government is determined by all means given it by law to insure the security of the people and independence of the republican régime."

Tumult in Chamber.

Daladier went before the chamber with a traditional brief resolution approved by a caucus of his party. The resolution was remarkably cold, declaring only that the "chamber places confidence in the government to defend republican institutions." Ordinarily it would have contained the phrase, "approving the new premier's ministerial declaration."

Daladier's appearance on the tribune precipitated a tumult comparable to that which later swirled around the outside of the chamber. The speaker was twice compelled to adjourn the session in order to calm the excited deputies.

When the session resumed at 4 o'clock Daladier demanded that only four representative orators of the opposition parties be allowed to make interpellations, insisting that speed was necessary in view of the situation.

Wins Confidence Vote.

He tied up the question of confidence in the government with this demand. The Socialists voting with Daladier's own party, the chamber approved his request, 300 to 217.

Thereup, answering the interpellations, Daladier declared that only 20 per cent of those who claimed to be war veterans who were arrested in the previous evening's demonstrations were really veterans. The rest, he said, were born since 1900.

Daladier's motion to close the debate brought him another favorable vote and his third motion to postponing the remaining interpellations to the next session was also favorable, 360 to 220.

It was about this time that the mobs outside were getting out of hand. The troops were called and the gunfire began.

The crowds, smashing windows of the ministry of marine, threw torches into the building and set it afire. The mob battled with police and soldiers to prevent firemen from coming up. Sailors from the small garrison inside the building eventually put out the blaze before it did much damage.

Reds Fight Nationalists.

The riots spread, with Monarchists, Nationalists, communists, and Socialists forming their own various mobs. A report spread that the communists "are coming down the hill"—meaning the workers' suburb of Belleville. This proved to be exaggerated but the communists did play an important and bloody rôle. Some of the fiercest fighting in the Place de la Concorde was waged by a group of 1,000 Reds massed around a red flag and battling both a larger Nationalist crowd and police.

The communists also tried to break up a demonstration of Young Patriots [Fascists] before the Hotel de Ville, but were outnumbered and forced to retreat up the Boulevard Sebastopol, which they left covered with blazing matter of all sorts.

On the left bank of the Seine, in the Russian quarter, students staged a bloody riot of their own. The scene in front of the Charite hospital resembled a war time dressing station behind the front.

Bar Planes from Flying.

In order to prevent any possibility of trouble from the air, the ministry of air addressed the following communique to all airdromes around Paris:

"By order of the government, only regular planes of the public transport companies can take to the air. All others, including aviation school planes, are forbidden to leave the ground until further orders. Planes must remain in closed hangars. Airdrome directors must oppose their departure even by force."

An extraordinary characteristic of the rioting was the strange and wide gamut of the rioters. They ranged from Royalists and Young Patriots to communists.

Mobilization points and the directions from which the advances were made against the police and troops differed with the organization, but all had the same objective—the chamber of deputies.

Mobs Fight One Another.

Hence, when the demonstrating groups arrived before the chamber after breaking down various police barricades in their path, the result was a composite mob whose component parts—notably the Royalists and communists — frequently turned on each other, but not for long or very earnestly, the common enemy being the police and the troops.

PARISIAN RIOTERS AIM TO RESTORE FRENCH MONARCHIST SYSTEM

PARIS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Royalist leaders in today's fatal rioting are fervent advocates of the overthrow of the republic and restoration of a French monarchy.

They wish to place the Duke de Guise, pretender to the French throne, in what they consider his rightful position. They are composed mostly of students and members of the younger generation. Police estimate their number to be less than 10,000.

Fanatically zealous, they hold it a matter of highest honor to "fight for their king" until arrested.

The famous sculptor, Maxime Real Del Sarte, is the leader of the "King's Henchmen," who are a part of the Action Française movement, the chief monarchist organization. Their marching wing, which takes the lead in street battles, is composed chiefly of student members of the "henchmen." They wear berets and carry canes.

COMPOSER TIPS OFF EDITOR AND KILLS HIMSELF

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The city editor of a Los Angeles newspaper endeavored to talk Jack McGuire, song writer, out of his telephonic declaration of intent to commit suicide today, but failed by a few seconds.

"This is Jack McGuire at 1624 West 56th street," said the voice at the other end of the line. "I just called to tell you I'm going to bump myself off."

The editor, muffling his phone, instructed a reporter to call police, then tried to argue McGuire into postponing his act.

"It's no use," McGuire said. "I've had a lot of trouble. My wife left me last night and took the baby with her. It's the depression. Maybe this publicity will put across some of my songs and she can have the money."

The receiver clicked. As police broke into McGuire's room, he fired a bullet into his head.

FRENCH LOTTERY DRAWN DESPITE RIOT IN STREETS

PARIS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—While police and troops were firing into rioting mobs today several new millionaires were in the making. A mile from the scene of battle the huge Trocadero palace was jammed with people watching the French governmental drawing, with a grand prize of 5,000,000 francs ($315,000) and 15 other prizes of 1,000,000 francs each. The crowd cheered the result of the drawing, apparently oblivious of revolutionary riots.

BUSINESS IN PARIS IS CUT ONE-THIRD BY TAXI STRIKE

PARIS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Business is feeling the pinch today of the week-old Paris taxi strike.

Department stores reported that their sales had been cut one-third, while theaters and other enterprises also have been affected sharply.

Fleets of private cars were hired by steamship lines to transport their passengers.

crowd, throwing with all their might as they went.

Runs to Cover.

I ran back toward the bridge and the protection of the standing police lines. Fifty yards away, at the corner of one of the many avenues debouching on the Place, I stopped to get my breath. There I encountered another American newspaper man, hatless and panting like myself.

"This is too much like business," he said, and I heartily agreed.

But we had not seen anything yet.

We stood there for a couple of minutes. It was quiet, since the crowd was roaring and battling in front of the Crillon, some distance away. Firemen in brass helmets had arrived and put out the flaming bus under the protection of police, while mounted guards continued to mop up in front of them and then, circling back, to clear out the crowd which filled in behind them.

Guards Charge Again.

Some rioters appeared to be war veterans, and others Fascist or Royalist students, but it was impossible to make head or tail out of the confusion.

I did not have to puzzle long over this. The mob behind me was jeering and yelling, "Thieves! Assassins!" and the mobile guards were bearing down on us again.

While the crowd stampeded before them, my friend and I made the mistake of waving our press cards in the hope that the guards would let us get behind them. Instead they charged us, swinging their fists. We ran for dear life until our lungs were nearly bursting. The guards were right on our heels and my friend, who was a couple of paces behind me, was banged with fists about the head.

Finds the Pace Too Hot.

There was a brief rest amid the trees in the parkway lining the Champs Elysees while the flying crowd scattered in the darkness.

This business of charging with the crowd was getting entirely too hot for me, and besides it was impossible to see what was going on except in a limited area. I decided to brave the police lines again and try to gain the raised terrace of the Tuileries gardens overlooking the Concorde, where I would have a ringside seat without having to run from the police.

I cut back through the trees toward the Seine and skirted the edge of the crowd, crossing the Concorde in front of the police lines. Luckily there was a momentary lull and the law did not charge me.

Firemen Spray Mob.

They were beginning to close the iron gates at the entrance to the Tuileries, so I had to make a long detour. When I finally reached the terrace, where a mob of several thousand was already stationed, it was evident the situation had become dramatic. The Concorde was seething with a furious crowd, which was drawing reinforcements from contingents arriving through the Rue Royale and Rue de Rivoli.

Fire hose was set up at the bridgehead and firemen were trying to hold back the mob by spraying them.

The mob drove away the firemen by stoning them and then cut the hose. The guards charged, but ineffectually, and were taking a terrible punishment from the hail of stones and lead slugs.

On the terrace where I was young Fascists massed along the balustrade raised a French flag and began making ammunition by pulling off the seats of stone benches and breaking them to pieces. They also tore up everything wooden they could lay their hands on and dropped the material below to comrades, who erected a barricade and fired it.

Signal for Charge.

Suddenly the burning auto bus across the place exploded with a roar. It was the signal for a great onward surge of the crowd, which raced for the bridge yelling wildly. A bugle blew then and there was a couple of sharp reports.

"They are shooting—the assassins!" screamed the crowd on the balcony.

It was impossible in the flickering light to see clearly. The Concorde was just a waving sea of arms. The waves drew back a little and then dashed forward again at a dark line across the bridge. More scattered pistol shots were unmistakable, now and then a sound was heard which sent a mad panic through the crowd—the dry rattle of machine gun fire.

A stampede away from the edge of the terrace started and I was carried along with it. Looking back over my shoulder as I ran, I saw a few dark bundles lying on the pavement in front of the bridgehead and others scattering as they ran. The light was so bad I could not make sure they were human bodies.

Mob Shouts "Massacre."

I returned to my original post just as the mob started a new charge and the machine guns began to spit again. I could see a blue flash at the corner of the bridge.

"It's a massacre," some one next me screamed.

Just then a man a few feet away from us yelped.

"A bullet hit my arm," he said, walking away holding his sleeve.

The mob below was falling back to the left and the firing seemed to be aimed in our general direction. I heard a couple of light taps above my head on the trunk of the tree under which I was standing, and some splinters fell down my neck.

By this time it was impossible to tell what was happening on the bridge but a few seconds later shouts and flashes from across the river revealed that a few rioters had somehow accomplished the incredible feat of fighting past the guards' guns.

Horse guards drove them back and momentarily cleared the Place again with a saber charge which gave me a cold feeling in my stomach.

At last trucks with reinforcements arrived and foot guards charging with clubs behind horses cleared the Place, though only for a short time.

Then came our turn. Mobile guards opened the gates of the gardens and came charging up the terrace at us. The first line of defenders tried to stop them by hurling enormous stones down at them. There were dull sounds that I could never describe—and never forget—horrible screams from women, infuriated shouts from fighters and then everything else was wiped out in a headlong flight before the pursuing guards. It was a straight sprint for a quarter of a mile through the Tuileries.

As I came out of the gardens on the Rue de Rivoli I slipped on something wet and saw it was a pool of blood two feet in diameter.

I decided I had seen enough for the evening.

TROOPS CALLED OUT IN 20 FRENCH CITIES TO PUT DOWN RIOTS

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 6.—Paris was not alone the scene of rioting today. Police and troops were called out in at least 20 provincial centers to disperse mobs of demonstrators.

In the provinces, however, no fatalities had been reported up to a late hour tonight, though great excitement prevailed in many centers as news from Paris reached different parts of the country.

In the provincial towns as well as in the capital, the Stavisky scandal has been made fuel for dissatisfaction. Protest meetings have multiplied in various cities, supported by outraged taxpayers, as well as all the different groups which organized the demonstrations in Paris. These groups also called for action by their branch units throughout France.

ECONOMIC CRISIS SEEN AS CAUSE OF FRENCH RIOTS

High Taxes and Pay Cuts Arouse Public Wrath.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Although the monumental Stavisky scandal and the fall of the Bayonne pawnshop, which mulcted the French public out some $60,000,000, was the immediate cause of today's fatal rioting, the trouble had its roots deep in the economic condition of France.

Young Royalists numbering some 10,000, who desire restoration of a French monarchy; a new group of fascist manifestants; a communist element represented in the chamber of deputies and an agrarian anti-government sentiment all had their share in the general upheaval.

Frank warnings of possible civil war and forced abdication of the republic were sounded by Premier Daladier in the chamber before the rioting began early this afternoon.

Lays Agitation to Depression.

"The fundamentals of agitation," he declared, "lie in the economic and financial crisis. The incidents we are witnessing risk the crystallization of discontent."

Paris had seethed with anger for a month past as a result of the Stavisky scandal. It was charged that government officials were involved in the collapse of the Bayonne pawnshop.

Chautemps vigorously denied that any of the members of his cabinet were implicated. He blamed the red tape of French officialdom, saying the out-of-date French administrative system was never able to catch up with Serg Stavisky, who, the police say, shot himself to death when the scandal broke. Others say he was shot to death to seal his lips.

The rioters today were led by Royalists and Communists and were joined by war veterans, but their activities might have been negligible had it not been that government employés, hit by government pay cuts instituted in strenuous efforts to balance the French budget, joined them.

High Taxes a Factor.

The riots were based on bitterness against high taxes, economic stress, parliamentary wrangling and alleged graft in high places.

The troublesome budget, between 4,000,000,000 and 6,000,000,000 francs "in the red" at the end of 1933, was an important contributing factor in the general national unrest. In the provinces,, especially in northern France and the coal mining districts, there had been agitation against unemployment and increased taxes.

France's firm determination to remain on the gold standard was reiterated today by the premier, "We are determined to maintain our monetary system," he said.

Daladier's first heavy blow fell upon the former police chief, Jean Chiappe, who was summarily given a post as governor general of French Morocco, which he declined. This move in the premier's effort to clean up the scandal brought immediate unfavorable reactions from street crowds, who demonstrated in favor of Chiappe's return to office.

How Stavisky Operated.

Serge [Handsome Alex] Stavisky, whose vast swindle started the present rumpus, founded the Bayonne pawn shop in 1932. Like other French municipal pawnshops it was a private organization subject to city and state control. Bayonne's mayor was automatically head of the board of directors, and Gustave Tissier was actual manager.

Though Stavisky had no official connection, he, as a sort of benefactor, handled the cash and controlled issuance of bonds.

The institution was authorized to issue 50,000,000 francs in bonds [$3,000,000] when it began operation. The municipal pawnshop, considered as a public service, has a bonding power fixed by the state.

Stavisky, however, fraudulently issued perhaps 20 times as many bonds as authorized. The difference was covered up by bookkeeping, allegedly with connivance of the manager, Tissier. Stavisky pocketed the money.

Loss Falls on Taxpayers.

Insurance companies were principal buyers of the bonds. However, such firms are partly guaranteed by the state, and a large part of the loss will fall on the taxpayers. It was charged that high officials helped Stavisky sell his forged securities.

Authorities claimed Stavisky was about to launch a program calculated to net another $40,000,000 of the public's money when the pawnshop collapsed.

Colonial Minister Albert Dalimier, among the first of the high officials forced out of office in the Stavisky scandal, was quoted in a circular issued by the Bayonne pawnshop advising insurance companies that they could legally invest in pawnshops.

Stavisky, 47 years old, was arrested in 1926 on charges of swindling. He spent a year in jail, but was released on a petition claiming poor health.

Stavisky's alleged protection from high places is said to have protected him for seven years, during which he was able to delay his trial on the swindling charges. During this time he sold the hundreds of millions of francs in fraudulent bonds.

Former Premier Camille Chautemps confirmed officially that Stavisky was arrested some years ago on a rubber check charge, was released on bail, and granted nineteen postponements by various judges. The case was finally pigeon-holed.

HOLD 5 ACCUSED OF MAKING GIRL, 16, A PRISONER

Five men charged with kidnaping and holding prisoner a 16 year old girl since last September were in custody of the South State street police last night while detectives searched for two other members of the gang.

One of those held is Joseph Lenhoff, 27 years old, 2845 Division street, a chauffeur, whom the girl identified as one of her kidnapers. The other prisoners are Lawrence Zeller, 4532 North Racine avenue; William Daly, 551 South State street; James Svolas, 602 South State street, and Louis Agar, 1848 South Troy street. These four, according to the girl, forced her to work as a hostess in Svolas' cabaret.

Svolas and Agar are charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor. Daly is charged with being the keeper of a disorderly house and Zeller with pandering.

Maurice M. Shay, mayor pro tem of Berwyn, was inducted into office last night before 200 residents of the suburb who attended the city council meeting. OWNERS DEFY TAXI UNION; TRY TODAY TO BREAK UP STRIKE

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Rejecting new terms approved by Mayor F. H. La Guardia to settle the taxicab strike, the operators of large fleets defied the union today, and announced they would resume cab service tomorrow under police protection.

This action followed a day of futile negotiations at the office of Morris L. Ernst, mediator named by the mayor. In refusing the new terms, which included recognition of the recently formed drivers' union, the operators announced they would deal no longer with the strikers, but would insist that any union of their employés be organized under the NRA.

Meanwhile it was reported that the strikers had split on how the 5 cent extra fare on cab rides should be divided, thus removing all hope of an early strike settlement.

STUDENTS FIGHT NEW PRESIDENT OF CUBA; 2 KILLED

Riot in Havana; Strikes Tie Up Island.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Feb. 6.—Two students were killed and many were hurt when police and soldiers clashed with 5,000 national university students here late today. It was a hand to hand mêlée in which 300 shots were fired.

The demonstrators, marching toward the palace to protest President Carlos Mendieta's "strong arm" stand against strikes and anti-government movements, began hurling bricks and stones and firing revolvers when told to disperse. The police charged and used their guns freely.

The students' directory tonight passed a resolution declaring war to the finish on President Mendieta. Eduardo Chivas, student leader, said: "Before 48 hours our machine guns, sawed off shotguns and bombs will start playing a very important rôle to determine Cuban politics. The students propose to avenge today's killings, holding President Mendieta responsible for this uncalled for massacre. If the ABC signs a defensive pact with the students tonight, conditions will be automatically exactly as they were when Machado was president. We will not cease opposition and terrorist activities until Mendieta is dethroned."

Three Killed in Santiago.

Santiago reports three killed and several wounded in a communist clash with troops today, while business and labor activities were at a standstill as a result of strikes.

Eight hundred employés of the American owned Matahanbre mining company in Pinar del Rio struck today. Havana stevedores walked out at 6 p. m. Harbor activities are paralyzed. The syndicate of graphic arts decreed a 48 hour strike of newspaper and magazine workers beginning at 6 p. m.

Government Plans Free Buses.

The government will revoke permits to operate buses here and establish free routes, if the strike of bus workers is not ended by noon tomorrow, it was announced.

Rail communications of the island are tied up by a strike, and 27 towns are without gas, light, and water.

Communists took over the Dos Losas sugar mill at Matanzas today, and destroyed machinery and looted stores.

NEW YORK LODGE FORCED TO MOVE BY FORECLOSURE

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Members of New York lodge No. 1 of the Elks are preparing to give up their large clubhouse on West 43d street and move to modest quarters elsewhere as the result of a mortgage foreclosure action which is scheduled to be filed tomorrow.

A $600,000 mortgage and $120,000 due in taxes, interest, and other unpaid charges will be the basis of the foreclosure suit to be brought against the lodge property by the Bank for Savings.

WILSON'S WIDOW TURNS OVER HER BUSINESS TO EMPLOYES AND QUITS

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the wartime President, has retired as sole owner of Galt & Brother, reputed to be the oldest jewelry firm in the country. She turned over the name and good will to the employés.

The concern was established in 1802 by James Galt in Alexandria, Va., then part of the District of Columbia.

The firm moved to Washington in 1847. It came into the hands of Mrs. Wilson in 1908 from her first husband, Norman Galt.

Pope Arranges Exchange of Chaco War Prisoners

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Exchange of wounded Paraguayan and Bolivian prisoners of war will be effected under the supervision of the holy see, an official communique announced today. The two governments have accepted the Vatican's offer to direct the work.

EMPLOYERS ARE URGED TO UNITE FOR PROTECTION

Employers were urged to organize to protect themselves from attacks upon their constitutional rights last night by J. C. Belden, president of the Employers' Association of Chicago, who addressed 500 persons at a meeting of the group at the Union League club. His subject was "Looking Forward Under the NRA."

"Too many business men have refused to join together even for mutual protection," said Mr. Belden, who is president of the Belden Manufacturing company. "They should consider as fixed charges memberships in those organizations which protect them from assaults upon their constitutional guarantees. Our enemies have shown us how they can organize, surely we can do as much ourselves."

Otto A. Jaburek, general counsel for the association, gave his version of an employer's legal rights and obligations under the NRA, assuming in his discussion that the legislation would be held constitutional. Thomas E. Donnelley, president of R. R. Donnelley & Sons company, traced the history of violence and coercion to which employers here have been subjected.

INSULL'S 'BLACK DAY' PICTURED IN COURT DRAMA

Inquiry on Middle West Receivership Opens.

Green, appointed by Judge Lindley as friend of the court to conduct the examination, seemed uninterested in the recital of Insull's reminiscences. Let the witness tell the story of what happened when the bankers emerged, he urged.

"Well, they came out after a little while and Mr. Young came over to where Mr. Insull was standing," Mr. Andersen went on. "Mr. Young spoke of the need of doing everything possible to save the companies, but stressed the hopelessness of the situation.

"'Does this mean a receivership?'" the witness quoted Insull as asking, and Mr. Young's answer was: "'Yes, Mr. Insull, I'm afraid it does.'"

"I Wish My Time Had Come."

Q.—[By Mr. Green]—Well, what did Mr. Insull say to that? A.—There wasn't much he could say. He seemed utterly broken and humble. I thought he was going to collapse. The only thing he said was: "I wish my time on earth had come."

Mr. Andersen continued the story of the return to Chicago—the discovery of a $500,000 defalcation by Marshall Sampsell, vice president of Middle West; the establishment of a rigid control over all Insull companies by the Andersen accounting concern, the appointment of Insull as co-receiver of Middle West, and his forced resignation after discovery of defalcations by his brother, Martin Insull, former president of Middle West.

But all this was bringing nothing to bear on the point of Mr. Ettelson's contention—that Middle West was bankrupt when Insull and the bankers took it into equity receivership, and hence that fraud was practiced on the court. Whether Middle West was solvent or insolvent when the receivership occurred was a question Mr. Andersen insisted he could not answer.

Ettelson Takes the Witness.

Thus the situation stood when Attorney Ettelson took the witness for cross-examination. Going carefully over the ground covered by Mr. Green, Mr. Ettelson also failed to make Mr. Andersen admit Middle West's insolvency.

Thoroughly aroused, Ettelson jerked from his files a copy of a letter Judge Lindley wrote to attorneys for Receiver Charles A. McCulloch last Oct. 27, complaining of Middle West's operating loss of the previous month and urging speed in working to a reorganization. Ettelson quoted from the letter as follows:

"Frankly, this is not a good picture for a chancellor, especially at a time when there seems to be a growing conviction that executive salaries and expenses have been too great. To use $17,000 for fees and expenses of receivers and lawyers when there is an income of $80,000, all of which is paid out on other expenses, interest charges and taxes, hardly seems justifiable."

"Do you agree with that?" Ettelson snapped. Mr. Andersen confessed he couldn't answer, and the attorney took another tack. How long did the witness think the Middle West receivership should go on, he demanded.

Praises Middle West Receiver.

"My own feeling," Andersen said, not replying to the question, "is that the Middle West receiver has been doing a remarkably fine job, exercising vision, judgment, and courage. I say that most sincerely."

Ettelson was pressing on with questions about Judge Lindley's letter when another attorney, James G. Condon, broke in. As counsel for the estate of Receiver McCulloch's late co-receiver, Edward N. Hurley, Attorney Condon said he wanted to object. Ettelson turned on his adversary sharply.

"And may the record show that Mr. Condon is also counsel for one of Samuel Insull's private secretaries in a criminal case?" he purred.

"I'm not ashamed of any of my clients," Condon roared, getting to his feet. "I'll submit a full list of my clients to this court if counsel will do the same."

"But that would take half a day," Ettelson smiled, and returned to questioning Andersen.

Asks for Accomplishments.

"This company has been in receivership one year and ten months—has anything been accomplished?" he demanded. The witness adjusted his diamond tie pin and cleared his throat before answering.

"If I may answer in my own way and quote Mr. Insull," he began, "it was his opinion, expressed to me, that because of new construction and the benefits yet to accrue therefrom, the best job could be done on the Middle West properties if the receivership lasted for five years. I would yield to Mr. Insull's judgment as against my own in that respect."

This volunteered statement goaded Attorney Ettelson to fury. He jumped from his chair, his face purpling, but paused to collect his thoughts before shooting the next question.

He Shouts the Question.

"Did it ever occur to you," he thundered, "that Insull might want to continue this receivership five years for his own personal benefit to——"

"No, no," the witness interjected. "It didn't occur to me, for he was getting far more as executive of the companies than he would as receiver, and you must remember——"

"No," Ettelson stormed, "and it didn't occur to you that he was indicted for stealing the companies' funds? Do you mean to tell this court you don't know he was indicted for embezzlement? Don't you read the newspapers?"

Mr. Andersen quietly insisted he knew nothing of Insull's indictment for embezzlement. Attorney Condon helped him out with a reminder that the federal indictment against Insull was for mail fraud. An assistant of Ettelson countered with a statement that there was a state indictment also—for larceny and embezzlement.

Judge Lindley tried to quell the rising storm. With a remark that he might some day have to try the Insull mail fraud case, he observed that if the witness' opinion of Insull were not pertinent to the present issue what he knew made little difference.

"But he is stating his judgment of Insull and I want to show what Insull is," Ettelson remonstrated, forgetting the judge entirely and turning to the crowded courtroom.

"Maybe it's all a delusion," he gesticulated. "Maybe he wasn't indicted at all. Maybe he didn't have to flee to Greece at advice of his attorneys. Maybe they should notify him it was all a mistake."

Ettelson was striding up and down before the jury box, filled with bankers, lawyers and prospective witnesses. One of the most important spectators in court, George F. Cummerow, investigator for the congressional committee which has an eye on all federal receiverships in this district, was busy scribbling notes.

Another Question for Witness.

Ettelson hurled another question:

"He was forced to resign as receiver because of alleged irregularities and you are still willing to accept his judgment?"

Mr. Andersen was still composed.

"Let me say this," he remarked. "Samuel Insull had the keenest intelligence of any man I ever knew; he had unlimited courage, sound judgment as a utility operator, and therefore when he told me it would take five years to reorganize, it struck me as good judgment. Remember, none of the things you have mentioned was before us then. There was no reason to dispute his ability to run the companies."

"And run them into the ground," cried Ettelson. "He caused the greatest death and ruin the civilized world has ever known and it took courage to run away. Is that what you mean to say?"

"You are trying to put words in my mouth," the witness remonstrated.

"Well, you used the word courage—don't you think it is rank cowardice to run away and leave the ruin that he did?"

Green Outshouts Ettelson.

The interrogation seemed to be getting out of bounds. Attorney Green leaped to his feet and, in one sentence, showed he could outshout Attorney Ettelson.

"I think it is apparent these questions are not pertinent," he said, adding in terrific tones: "I decline to enter into a brawl with counsel, which is what this case has come to, and this is no time to wrangle with counsel or witnesses."

Judge Lindley interposed again, reminding both sides of their pledge to coöperate and stating that, while he welcomed all pertinent testimony, questions should be confined to the issue at hand.

"I don't object to any one, even one who made money out of this, praising the receiver," Attorney Ettelson complained. "But I do object to any one putting a halo around Samuel Insull's head. I won't sit silent and have it appear that I acquiesce in a statement concerning Insull's intelligence—most crooks are intelligent—and his superb courage—which made him run away to Greece."

Tells of Offer to Coolidge.

The next witness, Edward Eagle Brown, vice president of the First National bank, related again the story of the bankers' part in the Insull receiverships and recalled how the late Calvin Coolidge, former President of the United States, was asked to be a Middle West receiver and declined.

The banks, Mr. Brown brought out, were as vitally interested as any common stockholders in preserving Middle West, since they were holding huge blocks of Middle West common stock as collateral on Insull corporate and private loans.

The latter part of Mr. Brown's testimony showed the dominating part played by Owen Young immediately preceding the receivership. The banker was still on the stand when the hearing was adjourned for the day and he will resume his testimony today.

Abner J. Stilwell, vice president of the Continental Illinois National bank, also is expected to be called today.

MOVE TO SHOW UNION TRIBUTE TO HUMPHRIES

State Brings Evidence to Racket Trial.

BY JOSEPH ATOR.

The beginning of a chain of evidence designed to show that Murray Humphries, who succeeded Al Capone as Chicago's public enemy No. 1, levied toll on the laundry and dye house drivers' union was introduced yesterday in the racket conspiracy trial.

Humphries was indicted in the case, but is a fugitive. Four officials of the union are among the 18 defendants actually on trial by a jury before Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan in the Criminal court. Other defendants include Dr. Benjamin M. Squires, who headed the Cleaners and Dyers' institute, which was formed to "stabilize" the industry, but which, the prosecutors charge, sought to accomplish its ends through a reign of violence and sabotage; Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], and Attorney Aaron Sapiro, organizer of numerous business coöperative movements.

Charge by Prosecution.

It is the purpose of Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber to show that Humphries used a check for $2,400 drawn on the union treasury in the fall of 1931 as part payment for an expensive automobile which his wife bought in Oshkosh, Wis.

But before he could start presenting this picture to the jury the jurors had to yawn their way through a two hour education on the admissibility of documentary evidence. Yesterday's testimony got no farther than the introduction of records of the Oshkosh Motor Sales company, from which the car allegedly was purchased, over which prosecutors and defense counsel bickered for two hours.

Prosecutor Raber finally succeeded in introducing part of the records, but one essential link in his chain was rejected because it was a copy instead of an original document, and the testimony of the witness who identified it was stricken from the record. Judge Finnegan was informed that the original record, a sales report card to the motor manufacturer in Detroit, would be presented today.

The two witnesses examined regarding the sales records were both questioned as the court's witnesses. They were W. A. Schrader, salesman for the motor sales company, who identified the disputed copy of the sales report, and Ray Kieckhefer, office manager for the same concern.

Prosecutor Raber informed the court that both men had refused to come voluntarily to Chicago and testify. It developed during their examination that the prosecution had brought them across the state line by arranging to have United States attorney's office subpoena them to appear before the federal grand jury. They were then served with the state subpoenas.

Witness Admits His Fears.

Examining Kieckhefer in the absence of the jury, Prosecutor Raber asked:

"Did you fear certain parties in connection with this transaction?"

"Yes," replied the witness. "My fears were vague, of course, but the boys around the garage knew about the matter and had been riding us pretty hard."

Humphries' name was mentioned only once, when Schrader stated, between frequent defense objections, that the disputed sales record card showed the purchaser to be Mrs. M. L. Humphries, wife of the gangster.

All of Schrader's testimony was later stricken, to be repeated today when the original copy of his report card is available.

The Humphries incident was dropped for the day with the testimony of the Oshkosh witnesses, and the last witness of the day, Attorney Arthur Torme, was questioned about the troubles of the International Cleaners and Dyers, 2810 South Wells street, and his discussions of them with Attorney Morris I. Kaplan, attorney for the Cleaning and Dyeing institute, who is one of the defendants.

The troubles of the International company, of which Torme's father-in-law, Harry Alpert, is owner, included the murder in January, 1933, of Benjamin Rosenberg, manager of the cleaning plant, and an earlier attack by vandals who destroyed several trucks of the company. Philip Mangano and Louis Clementi, former Capone gangsters, are now serving terms of one to five years in Joliet penitentiary for the destruction of the trucks.

Torme said he was attorney for 11 other cleaning plants besides Alpert's, and represented them in the negotiations for formation of the institute. He then told Attorney Kaplan, he asserted, that he thought the so-called Squires agreement for formation of the institute would involve violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, but Attorney Kaplan, he said, assured him that Floyd E. Thompson, former chief justice of the state Supreme court, had written an opinion that it would not. Attorney Thompson is counsel for Ald. Nelson in the trial.

Conversation with Kaplan.

Torme, who for a time rented space in Kaplan's office, detailed a conversation which he had with Kaplan in July, 1931, regarding the International company's trouble.

The substance of his testimony was that Kaplan hinted that the trouble resulted from the International company, a wholesale concern, having got the business of a number of small cleaning agencies, known as the Rose and Miller group, away from other wholesalers.

"Did you know a man named Benjamin Rosenberg?" Assistant Prosecutor Thomas Dodd Healy then asked.

"Yes, he was the manager of the International plant," said Torme.

"What is Mr. Rosenberg's present status?" asked Healy.

"He's dead," replied Torme.

"I told Mr. Kaplan," continued Torme, "that the Rose and Miller group business had been brought in by Rosenberg. He said to me: 'Personally, I think your father-in-law would be better off without Rosenberg in his plant.'"

Attorney Joseph B. Harrington then asked on behalf of the defense if Alpert had not contributed to a fund raised by several south side cleaning and dyeing companies for the purpose of hiring gangsters. This Torme denied.

The name of Attorney Thompson was also injected into the testimony during the morning session of the trial by Fred Salzman, owner of a cleaning and dyeing plant, who said he had been in the business since 1898.

Salzman described the meeting in October, 1930, at which Attorney Kaplan read the contract for establishment of the institute which established Dr. Squires as director of the industry. Attorney Kaplan told his auditors, Salzman said, that Attorney Thompson was to get part of a $5,000 fee for drawing the contract. Outside of court Attorney Thompson denied this, saying that a fee of $1,000 was paid to his present partner, Attorney Edward R. Johnston, for that service.

Salzman testified that he did not join the institute until the labor unions whose officials are on trial in the case called a strike on his plant at 4032 Elston avenue. The strike was settled within a few hours, as soon as he agreed to join. He testified that up to that time he had always used union help and paid the full scale, and that there were no adjustments of his relations with his employés as the result of the strike.

MILK DRIVERS GET PROPOSAL TO CUT WAGES $5 A WEEK

Representatives of Chicago's union milk wagon drivers yesterday took under consideration a new proposal, made at a meeting in the Midwest Athletic club, that the present union wage scale of $40 a week be cut to $35.

However, it was indicated by negotiators for the drivers, including Robert G. Fritchie, president, and Steve Sumner, treasurer of the union, that the rank and file were still unalterably opposed to any wage slash.

"We shall make no recommendation that the dealers' proposal be accepted," said Fritchie. "The matter will be considered at a meeting of the union again on Feb. 15."

Frank C. Baker, newly appointed federal milk administrator for Chicago, let it be known yesterday that 400 distributors and cream brokers today will receive copies of the agriculture adjustment administration's new blanket license. Failure to pay farmers at least 3.8 cents a quart for milk sold as fluid and 2.7 cents a quart for milk marketed at retail as cream will be regarded as violation of the license. No attempt is to be made by the AAA to set retail prices.

JUDGES TO GET PLEA FOR 48 DAY PAY REDUCTION

Would Save $300,000 for City in Year.

Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court said last night at a session of the city council finance committee, which is considering the 1934 budget, that he would submit to his associate justices the question of accepting a forty-eight day pay cut, as is asked by the aldermen. The cut would save the city approximately $300,000 a year in expenditures.

Members of the finance committee are struggling with two budgets, one of $39,500,000, which represents the revenues that the city actually will receive under present taxing valuations, and one of $43,764,000 that City Controler Upham has submitted to them, based on the hope of getting more revenue. The aldermen agree that a budget of the former amount will seriously interfere with city services.

Would Cut Police Jobs.

If policemen and firemen are given only a 52 day pay cut, as they were in 1933, the city will be compelled to lay off 500 policemen and 200 firemen in 1934, according to figures presented to the committee. If, however, they are given a 78 day pay cut, as were other city employés in 1933, this will not be necessary.

The finance committee agreed to increase the fees in the Municipal court 30 to 50 per cent as recommended by 27 of the judges. This will increase the revenues of the court by $300,000 during the year, according to Judge Sonsteby.

Recommend Salvage Contract.

The committee recommended a contract with the Austin Contracting company for the wrecking of the municipal reduction plant at 39th and Iron streets and other city buildings. The company agreed, if the labor is furnished by the civil works administration, to give the city $2,500 for the salvage on the buildings.

1932 TAX RATES WILL BE FIXED IN THREE DAYS

The 1932 tax rates for the 420 tax spending bodies in Cook county will be determined by experts in the office of County Clerk Sweitzer within the next three days, it was announced yesterday. Officials said the 1932 personal property tax bills will be sent out within the next two weeks, and the last of the 1932 real estate tax bills by March 15.

A group of tax assessing and levying officials who gathered in the office of County Treasurer McDonough agreed when this information was presented to them that the 1932 penalty date for both personal and the first installment of real property taxes will, in all probability, be extended from March 1 to April 15. They pointed out that under Illinois law the penalty date cannot be set for a day earlier than thirty days after the last bills for any given year have been sent out.

It was agreed at the meeting that no action to obtain legislative sanction to extend the penalty date would be taken until after the personal property tax bills have been placed in the mails.

SENTENCES FOUR PET DOGS TO DIE FOR BITING GIRL

McGraw, N. Y., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Four pet dogs, convicted of mangling a little girl's arm, today were condemned to death.

The dogs are Pal, a police dog; Curley, a water spaniel; Sport, a bull dog, and Jack, "just an ordinary hound."

During the trial Mrs. Henry S. Ayers, a housewife, said she drove them from 6 year old Joyce Hammond. Joyce lies in a hospital and may lose one arm.

"The dogs are criminals of the worst kind," said the justice. The townspeople cheered. The dogs jumped up and barked excitedly.

RULES PRIMARY VOTER MAY HOP OVER PARTY LINE

Kerner Gives Opinion on April Election.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Attorney General Kerner, it was learned yesterday, has ruled that although two full calendar years will not have elapsed since the presidential, state and county primaries of 1932, persons who voted in those primaries may switch parties in the Illinois primaries of April 10.

Apparently basing his opinion on the theory that the legislative intent back of the two year limitation on change of parties was based on the thought of two political years instead of twice 365 days, the attorney general has replied uniformly to election officials in different parts of the state who addressed inquiries to him.

Kerner Gives His Opinion.

"You are informed," he wrote in one such answer, "that this office is holding that if a member of one party voted in the primary of that party in 1932, that fact alone would not prevent him from entering the primary of the opposite party in 1934.

"It might be entirely possible that during this two year period acts have been performed by the voter which would clearly show him to be a Republican or a Democrat, as the case may be, and, if that were true, of course he would not be eligible to vote in the primary of the opposite party.

"All I have held, however, is that a vote in the primary of 1932 does not prevent a vote in the primary of the opposite party in 1934."

Two Days Short of Two Years.

The primaries of 1932 were held on April 12. There two days less than two calendar years will have passed by this year's primary day, April 10.

Chief Clerk John S. Rusch of the Chicago election board announced that the redrafting of precinct lines in preparation for the primary has increased the total number of precincts in Chicago to 3,152, a gain of 75 over the former total.

DILLINGER'S CAPTORS COME HERE TO HELP PROSECUTE KILLER

Acting Capt. Frank Eyman and Sergt. Chester Sherman of the Tucson, Ariz., police, who captured John Dillinger in their home town, arrived in Chicago yesterday on an American Airways plane.

They explained that their intention was to coöperate with the Indiana authorities and aid the case against Dillinger if possible. They brought with them some of the weapons taken from the Indiana killer and his men.

All their expenses on the trip, according to Capt. Eyman, were paid by J. Parker Hale Chandler, a wealthy resident of Tucson. Chandler, it was said, felt that the achievement of the Tucson police was worthy of a special reward and took this means of showing his pride in the force.

Capt. Eyman is the son of Frank Eyman, 112 Thayer avenue, Joliet, and will make his headquarters there during the two weeks he plans to remain in the middle west.

Jim Tully's Son Takes Stand on Rape Charge

BREMER FAMILY STILL WAITS FOR KIDNAPERS' REPLY

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—With the deadline when police will be called in a matter of hours away, there was nothing today to indicate that a contact with the kidnapers of Edward G. Bremer, 37 year old St. Paul banker, had been completed.

Relatives continued the silence begun Sunday when Adolf Bremer, wealthy brewer, gave the man holding his son for $200,000 ransom a final three days and nights in which to communicate with him, but the anxiety written on the face of the aged father and other members of the Bremer family belied any possibility that the kidnapers had moved to negotiate.

While refusing to make statements before expiration of the deadline about noon tomorrow, police, state, and federal authorities were known to be preparing an intensive man hunt for the abductors, who seized Bremer the morning of Jan. 17 and who have made no move, since sending a note with a demand for ransom the same day, to Walter Magee, St. Paul contractor.

The authorities apparently were convinced Bremer is still alive, despite a widespread conviction throughout the city that the continued silence of the kidnapers indicated he is dead.

HELD AS EXTORTIONIST.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 6.—(AP)—A charge of attempted extortion was filed in federal court here today against Howard Williams, farm hand, arrested yesterday in Faribault, Minn., in an attempt to extort $2,000 from William Dudley, Shieldsville, Minn., farmer.

STATE WARNED TO ACT OR FAIR CAN'T BE HELD

Lohr Calls on Assembly to Give Authorization.

Unless the Illinois legislature quickly enacts proper legislation the 1934 World's Fair, successor of A Century of Progress, cannot be held, according to Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager of the exposition. He said yesterday that new construction necessary to the opening of the Fair by June 1 has already been delayed seven weeks by lack of legislation.

The fiscal setup of the Fair requires that the legislature empower the south park board to grant authority to the exposition's sponsors to enter into contracts with exhibitors.

Legislation Is Prepared.

This was done for the 1933 Fair, but must be done over again for this year's Exposition. The necessary legislation for 1934 has been prepared and will be introduced when the third special session of the general assembly convenes next Tuesday. The first special session last fall was concerned only with public relief measures and the second session, recently concluded, was devoted wholly to liquor control legislation.

At present, Maj. Lohr explained, the Fair is legally nonexistent. Its officers have no authority to spend money, sign contracts, employ any people or invite exhibitors or state and foreign governments to participate.

Maj. Lohr said that between 300 and 400 men could be put to work at once on construction when state authorization is accomplished. He pointed out that excellent building weather now prevails. The construction program involves a proposed expenditure of more than $5,000,000. Of this $3,000,000 will be spent for labor, Maj. Lohr said.

400 Exhibit Contracts Signed.

More than 400 contracts with exhibitors have been signed but these are contingent upon legislative sanction of the Fair.

An ordinance has been prepared by attorneys for the south park board and is ready for passage which will give the Fair officials authority to act as soon as the legislature does its part. The federal state department is also ready to send formal invitations to foreign governments to take part in the Exposition.

The delay in Illinois' sanction of the 1934 Fair also has caused a postponement of congressional action on an appropriation for the federal government's exhibit, Maj. Lohr said.

FAIR ROB HOTEL CLERK.

FACTOR TO BE FREE ON BOND PENDING NEW TRIAL OF TOUHY GANG

John Factor, wealthy speculator, will be allowed to remain at liberty in bond of $50,000 until he has testified at the second trial of Roger Touhy, Albert Kator, and Gus Schaefer, who are charged with kidnaping him last July. This became certain yesterday when Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan continued for one month the motion of the British government asking that Factor be extradited immediately.

Factor has been ordered to England by the United States Supreme court to stand trial for an alleged $7,000,000 stock swindle. Assistant State's Attorney James V. Cunningham told the court that British officials had agreed to allow Factor to appear at the Touhy trial before demanding his extradition.

Representatives of the British government withdrew all objections to the continuance when Judge Sullivan ruled that the motion might be renewed whenever the trial of the Touhy gangsters was completed. The second trial became necessary when jurors were unable to reach an agreement as to the guilt of the three defendants at the first trial.

COURTNEY ASKS TO PASS ON ALL FELONY BONDS

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney yesterday sent a letter to Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court urging that his office be allowed to pass on all felony bonds so as to prevent a repetition of cases such as that of Lester Weiss, a well known forger, who was liberated on a bond by Judge Leon Edelman. The judge approved the bond in his home at 1:30 o'clock in the morning.

"The practice of judges approving bonds at their homes, without sufficient previous reliable investigation should be discontinued," said the prosecutor in his letter. "With your coöperation I am sure we can adopt a policy with respect to felony bonds that would insure the presence of the defendant in court."

Weiss fled and when his bond was forfeited it was discovered that Judge Edelman had approved a schedule which did not cover the full amount of the $15,000 bond. The giving of the bond is under investigation in the state's attorney's office.

Doctors Report Traylor Is Showing Steady Gain

Physicians at the home of Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, reported yesterday that Mr. Traylor was continuing to improve in his fight against pneumonia. He was gradually growing stronger, according to Dr. Carl Johnson, and slept well during the day. It was Dr. Johnson's opinion that use of the oxygen tent which was removed from Mr. Traylor on Monday would not again be necessary.

CALLS ON BOARD TO EXPLAIN CUTS IN ASSESSMENTS

Large Corporations Win Reductions.

Assessor J. L. Jacobs yesterday asked the board of tax appeals for an explanation of reductions on 1932 personal property assessments of large corporations. The answer, delivered by George F. Nixon, Republican member of the board, was: "Because the assessment was lousy."

Mr. Jacobs received the answer with the remark that it was not unexpected. "It is just another expression of lack of coöperation on the part of the board," he said. "We attempt to perfect a system of equalized personalty assessments and the board of appeals upsets the apple cart of progress by granting reductions to large corporations to work a hardship on small business men and citizens."

Board's Assessment Cuts.

The 1932 personal property assessed valuation as submitted by the assessor's office to the board of appeals totaled $930,715,074. On about 13,000 complaints the board reduced the assessment by $116,252,700. On the 1931 levy, on 40,000 complaints, the board reduced the assessor's assessment of $1,043,389,299 to $922,272,890.

Of the total reduction of $116,252,700 for 1932 only about $21,000,000 was made on the suggestion of the assessors office to correct errors, Mr. Jacobs said. Cuts of more than $95,000,000 were made, he said, over the protest of his office.

Mr. Jacobs had demanded an explanation of reductions totaling $40,000,000. This amount was struck from his assessment in the last two days of hearings held by the board of appeals.

"It appeared to me to be more than coincidence that the cuts were granted in the last two days of hearings in an election year," he said. "In two days the board completed more than a third of its reduction of our assessment. At that rate it is evident that the board could not make a complete inquiry into the facts.

"A Difficult Assessment."

"The lack of coöperation of the board of appeals is disheartening. The personal property assessment at best is a difficult assessment to make. It is unpopular and because of its intangible character hard to determine with accuracy.

"Vigorous efforts to collect the tax would reduce our troubles. Collection has become a political football. When suit is commenced against a delinquent taxpayer he sees a political friend and more often than not the suit is forgotten.

"I understand that ward committeemen and aldermen write their names on the back of bills and that ends the suits. I have seen hundreds of such countersigned bills. They pour into courts and the prosecutor's office with every mail."

SALES TAX NETS STATE 17 MILLIONS LAST 6 MONTHS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The state's two per cent sales tax netted approximately $17,500,000 for unemployment relief the last six months of 1933, according to figures announced today by K. L. Ames Jr., director of the department of finance.

The amount paid to the Illinois Emergency Relief fund for allocation to the counties of the state embraces 98 per cent of the total collection for the six months, amounting to $17,834,118.28. The balance of the sum collected was left in the general revenue fund to cover the costs of collection. The totals received each month follow:

July	$2,211,133.84
August	2,978,377.10
September	3,044,046.82
October	3,002,386.29
November	2,985,184.25
December	3,522,989.98

The occupation tax is payable on the 15th of the month following the period in which the liability is incurred by the retailers. Consequently, taxes for the month of January, it was pointed out by Director Ames, are not due until Feb. 15.

20,000 FORD WORKERS GIVEN 10 PER CENT BOOST IN THEIR PAY

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Revision of the wage scale affecting about 20,000 employés in the River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor company has been in progress the last two weeks, company officials said today. An increase of an average of 10 per cent has been given these employés.

At present there are about 45,000 employés in the company's Dearborn and Detroit plants, officials said.

The present Ford wage scale varies from $4 to $8.50 daily. Workers in the lower wage bracket have received the majority of the raises.

TAX COLLECTIONS.

Real estate tax collections yesterday were $202,301, making a total of $105,948,264 collected since enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act began on April 28, 1933. The day's collections of real estate taxes and the uncollected taxes for four years follow:

	1928.	1929.
Feb. 6	$ 15,822	$ 31,201
Uncollected	15,356,793	41,112,836
	1930.	1931.
Feb. 6	$ 48,176	$ 107,912
Uncollected	64,986,792	63,015,538

The day's collections of 1931 personal property taxes totaled $2,525.

County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough yesterday denied that excessive fees are exacted in administration of receiverships to collect delinquent real estate taxes under the Kerner-Skarda act. The charge was made in a mandamus petition presented to the Illinois Supreme court on Monday which attacks the constitutionality of the act.

Leave to file the petition was asked by the First of Englewood Bond and Mortgage company, operated in connection with the First National Bank of Englewood. It asks that County Judge Jarecki expunge his orders in a tax receivership case involving an apartment building at 6153-9 Eberhart avenue.

Charges Against Agent.

The bill alleged that J. C. Chutkow, receivership agent of Treasurer McDonough, charged fees of $130.10 on the collection of $400 income from the property. Under a reorganization plan the back taxes of the property were paid before the $400 collected by Chutkow could be applied against the taxes. When return of the $400 was sought, the bill stated, Chutkow made his claim for $130.

Treasurer McDonough said the fees totaled $40.10 and not $130.10. Chutkow had asked for $95 for his services and was allowed only $20. The bill was cut in his office, McDonough said.

McDonough Lists Charges.

"The only charges for receivership in this case were $10 for the agent's bond, $10 for the service of the treasurer's office, $20 for the agent and 10 cents for a tax on checks, McDonough said. "These were approved by Judge Jarecki.

"All of these charges are necessary. It is obvious that the agent should be bonded both for the protection of the property and the county. It is also proper that the cost of the receivership in the treasurer's office should be borne by delinquent taxpayers. Were this not done the cost would be distributed so as to fall on citizens who have paid their bills."

Motor Truck Legislation.

The nature of motor truck legislation to be introduced at the request of the Illinois commerce commission was kept secret yesterday by Chairman Benjamin F. Lindheimer, but it was reported that a per ton mile tax on the motor carriers was under consideration.

At Springfield, Mr. Lindheimer would say only that "the bill will carry regulatory provisions, and it is hoped to secure a substantial amount of revenue by imposing a fair tax on this important industry which has grown so tremendously during the last five years."

Two minor amendments to the inheritance tax law will also be introduced at the request of Attorney General Kerner. These would make technical changes which were left out of the new law adopted by the assembly last year.

NEAR 1924 LEVEL

A persistent drive for economy and elimination of waste has reduced the expenditures of the Chicago school board nearly to the level of the 1934 budget. This was shown yesterday by James B. McCahey, president of the board, who said the operating expenses of the school system in 1933 totaled $37,813,000, as compared with $37,080,264 for 1924.

School retrenchment, demanded by the overburdened taxpayers, was accomplished despite the fact that the average daily attendance of students has increased 62,842 in the last ten years.

The survey of school expenditures has been completed after several weeks of work by Harry Brackett, school auditor, and his assistant, R. L. Douglas. It was stated by school trustees that the figures would be used to show members of the Illinois legislature that the present board has economized and that the day of swollen school budgets is ended. The school trustees have asserted that unless additional revenues are provided through legislation the Chicago schools will be closed.

Expenditures Are Shown.

A table showing the expenditures in the educational, or school operating fund, and average daily attendance over the ten year period follows:

Year—	Expenses.	Number of students.
1924	$37,080,264	384,620
1925	38,230,769	395,281
1926	39,514,018	404,717
1927	41,876,014	414,416
1928	46,609,380	427,852
1929	48,345,080	432,231
1930	48,608,903	440,662
1931	51,357,244	446,070
1932	44,303,599	449,272
1933	37,813,000	447,482

The school board's economy program, adopted last July, and reorganization of the system are reflected in the decrease of $6,550,899 in 1933 expenses as contrasted with those of the previous year. It is estimated that the annual yearly saving on the basis of the retrenchment program will amount to $7,000,000.

Cause of Increased Expense.

A major reason for the increase in expenditures starting in 1927 lay in a change in the operating and maintenance system of the schools.

"Beginning in 1927," said Mr. Brackett in his report, "civil service salaries increased due to a court ruling which abolished the contract system in the operation of school plant and directed the board to hire all employés direct at an increased expenditure of approximately $1,300,000 a year."

When the janitors, engineer custodians, firemen, and other school workers "were placed on a civil service rating in 1927 hundreds of jobs were immediately to be filled by a former administration. Many of the jobs have been weeded out by the new board and new ones have not been created.

The salaries for civic service employés of the school system jumped from $5,476,997 in 1927 to $7,875,211 in 1928 while the peak was reached in 1929 with expenditures of $8,167,055. The estimated salaries of these employés for last year was $6,000,000.

Teachers' Pay Roll Compared.

In 1924 the regular teachers were paid salaries totaling $29,476,873, as contrasted with $28,100,000 in 1933, while special teachers received $756,322 in 1924 and $300,000 last year. Three quarters of the operating expense of the Chicago school system represents teachers' salaries.

The fuel and light expenditures in 1924 were $1,197,368, as compared to $1,350,000 for 1933. The cost of supplies and other expenses, however, decreased from $1,332,830 in 1924 to $1,188,000 last year.

WEST VIRGINIA HOUSE REJECTS RUM REFERENDUM

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Events today indicated that West Virginia eventually may join the states that have a monopoly on liquor sales. The house of delegates rejected a proposal to submit to the voters flat repeal of the state prohibition amendment.

The senate already has approved a constitutional amendment that would vest control of sales in the state itself. There is a strong sentiment for it in the house.

West Virginia was one of the states that ratified national repeal, but cannot vote on its own state amendment until November.

ALDERMEN FIND CATCH IN CITY'S NEW RUM BILL

Revenue from Restaurant Licenses Threatened.

After debating the provisions of a proposed new city liquor ordinance for two hours yesterday the council license committee postponed action until Friday so the members could think it over.

The aldermen faced a dilemma involving the state liquor law and the proposed city ordinance which is intended to replace the present skeleton ordinance governing the sale of liquor in Chicago.

The state law reads: "In restaurants, licensed as such, no liquor can be sold except with meals." The proposed ordinance, drafted by Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph F. Grossman, provides: "It shall not be necessary for any licensee under this article to secure a food dispenser's license to permit any retailer of liquor to sell or serve food."

Aldermen See a Loophole.

The aldermen figured that restaurant keepers who want to sell liquor would operate with only a liquor retailer's license. If they did this they could get around the "meals" provision of the state law, it was pointed out.

The question of city revenue is involved, too. City Collector Kaindl informed the committee that the city has been getting about $200,000 annually in restaurant licenses. While this would not all be lost under the proposed liquor ordinance, it was pointed out that a great many eating places which now sell liquor would probably not take out food licenses as long as they could operate under retail liquor licenses.

1 A. M. Weekday Closing.

Another section of the proposed ordinance would close saloons at 1 a. m. weekdays and 2 a. m. Sundays. Restaurants and clubs would be exempted from these restrictions if their bars obeyed the closing hours.

"That means every saloonkeeper will call his place a restaurant so he can stay open all night," said Ald. Dorsey Crowe [42d].

"And that would bring back the old graft and corruption," added Ald. James J. McDermott [14th].

"Plus the rubber sandwich," finished Crowe.

So the meeting ended with all agreed that they would study the state law and the proposed ordinance until Friday.

14 DRY CASES KEPT ALIVE BY REVENUE LAW

A total of 378 liquor cases and 127 injunction actions will be dismissed in the Chicago district in accordance with Monday's ruling of the United States Supreme court dismissing all prohibition cases not finally adjudicated by Dec. 5.

District Attorney Green announced yesterday that 14 of the 392 cases pending prohibition cases in this district, had been transferred for prosecution under the internal revenue act. Another 17 indictments have been returned under the internal revenue act since last July when the government stopped indicting under the prohibition law.

Only seven prisoners sentenced under the prohibition law from the Chicago district will be freed by the Supreme court ruling, and then only in case their records are free from other criminal offenses. Mr. Green explained that most of the prohibition offenders arraigned during the last year have been dismissed with fines. The first of the major cases scheduled for trial under the internal revenue law is that of John W. Foster, Joseph Kowall and several minor defendants, who are charged with operating a still across the road from the Fox Lake Country club. This case is scheduled for hearing on March 15.

LIQUOR LABELING REGULATIONS ISSUED BY FEDERAL BOARD

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Liquor labeling regulations, primarily designed to prevent fraud, were promulgated tonight by the federal alcohol control administration.

The regulations, which apply to whisky, gin, rum, brandy and cordials, will go into effect March 7 for domestic liquors and April 7 for imported merchandise.

The labels on every bottle must give the liquor's classification with the name and address of the distiller, blender, or the importer. The age or the year and season of the distillation of straight whisky must be shown. In cases of blended or spirit whisky, the label must show the age or the year and recision of the distillation of the youngest whisky.

The regulations contain these prohibitions:

Distilled gin shall not be labeled "double distilled" or "triple distilled"; the word "pure" shall not be used except as a part of the bona fide name of the manufacturer; the words "guaranteed" or "warranted" are barred unless the user provides a legally enforceable guarantee and geographical names, calculated to mislead, are forbidden.

DR. WYNEKOOP'S SECOND TRIAL IS SET FOR FEB. 19

Fails in Plea for an Earlier Date.

The retrial of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop, who is charged with the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta, was set for Feb. 19 yesterday by Judge Harry B. Miller of the Criminal court. The 63 year old defendant, whose collapse caused Judge Joseph B. David to declare a mistrial in the previous trial two weeks ago, apparently was in better health than at any time during that hearing.

Unattended by members of her family, who were constantly at her side during the first trial, Dr. Wynekoop was taken to the courtroom of Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan in a wheel chair. The natural color in her cheeks was in direct contrast to her pallid appearance at previous court hearings.

"Dr. Alice Wynekoop, are you ready for trial?" Judge Finnegan asked.

Ready for Trial, She Says.

The defendant nodded a vigorous affirmative, and Judge Finnegan assigned the case to Judge Miller. As the defendant was wheeled down the corridor she was joined by her son, Walker, who greeted her with a kiss. Dr. Wynekoop, who was attired in the same clothing purchased by her children for the previous trial, was then taken before Judge Miller.

"I assume this lady wants an early trial date," Judge Miller remarked.

"That's true," Defense Attorney W. W. Smith told the court, "but I do not think that I can be ready as early as she desires."

After consulting his trial calendar Judge Miller set the case for Feb. 19, which date was accepted by Attorney Smith and Prosecutor Charles Dougherty. Dr. Wynekoop asked an earlier date, but after some whispered discussion with her attorney agreed on the date set.

Says She's "Very Tired."

Asked how she felt as she was wheeled from the courtroom, Dr. Wynekoop said that she was "very, very tired."

"This waiting is driving me crazy," she added. "I know my own condition and there just isn't any use waiting. My health isn't going to be a bit better two weeks from now than it is today. I want to get the ordeal of this trial over once and for all."

The possibility of a second mistrial was seen as arrangements were made for the date of the second trial. Francis McNamara, jail physician, was skeptical as to the ability of the defendant to stand trial. He said he believed that, due to her high blood pressure, Dr. Wynekoop might have a stroke at any time.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Dewey White, attempt to commit burglary, sentenced to 1 to 5 years in the penitentiary; Edward Sobac, embezzlement, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary by Judge Harry B. Miller.

The report shows that during the month of January the judges disposed of 342 indictments while the grand jury was piling up a total of 430, making a net gain of 88 in the month.

Judges Need Help.

Despite the fact that Chief Justice Philip J. Finnegan of the Criminal court, State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, the January grand jury, and Attorney Frank J. Loesch, veteran battler against crime and president of the Chicago Crime commission, have appealed to the executive committees of the Circuit and Superior courts for additional judges, no help has as yet been received in the Criminal court. Judge Finnegan was promised two additional judges, although he asked for at least four more judges, but as yet they have not made an appearance in the Criminal court.

Since Judge John Prystalski started the crime war while chief justice last August the judges made steady progress, until the last month when burdened with long trials. On Oct. 1 there were 989 cases pending, 841 on Nov. 1, 695 on Dec. 1, 574 on Jan. 1 and 662 on Feb. 1.

"The longer the judges allow this condition to exist the more judges it will ultimately take to catch up with the dockets," said Judge Finnegan yesterday after being apprised of the statistics. "The judges now in the court have worked diligently to keep up the pace, but because of the many big cases now in progress or just finished, it was impossible to keep abreast of the grand jury without additional help."

Prosecutor Places Blame.

Prosecutor Courtney was outspoken in placing the blame for the slip back in the crime drive on the failure to provide enough judges to keep up the pace originally set in the crime war.

"We have been going at top speed in the drive against criminals," said the prosecutor. "It is our policy to keep up that pace until we have cleaned the dockets and can assure speedy trials for all who commit crimes. The judges of the Superior and Circuit courts must keep up their end by supplying sufficient judges not only to keep up with the grand jury, but to cut down each month on the accumulated cases. The responsibility belongs to the judges and they should shoulder it."

It was pointed out in the prosecutor's office that the county board appropriated Monday $40,000 for the employment of country judges at $20 per day. This should release judges from the civil branches to fill in at the Criminal courts until the important cases are tried and the dockets cleaned up, it was said. It was also recalled that last fall the executive committees of the Superior and Circuit courts promised to assign enough judges to the Criminal court to clean the dockets "once and for all."

BRANDY MAKERS GIVE UP MARKET TO BOOTLEGGERS

Newark, N. J., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Laird Distilling company of Scobeyville, the state's oldest makers of applejack, reported to Beverage Commissioner Burnett that the activities of applejack bootleggers has forced the firm to suspend marketing its product in New Jersey. The bootleggers have done "irreparable damage" to the firm's reputation, officials said, buy buying up empty Laird bottle, refilling them with a bootleg product, and then selling it under the Laird label without paying either state or federal taxes.

SUMMON HOOVER AIDS BEFORE AIR PROFITS INQUIRY

Both Navy and Postoffice Involved.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Revelations of large profits made by airplane companies on government contracts intensified the congressional hunt for evidences of fraud and favoritism in aircraft dealings during the Hoover administration.

Before the special senate committee investigating postal subsidies to air mail operators, testimony was given showing profits made by United Aircraft subsidiaries. Similar evidence before a house naval affairs subcommittee caused the committee to decide to call before it former Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams and two of his former assistants.

May Cancel Contracts.

On the floor of the senate the prediction was made that President Roosevelt would cancel air mail contracts which had been shown to have been arrived at through "scandalous operations."

Preparations were being made for next Friday when William P. MacCracken Jr., Harris M. Hanshue, president of Western Air Express; Gilbert M. Givvin, Western Air Express employé, and L. H. Brittin, vice president of Northwest Airways, are to be haled before the bar of the senate to answer charges of contempt for having removed from MacCracken's files correspondence demanded by the senate investigating committee.

Meanwhile, agents of the district attorney's office, with a view to possible criminal prosecution, were studying the senate committee's records, paying particular attention, it was reported, to evidence concerning a conference of air mail operators called by former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown. It has been charged in the senate that the conference was to allot air mail routes and contracts in violation of the law requiring competitive bidding.

Call Former Navy Secretaries.

Chairman John J. Delaney [Dem., N. Y.], chairman of the house naval affairs subcommittee investigating naval airplane and engine contracts, announced that his committee had decided to summon former Secretary Adams and former Assistant Secretaries David S. Ingalls and Edward P. Warner. The three will be asked to testify concerning contracts let prior to last March.

Mr. Delaney said the committee wished to learn why the navy had continued to award contracts after audits had shown huge profits were being made by the companies. According to information given the committee the Pratt & Whitney company made a 50 per cent profit on orders for engines amounting to some 10 million dollars.

Before the senate committee, W. E. Boeing, chairman of the United Aircraft board, told how as the result of his services in the development of aircraft and in stock dealings over 19 years he had received a total of more than 12 million dollars.

Cites Large Profits.

Chairman Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] stated that the records of the Boeing Airplane Manufacturing company showed that on two million dollars' worth of army contracts in 1931 the company had made a profit of more than 43 per cent. In 1930, on government contracts, Senator Black said, the Pratt & Whitney company, a United subsidiary, had made a profit of nearly 82 per cent.

Meanwhile, in the senate, Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.], chairman of the senate postal committee, predicted that air mail contracts now in existence would be canceled. The statement was called forth when a pending bill by the senator concerning cancellation of postal subsidies came up for consideration. Senator McKellar suggested that action upon it be postponed at least until the Black committee had concluded its inquiry.

"The bill was introduced last year," he said. "Since then committee investigations have shown that those of us who then informed the country about the scandalous operations in connection with postal subsidies were absolutely right."

See Revenge in Move to Beat Dr. Copeland in Senate Race

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Roosevelt administration maneuvers to prevent renomination of Senator Royal S. Copeland [Dem., N. Y.], a prominent opponent of the St. Lawrence waterway treaty, are interpreted by many politicians as a none too subtle hint to other Democratic senators of what they may expect if they vote against this pet project of the President's.

Senators have been given to understand that there is nothing closer to the President's heart than this scheme for the development of navigation and waterpower of the St. Lawrence, in a partnership with Canada in which the United States will bear the larger portion of the cost. The President is represented as believing that the St. Lawrence seaway will add to his fame as much as did the Panama canal to that of his famous fifth cousin.

Scramble for Votes.

Administration managers now are scrambling for the remaining votes needed to put the treaty across. They assert they have all but five of the 64 senators required for ratification. On the basis of his counting noses, however, Senator Copeland asserts that the treaty is doomed. He says there are only 46 senators either committed to the measure or in doubt.

For some time it has been political gossip that the administration is putting "the heat" on senators opposing the treaty. Some are reputed to have been brought into line already by distribution or promises of patronage or recovery expenditure pork. Attention now is centered on those Democratic senators still standing out against the treaty who are candidates for reelection next fall, and therefore are subject to the same sort of punishment as that meted out to Dr. Copeland.

List of Recalcitrants.

These Democratic recalcitrants are:

Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia.
Tom Connally of Texas.
William H. King of Utah.
Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee.
Hubert D. Stephens of Mississippi.
Park Trammell of Florida.
David I. Walsh of Massachusetts.

Whether any of them will weaken as the result of the hint of administration vengeance thrown out in the case of Senator Copeland was a matter of speculation in the purlieus of the senate today. Some of them are strong enough politically at home to defy the administration.

Hi Johnson Rewarded.

Senator Hiram Johnson [Radical, Cal.] already has been rewarded for his support of the President in the St. Lawrence treaty and other matters. Postmaster General Farley, Democratic national chairman, has announced that there will be no Democratic opposition to the reelection of Senator Johnson, who will be a candidate in the Republican primary.

Still on the anxious seat are Senators Robert M. La Follette [Radical, Wis.], and Bronson Cutting [Radical, N. M.], both of whom are supporting the treaty and both of whom are hoping for Democratic indorsement for reelection. Senator La Follette made a speech in the senate last week praising the President fulsomely.

With respect to indorsement of Young Bob, however, the administration has been given pause by the Wisconsin Democrats, who insist they have a gilt edged chance of beating him if the administration will keep hands off.

Aroused Tugwell's Ire.

It was not only his opposition to the St. Lawrence treaty that caused the administration to sour on Dr. Copeland. The senator had aroused the ire of Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Rexford Guy Tugwell, leading member of the Roosevelt brain trust, by performing a surgical operation on the Tugwell food and drug bill.

It might have been a different statement had Mr. Roosevelt been free to speak personally and not as President of the United States. For when he was a stripling in the New York legislature, a young country gentleman from Hyde Park, he lunged headlong into a fight to beat Tammany's candidate for the senate, "Blue Eyed Billy" Sheehan.

Conway, considerably older and more influential than Roosevelt was lieutenant governor, and threw his upstate strength over to his youthful ally.

Since then fortune has sent Mr. Roosevelt to the top. Conway, though an able lawyer, was thwarted in later efforts to go to the senate. Knowing of the friendly feeling toward him at the White House and also of the coolness toward Senator Copeland in some administration quarters, he has, at the age when most men are thinking of retiring to quiet seclusion, elected to enter a scrimmage against the man who ran ahead of Alfred E. Smith in 1928.

SUIT FOR WAGES UNDER NRA CODE HEARD BY COURT

A suit for wages and overtime under the NRA code was heard yesterday by Municipal Judge Edward B. Casey. James Williams, colored, of 353 East 56th street, is demanding $175 from his former employers, the owners of the Rienzi Valet company of 610 Diversey parkway. The case was continued to Feb. 26.

Williams testified that he was employed as a clothes presser when the cleaning establishment signed the NRA code last summer. Under the code the company agreed to pay its employés a minimum wage of $15 for a 44 hour week. Williams said his wages were kept at $12 and that he was forced to work 72 hours a week.

The defendants' Blue Eagle has since been taken from them.

MOLEY PRAISES CHICAGO'S WAR AGAINST CRIME

Complimenting Chicago on its war against crime, Prof. Raymond J. Moley, former adviser to President Roosevelt and now a magazine editor, yesterday predicted that the NRA will prove to be the greatest foe of the criminal racketeer. He spoke before the Rotary club at noon and at the University of Chicago last night.

"Chicago has done more than any other city in the battle against crime, and it should be proud," he declared. "The national recovery act has given business its opportunity to stamp out racketeering. Business will present a massed front against the organized criminal and he cannot prosper as when he was dealing with the individual merchant.

"What is needed in the war against crime is not so much changes in the law as more efficiency among enforcers of the law. A criminal must be caught before he can be punished. The police must be professionalized and divorced from politics."

In his address last night Prof. Moley gave a picture of what he described as the probable future of the two great political parties under the New Deal. He declared the only hope for the Republican party was to adopt the best features of the recovery program and to make for a share in the management of the plan.

DANGER SEEN IN SHORT WORK DAY BY PROFESSOR

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—While agreeing strongly with economists regarding the need for shorter working hours and higher wages as an economic necessity, the Rev. Dr. John A. Ryan, C. S. C., head of the University of Notre Dame department of history, today declared that any such move will raise a serious moral problem.

"History has shown time and again," said Father Ryan, "that the axiom, 'an idle mind is the devil's workshop,' is true. If people work only 30 hours a week or five hours a day for six days, we must devise some form of recreation, especially for the young unmarried workers.

"The only sure cure for the moral ills bound to follow such a plan is some program of occupation, preferably intensive recreation of some sort."

Ever see a cat in MOLASSES?

AN ENGINE WITH STICKY, 'COLD THICKENED' OIL IN THE CRANKCASE BEHAVES IN JUST THE SAME WAY!

New Winter Grade Iso-Vis "D" frees engines from costly winter drag, gives quicker starting, reduces gasoline cost.

Just as molasses on a cat's feet holds the cat back—the wrong grade of winter oil holds back your engine. It gets thick and sticky in cold weather, clutches pistons and cylinder walls, makes starting harder, and uses up gasoline power.

Get rid of winter drag—use new winter grades Iso-Vis "D" motor oils, 10-W and 20-W. They resist thickening and permit your engine to be cranked rapidly at low temperatures—let it turn over faster, allow it to start more quickly.

Because they end winter drag these new winter grades save you gasoline money. Your pistons use all their power in driving the wheels, not in overcoming the friction of stiff, heavy oil. You may save as much as several miles per gallon.

These new winter grades pour in sub-zero weather. They do not thin out dangerously under heat. They will not sludge. Change to this easy-starting, drag-free oil now—at your nearest Standard Station.

ISO-VIS "D" . . . . . 25¢ a qt.
PLUS FEDERAL TAX . . . . . 1¢ a qt.
TOTAL . . . . . 26¢ a qt.

MOLASSES ON A CAT'S FEET may be amusing, but not to the cat. It slows him down. What has molasses to do with winter starting? Let's look at the next picture.

THE OIL GETS MOLASSY TOO. The wrong winter oil gets thick and sticky in cold weather, clutches your engine, clings to pistons and cylinders, slows down starting, makes the going harder.

NO MOLASSES, NO DRAG HERE. Not when you use new winter grade Iso-Vis "D". It resists thickening, does not get sticky from cold. It ends winter drag, gives your engine free play in bitterest cold.

QUICKER STARTS—MORE MILEAGE. Ending winter drag lets your motor turn over faster and start quicker. It takes a load off your engine, gives as much as 2 extra miles per gallon of gasoline.

U. S. GRAND JURY HUNTS GRAFT IN ARMY CONTRACT

10 Million Easy Money for Trucks Scanned.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Still another major scandal heaped up on the New Deal today as a federal grand jury began an inquiry into charges that a conspiracy was afoot to grab off a 10 million dollar easy money contract for army trucks.

In contrast to other scandals which have harassed administration officials of late, and which have been marked by frankness on the part of department heads, this newest inquiry is marked by much mystery and secrecy.

There were reports that officials of the government were involved, but that this end of the scandal was to be hushed up and the blame fastened entirely upon a sublimated junk peddler, Joe Silverman, who for years has been hanging around the war department trying to sell his odds and ends to the government.

Dealer in Surplus Supplies.

In the past Silverman has bought up surplus supplies of the department, such as raincoats, flannel underdrawers, and the like, and last spring he was under investigation for trying to peddle the same items back to the government for the use of the CCC boys.

The present scandal concerns the purchase of 10 million dollars of equipment with which to bring the motorization of the army up to date. The money was supplied through the public works administration, but its expenditure is directed through the office of Assistant Secretary of War Harry F. Woodring.

Mr. Woodring was the first witness before the grand jury today, but he declined to issue any comment concerning the matter. He even refused to see newspaper reporters, sending out word through a secretary that he had nothing to say.

Dern Interview Vague.

Secretary of War Dern granted an interview, but he was vague and uncertain, and had little to reveal except that he had asked for the inquiry to be made, and that he hoped it would disclose fully whatever lobbying had been done in his department. He refused to discuss the charges against Silverman.

Mr. Dern added plaintively that rumors have been broadcast lately that he would soon resign from the cabinet, and he could not see why such rumors would be spread except by some individuals who might desire to have him "out of the way."

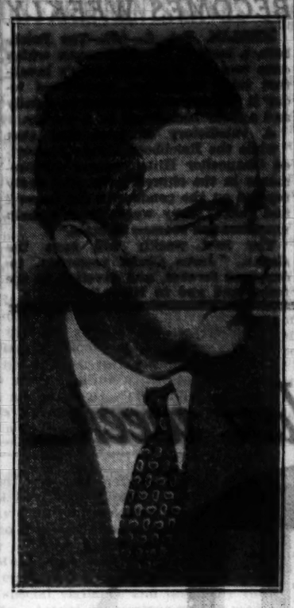
It was learned, however, that the complaint of wrong doing was not made to Mr. Dern, but to President Roosevelt directly, and that the order for an investigation was issued by Secretary Dern after the White House had brought the charges to his attention.

First Announcement Monday.

First announcement of the Silverman inquiry was made at 11 o'clock last night by Assistant Attorney General William Stanley in the presence of Woodring.

At the same time Stanley gave out a copy of an order by Woodring barring Silverman from further contacts with the war department, and requiring that all persons visiting Woodring's office in the future register their names, addresses, and firms. A copy of this registry is to be given weekly to Secretary Dern, a circumstance which also was unexplained.

ACCUSED OF FRAUD



CARL HARNED.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Carl Harned, 41 years old, 12414 South State street, former investigator for the Secret Six, was arrested last night on charges of having defrauded the Illinois emergency relief commission out of at least $1,300 during the year and a half he was head of the commission's tabulating department. He was discharged last August and has been under investigation ever since, according to James A. Patterson, attorney for the commission.

The attorney said Harned committed the frauds by altering cancelled orders for food and selling them for cash.

Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin, who questioned Harned at the detective bureau, said he probably would take the case to the grand jury today.

INDIANA COLLEGE HEADS OPPOSE RELIEF SYSTEM

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Federal government plans to provide part time employment for college students will have to be modified drastically if Indiana colleges take advantage of the offer, leading Indiana schoolmen agreed here today.

Twenty-five presidents and representatives of higher educational institutions pronounced the federal program "unworkable." The meeting adopted resolutions urging modification of the instructions and interpretations by Washington of unclear sections.

The chief target was the provision that schools taking advantage of the government offer waive payment of all fees. Although willing to coöperate to keep students in college, the educators contended that under this arrangement the schools would not only lose money, but campus dissension would develop.

NYE CALLS FOR NAMES OF NRA CODE FRAMERS

Republicans Make Attack on New Deal.

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Republican senators bent on finding the weak spots in the administration recovery program continued their attack today by means of two resolutions, the first seeking to learn whether representatives of big business were guiding the formulation of National Recovery administration codes, the second calling for detailed information concerning the functions of numerous New Deal agencies.

The drive begun against the NRA on the ground that it served big business and worked harm on small enterprises was carried another step in a resolution proposed by Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota radical. With Senator William E. Borah, Idaho insurgent, Senator Nye has been among the foremost in fighting Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA head, over the recovery act's repeal of anti-trust provisions.

Demands Names of All Involved.

In his resolution, the North Dakota senator demanded the names of all persons employed in the NRA's vast organization, together with their present and past business connections and the codes which they have helped draw up.

In the case of former officials of the NRA, the resolution demanded further to know what positions such officials now hold and whether they have been selected by any industries as the authorities to administer codes now in effect. The resolution also required the submission to the senate of the names of all code authorities and their business connections.

Senate Democrats immediately rushed to defend the administration and through Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, majority leader, succeeded in forestalling the immediate consideration of the resolution which Senator Nye demanded. But the North Dakota senator gave notice that he would call the resolution up for action tomorrow.

Second Resolution Passes.

The second Republican resolution was successful in passing the senate. Introduced by Senator Frederick Steiwer [Rep., Ore.], the resolution asked for full information concerning the creation, organization, and functions of the Surplus Relief corporation, the Commodity Credit corporation, the Federal Housing corporation, the corporation set up to finance the purchase of electric appliances in the Tennessee valley, and the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

SMALL BUSINESS MEN SUFFER MOST UNDER NEW DEAL—CAPPER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Senator Capper [Rep., Kas.] declared today that he felt the small industries and small business men were "the forgotten people of the new deal" and asserted that some NRA codes appeared to be written "in the interest of big business and against the interest of the little business."

"If the abrogation of the anti-trust laws for those who have signed the codes," he said, "means that big business is going to grow still bigger; that ownership and control, instead of being more scattered over the country, is going to be centralized still more—then either congress made a terrible mistake in repealing the anti-trust laws for that purpose, or some one is making a mistake that amounts to an economic crime in administering the codes."

Capper said he understood plans were practically complete to extend some credit, through the RFC and mortgage companies, organized for that purpose, to the small industries of the country.

"But I want to say right now," he added, "that unless the little industry, the little business man, is also given protection against big business monopoly, the extension of credit will do him more harm than good."

GREAT LAKES IS CUT FROM NAVY BILL BY SENATE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The senate appropriations committee today reported the naval appropriations bill with the proposed appropriation of $365,697, which would make possible the reopening of the Great Lakes naval training station near Waukegan, Ill., cut to approximately $38,700.

The bill had already passed the house. The senate amendment would provide money for maintaining the station only without training activity.

At the same time the committee reported another amendment which would provide $252,000 for the reopening of the naval training station at Newport, R. I.

Illinois members of congress immediately started efforts to defeat the Great Lakes amendment. Representative Buckbee [Rep.] of Rockford, Ill., expressed hopes he would be able to gather enough strength during the next few days to make possible the Waukegan station's reopening.

Representative Simpson [Rep.] of Wadsworth, Ill., in whose district the station is located, said he intended to do whatever possible to defeat the senate amendment.

STARLINGS DEFY POLICE; ROOST ON U. S. CAPITOL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The powers that be decided starlings should not roost on the capitol. Fifteen policemen with pistols and blank cartridges mobilized.

"Fire!" Capt. William S. Orthman shouted.

Several hundred starlings flew away. The policemen ran up the steps. They fired again. More starlings flew away. The policemen ran down the steps. They fired, and still more starlings flew away.

Just as Capt. Orthman was about to decide that he had fought it out on that line, he looked at the senate and house wings of the capitol.

There sat the starlings. They had not really gone any place; had just taken a little spin.

In a few minutes they all roosted just where they had intended to roost—on the dome of the capitol.

Dead Doctor Heals Stomach Ailments

A weird story is told of a well-known specialist reaching from the grave to curb stomach suffering. Years ago this doctor created a prescription for acid stomach, gas pains, heartburn, indigestion, bloating, belching, and other symptoms when caused by excess acid. Then the good doctor died. But his name brought fame after death as one user told another of his wonderful prescription. In the past six years, 54,169 grateful persons have written letters telling of their recoveries. This prescription is now known to hundreds of thousands as the Udga treatment. All stomach sufferers may have a free sample by writing to Udga, Suite B, Foot-Schulze Bldg., St. Paul, Minn. The seven-day trial box of Udga Tablets is sold under a money-back guarantee of satisfaction by all good druggists.

U. S. DENIES JAP ALLEGATION OF CHINESE AIR PACT

Officials Scoff at Idea of Secret Treaty.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—(AP)—State department officials denied emphatically today that any secret treaty existed between the United States and China for the development of Chinese aviation.

"Everybody knows the United States makes no secret treaties," a prominent state department official said. "Commercial aviation developments assisted by foreign capital have been going on in China for a long time and so far as the United States government knows they are private enterprises."

Japs Probe Treaty.

TOKIO, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Koki Hirota, foreign minister, told the house of peers today that Japan is endeavoring to learn whether a secret treaty exists between the United States and China which obliges Americans to assist in China's aviation development.

The foreign minister said the foreign office and the Japanese army also are seeking to determine whether American financial participation in the new airlines southward from Shanghai constitutes a violation of China's promises to Japan not to alienate any portion of the Fukien seacoast.

[The Pan-American Airways, the international United States airline, recently went into partnership with the Chinese government to establish an air route in China. Mail and passenger planes, piloted by Americans, are now in regular operation over the routes.]

Sees Violation of Pledge.

Hirota's statement was in answer to a question by Atsushi Okaike, who asserted that the new Chinese airways with American backing has been establishing air bases at Amoy and elsewhere in Fukien province from which bombing planes could easily attack Formosa.

"If these assertions are correct it appears that China is violating her pledge not to employ foreign capital in the establishment of military bases along the Fukien coast, but careful investigation is necessary to determine whether the airplanes are commercial or military."

Air Firm Issues Denial.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Officials of Pan-American Airways, which is half owner of the Chinese air route, said today that any possible secret treaty between the United States and China for the development of aviation "is so secret that we don't know anything about it."

ORDER NAZIS TO STOP MOLESTING JEW IN BUSINESS

[Copyright: 1934: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—Instructions were issued today by Dr. Wilhelm Frick, minister of interior, to the chief administrative officers of the reich and to the governors of the several states, to see that German Jews lawfully engaged in business remain unmolested by Nazi zealots. Herman Wilhelm Goering, premier of Prussia, it is officially announced, underlined these directions in rescripts to the administrative personnel of Prussia.

Dr. Frick emphasizes "although the Aryan legislation was necessary for national and political reasons, the reich government itself set bounds to its application. Observance of these is equally essential. It would be especially inappropriate or even dangerous to extend the Aryan paragraph of the civil service and liberal professions to domains for which it was never intended." Such a domain, Dr. Frick continues, is particularly the sphere of private business enterprise.

"To make laws is exclusively a prerogative of the reich government," Dr. Frick concludes. "So far the government has not outlawed German Jews from business enterprise and unless it does public authorities must support the law as it stands."

Hungary and Soviet Russia Agree to Resume Relations

BUDAPEST, Feb. 6.—(AP)—An agreement for resumption of diplomatic relations between Hungary and soviet Russia was signed today in Rome, an official announcement said. A trade delegation from Hungary is expected to leave soon for Moscow. Hungary refused relations with Russia after suppressing communism here, the government fearing its return.

Britain to Send Arms Envoy on Tour of European Capitals

LONDON, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Great Britain is following up its new disarmament proposals with an urgent effort to make sure they are completely understood by the governments affected, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon told the house of commons today.

Sir John said the government is sending Anthony Eden, lord privy seal, to the continent as soon as possible to hear the views of other administrations.

Sir John said also that Germany's claim to equal arms rights "could not and should not be resisted" and that the bothersome disarmament problem must be solved within a new treaty.

Action Delayed by France.

Capt. Eden, he went on, would have left immediately after the British memorandum was sent to the various nations last week in which arms reductions were advocated, but the French political situation necessitated consideration of the French government's convenience "as to the earliest date at which a visit could be made."

Germany's claim to equality, the foreign secretary contended, should be recognized "because there is little likelihood there will be peace in the world if you endeavor to put a great country and race under an inferior jurisdiction."

The question must be answered within a new convention, Sir John went on. He added that "no drastic solution" could be found on the basis "of all nations throughout the world immediately abandoning all weapons denied Germany under the Versailles treaty."

Hints at Arms Race.

If a prompt agreement is not reached, he said, Great Britain would have to "consider its disarmament position—if she had to live in a world of unlimited armaments."

After examining the German and French viewpoints with the remark that "we must look at both sides," Sir John said the British proposals were not put forward in disregard of the need and claims of others, but in "a spirit of realism."

An attempt will be made by Great Britain, Sir John announced, to provide a basis for security agreement. Capt. Eden will visit Paris, Rome, and Berlin "as soon as possible."

"Any new convention," Sir John continued, "must face some new rearmament by Germany. But the British government would view with repugnance a settlement which provided for equality in rights without any disarmament in any corner of the world.

Determined on Agreement.

"Great Britain is resolved to bring about, despite all difficulties, an international agreement on disarmament to strengthen in every possible and practical way the peace structure of the world, and so deliver ourselves and others from the dangers and burdens that would follow a final failure to agree."

At the outset he said confidential bilateral conversations on disarmament were useful, but were in "danger" of exhausting their utility.

"Although serious difficulties still exist," he maintained, "there has been a sufficiently greater approach to a common ground and sufficient encouragement to justify a new effort at reconciliation by the British government."

An "accommodation" between France and Germany he called the key to the situation, but he added it would be a mistake to infer that a Franco-German agreement was most likely to be promoted by permitting France and Germany, unassisted, to work out one between themselves.

4 BALKAN LANDS UNITE TO FIGHT BORDER CHANGES

Treaty to Be Signed at Athens Tomorrow.

BY EUGENE SPECK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ATHENS, Feb. 6.—The Greek government today began dusting off the tables in the Grande Salle academy for the culmination of a diplomatic coup which it is hoped will stabilize the biggest part of the Balkan frontier wrangle.

Preparations are being made for the signing of a Balkan pact, which already has been initialed by the foreign ministers of Greece, Turkey, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia. It will be formally signed Thursday at Athens.

The occasion is considered of the utmost importance to this part of the world. It puts on paper a solemn agreement to preserve mutual boundaries between Greece, Turkey, Jugo-Slavia and Rumania.

Draws Ring Around Bulgaria.

This draws a ring around Bulgaria, which has had frontier or minority disputes with all its neighbors, but chiefly with Greece. Greece, since the treaty of Lausanne, has legally sustained claims shutting off Bulgaria from the Aegean sea. Bulgaria also has a quarrel with Jugo-Slavia over the treatment of a large Bulgar minority there.

Demetrius Maximos, Greek foreign minister, and Foreign Minister Dr. Tevfik Rushdi Bey of Turkey arrived in Athens today. They will be followed on Thursday by Foreign Minister Nicholas Titulescu of Rumania and Bogoljub Jevtic, foreign minister of Jugo-Slavia. The latter two will arrive but a few minutes before the ink is put on the paper of the pact. The inscriptions will be followed by a series of banquets, receptions, and balls to finish throwing dirt on top of the buried hatchet.

There is some question, however, as to whether the agreement does not somewhere carry the germ of further conflict. One rumor of this was reported in the Athens press today. Not only Bulgaria is left out, but Albania also. Their frontiers, for the purposes of the treaty, will be held to be non-Balkan.

Bars Mussolini from Balkans.

And, despite the pacific intent voiced in the preamble of the treaty, which refers to the Kellogg anti-war pact, it is reported that the treaty freezes Premier Mussolini of Italy out of the Balkans forever. It is denied that the treaty provides for military sanctions, yet it is said there is an agreement for concerted action by the signatories if a third party interferes through Albania.

This refers to Mussolini, his well known coldness towards the league of nations, and any Italian sympathy for the late enemies of the allies, Germany and Bulgaria.

Spain to Free 4 Americans from Mallorca Jail Today

MADRID, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The official government gazette said tonight that the four Americans held in jail at Palma, Mallorca, for assaulting a civil guard would be released about 9 a. m., tomorrow.

GIRLS BARRICADE SELVES TO HALT SCHOOL SEIZURE

MEXICO, D. F., Feb. 6.—(AP)—More than 100 schoolgirls, supported by some of their parents, barricaded themselves in the Santa Teresa school today in defiance of a government order for seizure of the property. Police armed with rifles surrounded the school but made no attempt to enter by force pending instructions.

A temporary injunction to prevent government action for at least 72 hours was obtained by Senorita Conception Maya, the principal, who protested to the federal district court that the rent of the school had been paid and that there was no legal ground for the seizure. All religious institutions became the property of the government under article 27 of the constitution of 1917, and the ministry of finance ordered the school seized Sunday because officials said the rent was not paid.

Beds, bed springs, pianos, sewing machines, and other heavy articles were placed against the doors by the girl students, who declared they would die of hunger before leaving. They were joined later by several of their fathers, who were reported to be armed.

Three Bombers of Jugo-Slav Officers Sentenced to Die

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Three terrorists convicted of bombing the officers' casino here Sept. 30, 1932, today were sentenced to death. One of them is still a fugitive.

FORMER KAISER'S FAVORITE PAPER BECOMES WEEKLY

BERLIN, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Reichbote, a leading Prussian organ which once was the imperial family's breakfast table newspaper, announced today it will cease publication as a daily and appear henceforth as a weekly.

A valedictory editorial said that "while the Reichbote always supported Chancellor Hitler, recent developments in the church have profoundly reacted on the conduct of the paper" and that "many words must remain unspoken for reasons of state."

The new weekly will have the slogan, "Jesus Christ yesterday, today, and forever, and devotion to the fatherland and to Hitler."

FREE CITY OF DANZIG IS SEIZED BY NAZIS; DICTATOR IS NAMED

FREE CITY OF DANZIG, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Danzig went Nazi today when the Nazi-dominated senate appointed a state commissioner to take over the functions of the city council.

The procedure was much like that followed in the city of Berlin when Adolf Hitler's Nazis seized power in the reich. At that time, finding the city council with its then anti-Nazi majority was a stumbling block to Hitler's will in the German capital, the Prussian government appointed a state commissioner to run the city.

Today Hans Eggert was named state commissioner of Danzig and his duties are officially defined as:

"Making those decisions which otherwise would devolve upon the city council. The Danzig council is not composed of members who guarantee the execution of the necessary measures for compassing the desires of the state and the people."

The Free City of Danzig is politically important because of its location at the "bottle neck" of Pomorze, the narrow strip of land by which Poland divides Prussia.

Warns "Fences" to Quit Business or Be Jailed

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.

Stolen, 36; recovered, 46; stripped, 10 [from police records for 24 hours ending at midnight Monday].

All "fences" for stolen automobiles or accessories must get out of business or go to jail, Judge Joseph A. Graber in the automobile court declared yesterday as he vacated a fine of $100 imposed on James Duda, 42 years old, 741 West 47th street. The fine was vacated after the police had verified the statement of Duda, who was convicted of receiving a stolen automobile battery, that he had given up his junk business.

Accused of Getting Stolen Property; Bond Forfeited

Judge Joseph A. Graber in Automobile court yesterday forfeited the $4,000 bond of Robert Lutz, 59 years old, operator of a gasoline station at Grand and Ogden avenues, who was arraigned two weeks ago on a charge of receiving stolen property. At that time Ald. Frank E. Konkowski, representing Lutz, said that his client was suffering from paresis. A representative of Ald. Konkowski who appeared yesterday said that Lutz had been placed in a private sanitarium and asked that the charge be dismissed. Judge Graber ruled that the defendant should be in a public institution, forfeited his bond, and issued a capias for Lutz's arrest.

REPORTERS FACE EXILE FOR NEWS HINTING RED PLOT

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Institute of Journalists today retained an attorney to defend two reporters for the newspaper "El Mercurio" who face possible deportation for writing dispatches saying a number of men had been arrested in a suspected communistic plot. Dispatches which the reporters, Paul Cuevas and Alfreda Aranda, filed Jan. 29 were not sent by a telegraph company. But the government, denying existence of a plot, utilized extraordinary powers granted President Arturo Alessandri by congress, and arrested the newspapermen on a charge of committing an offense against the internal security of the state.

Ex-Convict Accused of New Year's Eve Murder

A coroner's jury yesterday named Joe La Porte, 35 years old, reputed member of the "42" gang and ex-convict on parole from Joliet penitentiary, as the slayer of Reginald Henion, 32 years old, 9052 Washington boulevard. John Kirkpatrick, 907 Argyle street, identified a photograph of La Porte as the bandit who shot Henion on New Year's eve during the robbery of a saloon at 2023 South Racine avenue. Henion thought the holdup a joke and refused to comply with a command to raise his hands.

Empty Your Gall Bladder

And You'll Feel Like a Billion Dollars!

Sleepless nights, dog-tired days, headaches, pains in all parts of the body—indigestion—gas. Do you suffer from one or all?

And have you tried every medicine under the sun, only to find yourself back where you started?

No wonder, for you, like thousands of others have probably been treating yourself for everything but the right thing. Get at the unsuspected cause—your gall bladder. If sluggish, it won't pour into your small intestines the most important digestive juice necessary for neutralizing gastric acid, quickening digestion and disinfecting the intestinal tract. If this juice doesn't flow freely, then your food sours, putrefies, stomach becomes filled with gas and acidity.

From the world's greatest chemists comes a simple, pleasant means to make this digestive juice flow freely, and put you on the sunny side of life. Magnesia Oxoids, little white tablets that release pure oxygen. This amazing oxygen—purifies your blood as you breathe—plus magnesia, gently stimulates the gall bladder, neutralizes burning acidity and sweeps the poison-encrusted bowels clean.

Take two Oxoids after each meal—and before retiring—drink plenty of water—put your gall bladder to work—and you'll jump out of your skin for joy, flush new health! Such robust vigor! Get Magnesia Oxoids today from your druggist.—Advertisement.

Flush Poisons From Kidneys and Stop Getting Up Nights

When you can get for 35 cents a supremely efficient stimulant and diuretic that will flush from your kidneys the waste matter, poisons and acid that are now doing you harm, why continue to break your restful sleep by getting up through the night. Just ask your druggist for Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules—but be sure and get GOLD MEDAL, right from Haarlem in Holland, which is also successfully used to drive excess urid acid from the body—the aggravation of sciatica, neuritis, lumbago and rheumatic pains.

MEXICO OPENS 6 YEAR PLAN TO STABILIZE NATION

Plans Big Program for Betterment of People.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 6.—Mexico's six year plan is expected by its proponents to guide the country to economic and social stability by 1940. This plan was adopted at a recent convention of the National Revolutionary party, which controls the country with an iron hand. The plan is being prepared for use in the presidential campaign which comes to a climax in October.

The plan is of international significance and is commercial as well as political. It sets a policy in advance for the new president, who is likely to be Lazaro Cardenas, candidate of the ruling party. The view of this group is that if it is to continue in peaceful control six years longer, the electorate must be sufficiently widened and educated to accept election results under a two party system in the future.

Eliminates Individual Rule.

In this respect as well as in an economic way, Mexico is taking the leadership in Latin America. The six year plan eliminates the element of chieftain and individual rule from the national administration and includes among its major projects a steady increase of education in the primary and secondary schools, elevation of wage scales, improvement of sanitation and hygiene, conservation of natural resources, irrigation projects, control of industry, improvement of transportation and building of military strength.

Marines will be put aboard gunboats delivered by Spain this year. A new air regiment will be formed. Three thousand men are at work on the Laredo-Mexico highway, which is to be completed on Columbus day. New hotels and a big tourist drive in the United States are in prospect.

The plan is declared to be "the voice of the people." It says the "state will be the agent to put into activity and order the vital needs of the country and to bring the country peace and integrity."

Calles is "Brains" of Plan.

The head of the party and its brains is former President Plutarco Elias Calles, now in his 56th year, and much appears to depend upon his continuance in power. His power is something like that of the "genro" [elder statesman] in Japan. He is always consulted on important policies, although he holds no office.

In the last abortive attempt at revolution Gen. Calles moved into the palace and took charge. He lives near Chapultepec, golfs every day and is interested in business and farming.

Unlike the genro, however, he is subject to criticism even within his own party, where the left group of the younger element is seeking power. Calles has put a brake on the radicals. Little Socialism is in effect now unless it is the agrarian policy, which many regard as a failure but which goes ahead under political pressure. This giving of small land lots to the villagers out of big estates is in accord with the deepest traditions of the Mexican revolution.

Plan Is Summarized.

Calles says the time has come to form a detailed program of action that "should be based on statistics and lessons of experience. We should study all possibilities and realities."

Unofficial translation of the main points of the six year plan gives the following: Education will have as its purpose the teaching of children to use their conscience and think. There will be liberty to teach under the laws. There will be state control of primary and secondary education, and schools must keep scientifically at work given by the government, which will be nonreligious and Socialist in character. Teachers must be professionally prepared. In 1934 1,000 more schools [there are 10,000 now where there was none 20 years ago] are planned.

About 2,000 more schools are planned each year until 1938. In 1939, 3,000 more will be added. These will be country schools. Commercial schools will be reorganized and given great importance. Sports will be elevated in importance. The university will be relegated to second place in importance, since it is considered that there are already enough lawyers, engineers and doctors.

Estates to Be Divided.

The agrarian budget will be augmented to give irrigation where it is needed. The people will be given possession of their land and water. Big properties will be divided into small holdings and 4,000,000 pesos are to be allotted for continuation of the division of haciendas.

There will be a mixed agrarian commission, with government and peoples' organizations acting instead of local governments. Habitation will be free as will medical assistance, land for domestic cultivation, grass for animals, use of water for family and animals, and permission to take from the mountains anything needed.

The best way to organize and execute these ideas is to form unions, syndicates and federations, the plan states.

Resources to Be Nationalized.

Measures will be taken to conserve forests. All underground resources will be nationalized. Certain zones of mines will be kept for national purposes. Official services will be organized to explore these zones.

No one will be allowed too much land. The national petroleum reserve will be enlarged so that the country may count on it in time of need. This is to prevent foreigners from continuing to grasp all the mineral zones.

Much freedom and help will be given Mexican miners, and there will be special vigilance and tariffs by the state. Actual concessions will be modified by reducing them in the future to the surface of the land in each concession. The good of the country will be kept first.

Public Works Program.

Public works and road construction will be undertaken to stimulate national production and unite the country. The Laredo road will be finished first, then the road from Acapulco to Sonora in the north and connecting with Chiapas in the south. New water conduits will be constructed, especially for Mexico City.

National health and vital statistics will be kept. The national army will enlarge military hospitals, maneuver fields and reorganize for more arms in case of need.

Every individual has the right to work and to satisfy his honest necessities and pleasures. The duty of the country is to give such work. Syndicates should be formed to fight differences between classes. Industry must give cheap and hygienic habitations to workers.

Special Fight on Vice.

The government will organize a special police to fight vice. Homes for the aged will be encouraged and dormitories for the unemployed. An effort will be made to discourage strong drink. The immigration department will allow foreigners to enter the country more easily, with preference given to Latins and those who will help cultivation of the country and help industry. A repatriation service will be organized.

All salaries will be taxed. An increase in death duties will help solve agricultural and educational problems. The Bank of Mexico will be stripped of all political influence and reserves of gold will be increased. Gold will be allowed to circulate.

The foreign office will adopt a policy of brotherly feeling toward Latin-American countries. The nation will declare war only in self-defense.

Cardenas Opens Campaign.

Cordial cooperation will be given all nations which help the country to develop intellectually. Honest activities of foreigners within the country will be helped.

Gen. Cardenas' campaign program, made public today, reiterates much of this basic plan, with emphasis on industrial and agricultural help to be given in the tropical zones. It declares that relations with other countries should be based on sincere friendship, not only with those united by racial and blood ties, but with those peoples united in economic and commercial relations. This was a particular reference to the United States.

The program also proposes special attention to the merchant marine.

Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden yesterday ordered five prisoners held to the grand jury on charges of burglary and set their bonds at a total of $370,000. Twenty-five men and women appeared in the court to identify clothing and jewelry valued at $10,000 as loot taken from their homes. The stolen articles were recovered by the police after the arrest of the gang.

Those held are Gerald Moran, 18 years old, 3917 West Monroe street, son of Police Sergt. William Moran; Acklin Day, 22 years old, 4313 Washington boulevard; Albert Salatos, 45 years old, 526 North Laramie avenue, Day's stepfather; John Webster, 34 years old, 820 North Kedvale avenue, and Albert Meyer, 61 years old, 3844 Wilcox street. The gang committed more than fourteen burglaries, according to Sergt. Thomas Nolan, who testified that Day had confessed after his arrest.

5 FIREMEN AND A POLICEMAN ARE BURNED IN BLAST

Five firemen and a policeman were burned, three of them seriously, when the gasoline tank of an automobile exploded in a welding shop at 4317 Milwaukee avenue yesterday. The machine caught fire while mechanics were applying a blow torch to the frame, and the gas tank exploded as the firemen had gathered around it to quench the blaze. The injured men were taken to the Swedish Covenant hospital.

The victims are Capt. Joseph Szeszycki of Truck No. 23, Firemen Albert Gray, William Gillespie, William Toohy, Edward Lindholm, and Policeman Roy Graham. Capt. Szeszycki was the most seriously injured. All except Gillispie and Toohy were allowed to leave the hospital after their burns were dressed.

Policeman Graham was burned when he entered the shop after the explosion and beat out the flames on Capt. Szeszycki's clothing.

KANSAS SENATE FREES AUDITOR IN BOND FRAUDS

Will J. French Second to Beat Impeachment.

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The second acquittal of a state official impeached as a result of Kansas' million dollar bogus bond scandal was voted by the senate today in the case of state auditor Will J. French. The vote was 18 for conviction and 22 against.

Attorney General Roland Boynton was acquitted of similar charges by the senate two weeks ago.

Several Others Involved.

Three other persons, including former State Treasurer Tom B. Boyd, have been convicted of criminal charges growing out of the manipulations of Ronald Finney, confessed bond faker and market plunger.

Leland Caldwell, former associate of Finney, is now being tried in District court on bond forgery charges, and several other criminal and civil cases await trial in federal and state courts.

Accused of Destroying Papers.

The acquitted state auditor was accused of misdemeanor in office for alleged authorization of the destruction of refunded municipal warrants, which were signed for Ronald Finney, who, in some instances, retained original warrants and had faked ones destroyed.

Only one count was involved in the vote today, others having been dropped when the defense demurred.

ASK INJUNCTION TO END STICKNEY POLICE DISPUTE

A bill for an injunction to restrain William Loeffler, president of the village of Stickney, from hindering James Kassel from assuming the post of chief of police in the village was filed in the Circuit court yesterday. The bill, filed on behalf of Louis Golik as a Stickney taxpayer, was assigned to Judge Hugo M. Friend and will be heard today.

The village has had two rival police forces for the last week with resulting confusion among the citizens as to which force to recognize. Kassel was appointed by the village board on May 16, 1933. He was discharged by President Loeffler, who appointed another force under Louis Marek.

The Appellate court recently upheld Kassel's claim to the position and Circuit Judge John F. Prystalski issued a mandamus compelling President Loeffler to reinstate him along with other village officials appointed by the board but also deposed by the president.

Two Flying Cadets Killed in Crash at San Antonio

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Two Randolph field cadets died after an airplane crash eight miles south of the field here today. Cadet Harold L. DADDY BROWNING SEES ADOPTED DAUGHTER WED LAUNDRYMAN

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Edward W. [Daddy] Browning witnessed the marriage today of his adopted daughter, Dorothy [Sunshine] Browning, to Clarence B. Hood, Dunn, N. C., laundry proprietor.

The ceremony, performed at "The Little Church Around the Corner," was delayed half an hour until Browning found the right corner.

Wearing a brilliant, multi-colored tie and with a gardenia adorning the lapel of his pinstriped coat, Browning stood rigidly at attention while the minister read the service.

The bride is 17, her husband is 20.

The couple sought a license yesterday but were told a letter from Hood's mother would be necessary since he is under 21.

TWO ARRESTED IN AUTO INSURANCE SWINDLE INQUIRY

Paul Gusenberg, 43 years old, 5507 Berenice avenue, and Paul A. Kuhn, 40 years old, said by the Sheffield avenue police to be the operator of a gambling resort at 3172 North Clark street, were arrested yesterday in connection with an investigation of an alleged automobile theft swindle. Both were held for the state's attorney's office.

Gusenberg, whose brothers, Peter and Frank, were slain in the St. Valentine day massacre in 1929, reported his automobile stolen on May 15, 1933, and collected insurance on it. Later one Harry Burns was arrested with the car and charged with stealing it. Gusenberg signed a complaint against him, but failed to appear to prosecute and the case against Burns was dismissed.

The insurance company, however, pressed for an investigation. Burns is alleged to have told the state's attorney there was collusion between him, Gusenberg and Kuhn to swindle the insurance concern.

Judge Forbids Husband to Oust Mother-in-Law

Superior Judge Rudolph F. Desort yesterday granted Mrs. Lela Smith, 32 years old, 6644 South Peoria street, an injunction to restrain her husband, Curtis, from putting her mother, Mrs. Rose De Long, out of their home. The injunction was granted after Mrs. Smith had filed a bill for divorce, charging cruelty. In the bill she says that although she and her husband separated last Dec. 27, they have continued to live in the same house.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Wade Cunningham, 32, became so despondent over his love for Doris Young of Phoenix, Ariz., that he decided to die. He turned on a gas jet in his home and then wrote a suicide note to inform Miss Young. Then he lit a cigaret. He came to in police hospital an hour and a half later, with his home a complete wreck. He was informed he had been blown through the walls, but still had a chance to live.

ATTORNEY GETS TERM IN PRISON FOR EMBEZZLING

Judge Sentences Bohac to 1 to 10 Years.

Attorney Edward Bohac, who pleaded guilty a month ago to embezzling money from three clients, was sentenced to one to ten years in the penitentiary on each of three charges yesterday by Judge Harry B. Miller in the Criminal court. The sentences will run concurrently.

Judge Miller, after allowing 60 days for appeal, raised Bohac's bond from $9,000 to $14,000 and ordered him taken into custody when he was unable to put up the new bond.

The judge acted when Bohac, whose sentence previously had been postponed on his promise to make restitution, was unable to report progress in his efforts to raise money.

Tells of More Complaints.

"I am tired of granting continuances on empty promises," Judge Miller told the defendant. "I refuse to defer action any longer."

Assistant State's Attorney Richard Reagan, who prosecuted the case, told Judge Miller that the state's attorney had received numerous other complaints besides those on which Bohac had pleaded guilty.

Elizabeth Schick, 1844 South Harding avenue, first of the complaining witnesses against Bohac, testified that she gave the attorney $200 to pay her 1928 real estate taxes. Bohac later demanded and received $55, which he said was needed to pay penalties, the witness said.

When she received notice that her property had been sold for taxes, she said, Bohac promised to straighten out the tax matter, but failed to do so.

Story of Another Complainant.

Josephine Novak, 2307 South 50th avenue, Cicero, testified that she gave Bohac $5,350 to make the first payment on a two story building. The attorney paid $1,537 on the building, the witness said, and pocketed the rest of the money.

Mary Rezalek, 1700 Jackson boulevard, said she retained Bohac to probate the estate of her brother. She said the attorney diverted to his own use $1,264 which he had withdrawn from the estate to pay for the funeral and other expenses.

RALPH CAPONE TO BE FREED FROM FEDERAL PRISON ON FEB. 27

Ralph Capone, elder brother of Al Capone, will complete his three year sentence for income tax fraud and be released from the McNeil Island federal prison in Washington state on Feb. 27, it was announced yesterday. Capone, who entered prison on Nov. 7, 1931, won more than eight months' reduction of sentence for good behavior. The only charge now pending against him is a prohibition violation, which is to be dismissed in accordance with the Supreme court order striking from the record all prohibition cases not finally adjudicated by Dec. 5.

GETS 90 DAYS IN A CELL FOR RELIEF FRAUD

Michael Nakielny, 45 years old, 2518 Walton street, was sentenced to 90 days in the Bridewell and fined $1 yesterday as a relief cheater.

Nakielny was arraigned before Municipal Judge Frederick W. Elliott and admitted that he had received $212 worth of coal and food from relief agencies while both his wife and daughter were working. Sentence was pronounced when Nakielny refused to promise to make restitution.

Assistant State's Attorney Samuel Papanek produced witnesses who testified that Nakielny's wife, Julia, was employed by a railroad at a salary of $86 a month, and his daughter was earning $13 a week in a department store. Investigators for the relief commission said they had made inquiries concerning the family income when they found a new rug on the floor of Nakielny's home.

ROBBED OF $225 PAY ROLL.

Albert Martin, 7534 Saginaw avenue, secretary and treasurer of the Curran Roofing company, 1708 East 75th street, was robbed of a $225 pay roll yesterday by three bandits, who crowded his automobile to the curb at 50th street and St. Lawrence avenue.

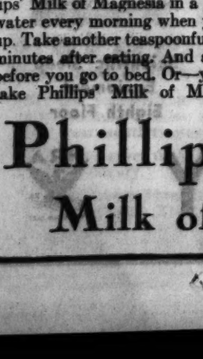
A Simple and Quick Way to Relieve Acid Stomach

Easy to Tell if You Have It

The Signs of Acid Stomach

Nervousness — Neuralgia — Indigestion — Auto-Intoxication — Nausea — Frequent Headaches — Sleeplessness — Feeling of Weakness — Mouth Acidity — Loss of Appetite — Sour Stomach



WHAT TO DO FOR IT

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

OR—Take the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—one tablet for each teaspoonful as directed above.

Some 80% of the people of today have Acid Stomach, according to many authorities! This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

Headaches, stomach pains after eating, "gas," "upsets," "biliousness," are the usual indications. So you can easily tell if you have Acid Stomach.

You Can Quickly And Easily Correct It

But if you do have it, don't worry about it. Today it can be corrected in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed. Or—you can take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets; one tablet for each teaspoonful of the liquid.

What This Does

That's all you do. But do it regularly. EVERY DAY.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy you feel.

Everywhere people are doing this—doctors advocating it. Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips'" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

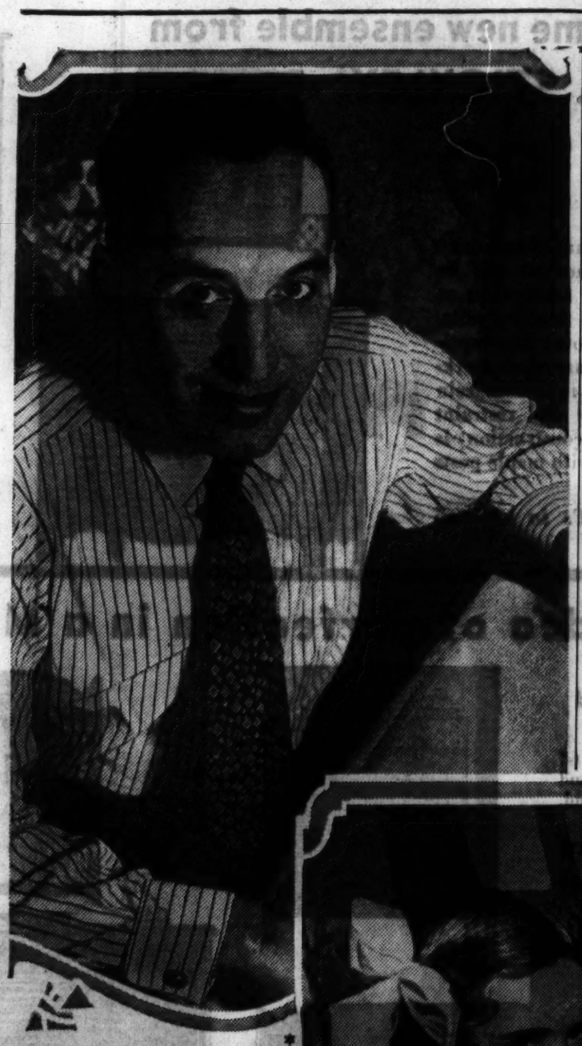
"MAN! IS SHE GLAD I HAD GAS HEAT INSTALLED"

An interview with Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Wandas of 3122 Parkside Avenue



"Now that we have gas heat, I don't know how we ever got along without it," says Mr. Wandas. "We never even look at the furnace."

"It certainly is a blessing not to have to shovel coal, chop kindling, and mess around with dirty ashes."

ANOTHER home rid of backbreaking furnace drudgery! Another home where dirty ashes, shovels, soot, and dirt have been banished forever!

"How do we like gas heat? . . . simply grand," say Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Wandas. "The rooms are so cozy and warm, and we never even look at the furnace."

"And besides giving us perfect comfort, gas heat is so clean. It seems like we never have to wash the curtains any more."

THOUSANDS ARE CHANGING TO GAS HEAT

So it is in more than 20,000 homes in the Chicago area today. Each week more and more families are giving up old-fashioned heating methods, and switching to this sootless, dirtless, automatic way of heating their homes. With gas heat, their furnace worries are gone. Their houses stay at even, healthful temperatures the day and night through. They keep cozy and warm, even in zero weather! No work. No worry. They just set the little thermostat on the wall for the heat they want.

NEW LOW RATES . . . FOR GAS HEAT

Rates for heating homes with gas are now one-half of what they were in 1930-31.

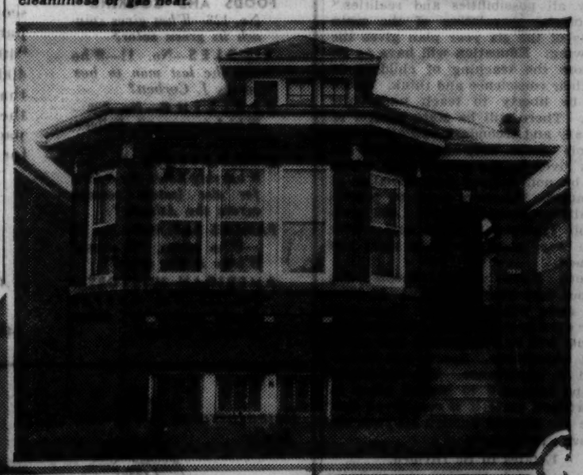
And—you can have gas heat without one cent of investment for equipment. We will install a burner in your present furnace or boiler at our own expense. You pay only the rental on the equipment, which amounts to $3 a month in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. You try it for a month, two months, a year. And if within the year you find that you are not completely satisfied with gas, we will take it out at our expense and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike order. But—if you decide to keep gas heat—as we think you will—the rental you have paid applies on the purchase price of the equipment.

Don't delay! It is pure folly not to investigate this liberal offer on gas heat when it brings so many comforts and conveniences. Call your local gas company for full information.

"Besides giving us perfect comfort, gas heat is so clean. It seems as if we never have to wash the curtains any more." Thus Mrs. Wandas expresses the opinion of thousands of women who know how to appreciate the utter cleanliness of gas heat.



What comfort, what happiness gas heat has brought to the Wandas home at 3122 Parkside Ave., Chicago. It is typical of the 20,000 homes in this area which now have gas heat.

The Gas Company is Owned in Chicago

More than 15,000 stockholders, of whom almost 10,000 live in Chicago, own The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company. The company is entirely independent. It is not a part of any holding company. Its directors and officers, are Chicago men, whose interests are the same as those of any other good citizen.

Since the year 1850 Chicago has had uninterrupted gas service, and during all that time the company serving the city has been a "good citizen" of the community, paying its taxes, employing Chicago people at fair wages, reducing its rates for service as increasing volume of business made such reductions possible.

The Peoples Gas Light and Coke Company—officers and directors, stockholders and employes—is a Chicago institution.

When I think about those days when I used to worry and worry about the furnace, I certainly am thankful for gas heat," says Mrs. Wandas. "It has made our home many times more comfortable and happy."

Little Lucille Wandas also enjoys the comfort of gas heat. She doesn't seem to worry about playing on the floor with her doll. It must be cozy and warm there.

WHAT OTHERS SAY:

"It's such a treat for the children to run around in their bare feet in the morning, with warm floors and a warm house. It's a fact, we haven't had one cold since gas heat was installed."
G. M. Fuller
9600 Seeley Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"Gas heat? It's great! I actually don't know how we got along in those days when we had to fire the furnace and muss around with dirty ashes."
Henry T. Spivey
7327 Stewart Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"We're just tremendously happy with gas heat and we never want to give it up. You can't imagine what gas heat has meant to us. Just myself, and my two little girls—that's our family."
Mrs. M. C. Moore
9933 Irving Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"I am perfectly satisfied with my gas heating unit and am pleased to say that up to date my consumption of gas will be lower than oil."
Otto A. Pohl
528 Webster Ave., Chicago, Ill.

"It's just human for one to tell another, but I am telling the world about gas heat—economical, cleaner, reliable, convenient and efficient."
Dante R. Barone, R. Ph.
3854 W. Division St., Chicago, Ill.

BYRD EXPEDITION RACES TO GET ITS STORES TO CAMP

Fears Loss of Supplies When Ice Goes Out.

[By Mackay Radio to The New York Times and The Chicago Tribune.]

ABOARD S. S. JACOB RUPPERT, Bay of Whales, Antarctica, Feb. 6.—The flagship of the second Byrd antarctic expedition is scheduled to sail from the Bay of Whales tomorrow. The stores it carried for the winter party have been entirely unloaded. They are now piled in various caches between its berth and Little America, five and one-half miles by trail over the ice.

The Ruppert will be laid up in New Zealand, either at Port Chalmers or Dunedin, for nearly a year. Next December or January it will return to pick up the winter party. A number of the Ruppert's crew will remain on the ice until the Bear of Oakland, the Byrd party's ship, starts north. These men will be required, Admiral Byrd said, for the enormous task of emptying the caches and moving the stores into Little America.

Transfer 250 Tons of Coal.

Since Friday the Ruppert has been engaged in transferring 250 tons of coal to the bunkers of the Bear. At noon today only forty tons remained to be transferred.

Meanwhile the rest of the hands have been working on the trail between here and Little America. Most of the stores are still on the west side of the Bay of Whales. Admiral Byrd is anxious to have them hauled as rapidly as possible through the pressure area onto the high barrier near Cape Manhue, a mile and a half south of Little America.

"We're not out of the woods, not by a long shot," Admiral Byrd said. "We won't be until we get this stuff into the main base. This ice may go out any time. It is surprising that it has held so long. New cracks have opened up between the ship and the cache on the west barrier of the bay. There is a slow wrenching movement taking place along the line of the pressure itself and pieces are constantly breaking off to the east of us."

Weather Turns Bitter.

After days of pleasant sunshine and mild temperatures the weather has turned bitter. Both yesterday and today it snowed and a strong southwesterly wind, picking up drift, made outside work uncomfortable.

The tractors still chugged along the trail, but the drivers were bundled up in their compartments. The dog teams were slowed down to a walk and the drivers, in their dirty windproofs, tried to avert their faces from the knifelike edge of the wind.

TELLS HER STORY OF WORK AMONG JUNGLE TRIBES

The novel experiences of a woman missionary among the African jungle tribes in the Belgian Congo was told yesterday by Miss Lena de Lange, missionary of the Moody Bible institute. Miss De Lange is in Chicago on her first furlough in more than four years.

"I made trips alone to distant tribes, many of whom had never seen a white woman," said Miss De Lange. "In preaching the gospel I found the men more receptive. It is customary for the African women to consider themselves inferior in intelligence."

Miss De Lange was graduated at Moody Bible institute in 1923. Her first missionary work was in the Kentucky mountains.

Mystery Bomb Blast at Entrance of Flat Building

A small black powder bomb was exploded last night in the front entrance of a two story flat building at 609 West 45th street. Neither John Hunt, a CWA laborer, who occupies the first floor with his family, nor Steve Sexton, owner of the building, who is a retired city employé and who lives on the second floor, was able to give the police a possible motive for the attack. The damage was small.

Lumberjacks Go on Strike for Bathtubs in Forest

Laramie, Wyo., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Because there are no bath houses in the lumber camps, 146 woodsmen in the forests west of here were on strike today. The woodsmen also demanded a pay increase.

NO PROTEST BY LEGION HEAD ON ARTICLE, CLAIM

J. M. Lansinger, publisher of the magazine "Real America," yesterday announced that he had not received a communication from Edward A. Hayes, national commander of the American Legion, disapproving of an article which appeared recently in the magazine under the commander's signature, although Commander Hayes had received both the draft and the proofs of the article before it was printed. Following publication of the article Mr. Hayes charged that it was "unauthorized and specifically disapproved."

In reply to this charge Lansinger yesterday dispatched to the commander at Indianapolis the following telegram:

"John R. Robinson [staff writer who produced the article] tells us he had discussed this article with you early in December at the Federal building in Chicago. On Dec. 30 he again discussed it with you by long distance telephone. It was then agreed he should mail you a copy of the manuscript to your home in Decatur. Manuscript was mailed special delivery Dec. 31.

"The understanding was that you should make what corrections you deemed necessary or any revision or editing you wished to make, provided such changes were necessary, and return manuscript. Receiving no corrections the article was set and proofs were mailed to you at Indianapolis for any editing. No editing was done and in accordance with telephone understanding the article was published. No telegram or other communication has been received from you disapproving of the article or making any changes."

HELD IN STORE HOLDUP.

Municipal Judge Harold P. O'Connell yesterday held Marcel Vanderkove, 23 years old, 2103 Warren boulevard, to the grand jury in $10,000 bonds on a charge of robbing a candy store at 2101 West Chicago avenue.

M. HADDON MACLEAN LIKELY TO TAKE HIGH OFFICE IN TREASURY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—M. Haddon MacLean, vice president of the bond department of the Harris Trust and Savings bank, Chicago, is being considered for a high post in the treasury department, possibly the undersecretaryship, it was learned today.

Mr. MacLean conferred at some length with Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. this afternoon. The treasury would make no official statement, but informed quarters said "there would be no surprise" if Mr. MacLean were named to such a position.

Both the undersecretaryship and the position of assistant secretary in charge of fiscal affairs have been vacant for some weeks. In addition there is the vacancy left by the recent resignation of Earle Bailie, New York investment banker, who was Secretary Morgenthau's special assistant in charge of fiscal matters.

CHARGES MATE ADDRESSED HER ONLY AS "MRS."

Mrs. Helen Rowland, 7924 Champlain avenue, charged yesterday that in 27 years of married life her husband had never relaxed his formality enough to call her by her first name, always addressing her as "Mrs. Rowland." The charges were contained in a bill for separate maintenance filed in the Superior court by her attorney, Norman Becker. In the bill Mrs. Rowland charged that her husband's interests were entirely in a collection of guns which he kept. Mrs. Rowland appeared before Judge Rudolph F. Desort and obtained an injunction restraining her husband, a railroad employé, from hiding his assets.

INSANITY MAY BE DEFENSE PLEA OF PASTOR SLAYERS

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Inability of investigators of the bizarre $10 murder of the Rev. Gaylord V. Saunders, Wabash Methodist Episcopal minister, to develop a motive that would have led normal, sane persons to commit the crime caused prosecuting officials here tonight to make preparations for a possible plea of insanity as the ultimate defense for the widow and the victim's roommate, who face murder charges. The murdered man also was termed insane by the widow and the family physician.

Friends Urge Insanity Defense.

Theodore Mathers, 20, the minister's slayer and roommate, has a heart ailment so serious that he has been warned he could not live more than a few years. Temperamental and nervous, he has threatened to take his own life repeatedly in recent years.

Friends of Mathers and Masil Roe, 19, who is charged with murder for his admitted part in driving the death car, believe a defense of insanity or temporary mental derangement brought on by emotional stress could be substantiated.

Pastor's Will Filed.

Wabash, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—The will of the Rev. Gaylord V. Saunders, in which all the minister's real and personal property was bequeathed to his "beloved wife, Neoma Beatrice Saunders," was filed in Circuit court here today.

In the event Mrs. Saunders remarries two-thirds of the estate is to go to the sons, William, 13, and James, 11, held in trust for them until they are 25 years old.

SHIP LOADED WITH GASOLINE BLOWS UP OFF GERMANY

HAMBURG, Germany, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Dutch motor tanker Stormvogel, with a cargo of gasoline aboard, blew up, eight miles west of Norderney, today. Two vessels in the vicinity rushed to the rescue, but found no trace of the ship or its crew. The boat, which had a gross tonnage of but 155, was bound from Amsterdam to Stettin, Germany.

4,000 PROVINCIAL TROOPS SLAIN BY CHINESE REBELS

PEIPING, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Four thousand Ninghsia provincial troops were massacred when forces under the rebel general, Sun Tien-Ying, occupied Pingle, said Chinese news dispatches today.

The advices also reported that 700 workers had been killed in a coal mine explosion in the region.

Gen. Sun Tien-Ying recently opened hostilities against the governor of Ninghsia, who refused to allow rebel forces to move through the province en route to Chingnai province, formerly Kokonor, where Sun Tien-Ying was slated to become land reclamation commissioner.

Get Rid of Bad Breath at Its Source . . . Keep Breath Sweet 24 Hours a Day . . . Way Doctors Advise

Don't fool yourself into believing that you are secure simply because a rinse or gargle with a mouthwash leaves your mouth tingling with a clean, pleasant taste.

When you cover up an odor with another odor relief is only temporary.

To get rid of bad breath and taste you must get at the root of the trouble. That's in your stomach if you're an average person. Excess acids ferment foods, form obnoxious gases that rise up into the mouth and cause embarrassment.

So naturally the easiest, surest way to get relief is to get at the root of the trouble. Doctors advise a teaspoonful of BiSoDoL in water morning and night.

This pleasant-tasting blend of six valuable digestive remedies works wonders. It swiftly neutralizes excess acids, soothes and heals the inflamed mucous membranes. And keeps your stomach so settled and sweet that you are sure of waking up in the morning with a clean, pleasant taste and certain of having a sweet, inconspicuous breath all day!

Don't forget that your breath is only as sweet as your stomach and nothing can keep the stomach any sweeter than BiSoDoL. Try it. Also when you have indigestion, gas, heartburn or any other distressing acid trouble take BiSoDoL. It's the improved, quicker-acting way to get rid of pain and discomfort that doctors have used for many years with remarkable success.

...AND LOOK WHAT YOU GET IN THIS BIG STUDEBAKER!

Skyway style—Dramatic aerodynamic design, fashioned after lines of latest transport speedplanes—increases safety, speed, economy, riding comfort—the best-looking car anywhere near its price.

Dome light, assist cords, silk shades, rich carpeting, radio and package compartments, windshield wiper, sun visor, new type ventilating system, all come at delivered price quoted here.

BAD LOANS AND BUREAUCRATS.

Mr. Jesse Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, which now has a billion dollars invested in bank stocks and notes, has issued a solemn warning to the nation's bankers to lend with a freer hand. The warning ended with an "or else." The bankers will lend or else the government will have to go into the lending business to finance industry in competition with bankers.

What this latest warning can mean for the security of the deposits is only too easily seen. Politics is now dictating to bankers what they are to regard as a good risk in the investment of the Money intrusted to them by depositors. It may be assumed that Mr. Jones' program is wholly benign at the moment; but can any one suppose that it will always remain so? The experience of political direction of lending policies in general has been disquieting in the extreme. It led, among other things, to the successive waves of speculation described a few days ago by Mr. Reuben Cahn in his review of federal reserve policies. Now, apparently, politics is determined to direct specific loans as well as general policies.

An interesting sidelight on the whole question of government activity in the banking business is provided by the evidence recently produced by the senate's banking committee in its inquiry into the Detroit banking situation. It was disclosed that forty-three judges, most of them residents of Detroit, had obtained loans from the Wayne First National bank. The total of these loans was nearly $640,000 and the average advance was thus not much less than $15,000.

While it is possible to assume that some of these loans might have been justified under the head of commercial credit operations it is impossible to justify them all as good banking and it is extremely doubtful if any of them could be compromised with sound public policy. A few loans to a few judges might not arouse suspicions, but wholesale loans to judges can hardly be explained away as coincidences.

In short, no believer in honest and competent banking and no believer in good government will seek to condone such loans; but when that has been said the fact still remains that the practice of lending to judges could not have grown up over night. All through the period when these loans were being made the federal bank examiners supposedly were making exhaustive checks of the bank's books and of the quality of its loans and the collateral posted to secure them. That does not excuse the bankers from responsibility for their own deliberate acts, but it does bear upon the general proposition that the remedy for existing banking ills is a greater measure of government control. The evidence suggests that the situation was hopeless, or nearly so, before the government's men took steps to correct it.

More recently, when the government determined to obtain a share in the control of the nation's banks, the examiners showed no comparable diffidence in judging the value of bank loans and investments. The examiners under the second set of circumstances wrote down investments with a confident hand and bank directors were obliged to accept the verdict. It would be instructive to know why a little of the firmness displayed in recent months was not called into action, say, in 1928, 1929, and 1930, when it would have been of inestimable value both to depositors and directors.

Rightly or wrongly, depositors and bank directors as well had come to place great reliance upon the judgment of bank examiners. If the examiners did not close a bank the public believed that the bank was sound. If the examiners did not cast doubts upon the value of collateral, directors in turn saw no reason to question their executive officers too closely about loans.

This confidence, it appears now, was by no means wholly merited. There is very little evidence to suggest that the government functionaries were possessed of much greater honesty, competence, or firmness of character than the bank executives themselves. The comparison, of course, is to the executives of banks which were not well managed. It should be observed in this connection that the great majority of banks and all but a small percentage of the deposits came through the depression. There is little in the Detroit experience to suggest that a better showing would have been made had the government occupied the front office of each surviving bank from, say, 1926 onward; and therefore there is nothing to suggest that government managerement will acquit itself more brilliantly when the next 1929 comes along.

THE RETURN OF MISS GOLDMAN.

The New York reporters who greeted Emma Goldman on her return to America last week recalled that when she went out, tagged with a deportation order on the deportation ship Buford, she said, "I shall be called back to soviet America." That was fifteen years ago. The reporters might have made a concession to Emma that she was half right. She wasn't called back, but she was allowed to come.

On her banishment Miss Goldman was stripped of her American citizenship and went to Russia. She returns as a British subject, the wife of a Welsh coal miner, and enters the United States from Canada under a sixty day permit, intending to lecture but promising not to be subversive. It isn't soviet America to which she is returning, but it is an America which no longer regards her as a dark cloud of revolutionary terror, nor is it an America which she regards as hopelessly bound by capitalistic doctrines of private property and private rights. There has been at least this much of the development which she predicted fifteen years ago. If Emma and most of her former fellow countrymen do not see wholly eye to eye, at least there's a cordiality which was entirely absent when she was fired out of the country.

The communists do not regard the United States more hopefully because they think it is going in the true path of Marxian dialectics but because they think it is taking the steps which will destroy the old United States and, although ending in failure, will find that, being hopelessly adrift from its original principles, it must look then to the rising sun of Marx for its salvation. Such progress from one mistake to another, eventually bringing in the true doctrine of the dictatorship of the proletariat, falls within the communist expectations, and these expectations are somewhat justified by their experience. Kerensky preceded Lenin. Miss Goldman would take this view and many Americans would not know precisely what to say to her.

PROHIBITION PRISONERS.

The United States Supreme court holds that there may be no further prosecutions in the federal courts for violation of the Volstead act. The defendants in all pending cases, including appeals from conviction, will be dismissed. It is estimated that 13,000 citizens will be relieved by this decision and the federal court calendars will also be relieved in like manner of prosecutions which had threatened to absorb the activities of the federal judiciary.

Cases in the state courts involving violation of state prohibition laws are not affected by the federal court decision, but the state prosecutors would have ample warrant for dismissal in states which have repealed the laws under which convictions were obtained. There is also a considerable property interest involved in the decision, instances in which use of property was suspended by padlock injunctions. The range of the decision does not touch defendants in whose case final judgment had been rendered. That leaves without relief the persons now imprisoned.

Attorney General Homer S. Cummings says the department of justice will be sympathetic to appeals for pardons or paroles where good records can be proved. It would seem to follow, as a matter of equity and fair dealing, if not of law and justice, that where no other crime than that of violating the Volstead act is involved the prisoner should be given his freedom. A criminal in whose case the violation of the Volstead act was but an incident in serious crimes should have no standing, but the person whose sole offense was against a law now confessed as a mistake by the country which has repealed it can demand with every show of reason and equity that he be set at liberty at once.

If these people are kept in the penitentiary serving sentences for acts which are no longer criminal, but which are permitted the citizenship, both humanity and justice would be offended. They are imprisoned for acts which are now lawful. In various degrees they have paid a stiff penalty because the country made a mistake in lawmaking and refused to correct it for fourteen weary and troubled years. The troublesome law is wiped off the books. The prisoners should be released.

Editorial of the Day

THE PIPER MUST BE PAID.

[The Buffalo Express.]

The rough going experienced by Mayor La Guardia's economy bill at Albany serves to demonstrate how we are governed: those who keep closest watch over their own interests when legislation is in the making are usually the ones who get what they want when they want it.

In the La Guardia program for saving New York City from the mess of waste into which the former Tammany régime plunged the metropolis and there left it are proposals for reducing the pay of teachers, firemen, policemen, and other public employés. All of the New York employés affected are fighting the bill. Buffalo public employés are backing their fight. The assemblymen from Erie county, one sees by the paper, have been "bombarded with telegrams and telephone calls . . . asking them to stand by the New York City employés in their drive" to prevent legislation for payless furloughs in the metropolis.

It is, of course, only natural that fighting like this must be expected when the legislators are considering measures directly concerning the interests of a group or groups. Obviously, it would be fine if the public employés could or would realize that they are more likely to improve their lot by aiding rather than obstructing public economy. By so doing they lessen the danger of payless pay days, a danger which in respect of New York City is said to be imminent. But perhaps this is too much to expect. It is easier for most of us to see our noses than what lies beyond them. If so much be granted, what remains? Apparently nothing but for those who are on the paying end to make more noise than they have made thus far. The legislators always have ears for those who can make the most noise.

And there is need for noise from those who pay. Municipal credit is still far from Easy street. Only the other day it was pointed out at Albany that municipal credit must be maintained in order that the state safely may continue to meet the requirement that it shall invest a fixed percentage of its funds in municipal securities. Thus far we have been pretty well off in this city and this state as regards public credit. But in the country generally many a municipal and many a state rating has fallen perilously low. Pay as you go was too slow a rule for most communities and most states in the fat years, and in such areas they are now learning what it means to pay the piper. Groups as well as the general public have a common duty to see to it that the cities of New York and the state of New York shall never dance such an economic fling that when it shall come to paying the piper they will have nothing wherewith to pay but promises.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

MOST OF THE LETTERS that Mrs. Roosevelt has received since she announced that wine would be served at the White House and which have criticized her unsparingly have been unsigned. The best way for Mrs. Roosevelt or anybody else to dispose of an anonymous letter is first to take every letter she receives and, without glancing at the contents, jump to the end of the thing and see if it's anonymous. In that case the letter should immediately be held firmly by one end in the left hand; then, grasping the other side of the letter with the right hand, pull downwards. Repeat this operation several times and chuck the pieces that remain of the letter into the waste basket. Or, better yet—do you carry matches? Go to it.

It is a great satisfaction to destroy an unsigned letter unread. The indescribable individual who wrote it and who could put on a silk hat and walk easily under the tummy of a caterpillar is foiled. Of course he doesn't know it, but just the same he is. But even if the anonymous letter writers knew that their words of hate and spite were not read it wouldn't stop them writing them, because writing anonymous letter is a disease the same as winter itch, sclerosis of the liver, circular insanity or ringworm, and there is no cure for it and no proper place to which people inflicted with this horrible malady can be sent. However, there should be anonymous letter writer wards in detention hospitals, and the patients should be supplied with tons and tons of writing paper, barrels of ink and bushels of pens, and allowed to write anonymous letters to every one they pleased all day long. The letters could be used to start the furnace fires next morning and everybody would be happy.

AND BISHOP JAMES CANNON JR., who at least signs all his letters, deplored that Mrs. Roosevelt was going to serve wine at the White House, because, among other things, Alexander the Great had died at 33 from looking too long and too constantly upon the wine when it was red. But the bishop only starts an argument when he takes that ground. Would Alexander have taken Thebes if he had not lapped up a couple of bottles of red wine before he sent his Macedonians over the top? Would he have captured Helicarnassus and Tyre and Gaza if he had stayed on the wagon and stuck to buttermilk? Would Alexander, the great commander, have overrun Egypt with his army if he had wet his tonsils with nothing but chocolate soda? Would he have overthrown the mighty Darius and his myriads of Persians if he had inhaled just lemon pop or sarsaparilla? And would he have solved the puzzle of the Gordian knot by slashing it apart with his sword if he had had only a couple of drinks of malted milk? And would Alexander have conquered the world before he was 33 years old if he had trained on nothing stronger than sassafras tea? You see, bishop, much can be said on both sides.

IT'S A FINE THING having the ladies in the taverns. Down in Boston if a wife wants to stop the other half of the sketch from drinking she has to write a letter to the licker seller. Here in Chicago she can just lean over the bar and motion with her cocktail glass towards her husband and say to the barkeep: "That's the guy down there, with the red and black necktie and the Hitler mustache. No more booze for him. I'm married to him. See! So cut it out, kiddo; cut it, I'm tellin' yuh." Proper notice is thus duly given and the price of a postage stamp saved.

SO WHAT GOOD will it do? The Massachusetts Institute of Technology announces the perfection of an electrical instrument which measures the speed of thought and muscular response of an automobile driver when he is called upon to stop his car in an emergency. But the careful driver doesn't need such measurements taken, and in the case of the hit-and-run driver and the drunken driver how can his speed of thought be measured when there isn't a brain cell working?

AT DAY'S END.

(For my little daughter.)

I hold you in my arms before the fire
And tell the fairy tale you love the best,
While winter twilight deepens and the first
White star comes forth to glitter in the west.

So softly do you lie against my heart
I scarcely know if it be child or flower
I cradle, till you stir and draw a breath
Of wonder at the tale. Oh blessed hour

That every mother knows when at day's end
She holds her little child, a wistful ache
Commingling with her joy, and dreams a dream
For him and breathes a prayer for his dear sake.

LEAD EVERYWHERE.

LEAD is a poison to the human body. The fact is generally known. It is not generally known, however, that lead is a normal ingredient of the body and of all parts thereof. It is found in most of our foods. Not only do we restock every day at the table and when we drink, but we come into the world reasonably well supplied with this metal. These statements hold true of healthy babies born healthy and normal, and of healthy people of all stages of the journey from the cradle to the grave. Some day we may learn that lead is necessary to health and our tissues instinctively yearn for it, just as a potato sprout springing out in a dark cellar reaches for light.

However, as in so many other instances, we can be made sick or even destroyed by too much of a good thing.

There are newer tests for lead, and these facts have been revealed by the use of the more delicate tests. Almost an entire number of the Journal of Industrial Hygiene was recently given to studies of lead in the tissues of the body, in the excretions, and in the more common foods. These analyses were reported by Kehoe and associates.

The bodies of babies born prematurely and where food was never taken showed traces of lead. The mineral was found in mother's milk, cow's milk, and in foods made therefrom. It was found in the bodies of people who had lived all their lives in rural districts far away from industrial establishments.

It was found in bread and various breadstuffs, in meats, including processed meats, in ice cream, and in leafy vegetables and fruits. The amount present in these several groups of foods was least in those at the head of the list as given and greatest in leafy vegetables and fruits. This variation suggested that spraying with insecticides added somewhat to the lead content of some of our foods. In none of the specimens was the amount of the mineral present high enough to cause the food to be a source of danger.

Lead taken into the stomach is absorbed in part and passes unabsorbed in part. That absorbed circulates in the blood stream and most of it is excreted by the kidneys and the digestive tract. Kehoe suggests that so long as the amount excreted keeps below a certain daily level there is no particular danger either of acute poisoning or of storing lead in the bones.

STOMACH ULCERS.

H. D. writes: What are the symptoms of ulcers of the stomach? Is beer harmful to one with ulcers?

REPLY.

1. Indigestion, pain in the abdomen, particularly one that is made worse by eating, tenderness, bleeding. There are others.
2. I think so. A person with stomach ulcers needs to have a physician make the diagnosis and advise the diet. The patient needs to carry out the diet exactly as told to.

DEED TO PROPERTY.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My father died leaving a will bequeathing his estate to myself, five brothers, and two sisters. The will has been probated and property deeded to us. The lawyer who handled the matter advised us to deed this over to my oldest brother, saying it would be easier to sell if only one had to sign instead of eight. 1. This property is deeded to my brother and his wife in joint tenancy. In case they both die and we could prove this property is ours, would it have to go through Probate court again? 2. My brother had a form typed to the effect that if either he or his wife died the one left was to deed said property back to us. We all have a copy, but it has not been signed by a witness or drawn up before a notary. Would this hold good? 3. If both my brother and his wife died, how would that affect the property? They have children, the youngest 10 years old. 4. If we had my brother and his wife make out a quitclaim deed to each of us and we just kept this, but in the event of their death would put it on record, would this have to go through court? This in Illinois. R. S. V.

1. As a practical matter, yes.
2. We advise against relying on such an instrument.
3. Some sort of court proceedings would be necessary in order to clear the title.
4. We advise against relying on a deed which is not intended to be effective during the grantor's lifetime. The lawyer who handled the original transaction for you is in a better position to answer your questions than we are.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

COLLECTION AGENCY.

Princeton, Ill., Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—In 1931 my husband turned over for collection, to a collection agency, some long past due accounts. They solicited the business and no written contract was signed. They did not make any collections and made no reports to us. Upon writing to return the accounts they replied saying that could only be done if we paid them 50 per cent of each account to cover their expense in looking after them, even though no collections were made. Since then my husband has passed away, leaving no estate. 1. How long can a collection agency hold accounts that they are unable to collect? 2. Could they compel me to pay them the 50 per cent of each account [even though uncollected] if I insist on their return to me? E. M. A.

1. Indefinitely, in the sense that it probably would not pay you to force the return.
2. We doubt if it is worth your while to pay the 50 per cent or pay court proceedings to force the return. Presumably they have a reasonable incentive to collect, and the fact that they have not succeeded tends to indicate that the accounts are not of much value. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Britain's "little navy" is still at war on the high seas.

Up and down and around the British Isles, beyond the Hebrides, beyond the Orkneys and the Shetlands, as far sometimes as Iceland, the "little navy" steams ceaselessly. Its decks are always cleared for action. High explosive shells are fired and the enemy more often than not is sunk without a trace.

During the world war the "little navy," called the fishery protection flotilla by the admiralty, hunted down mines and submarines. Now it hunts sharks.

While the "big navy" is kept in leash waiting for another opportunity to make the seas safe for all those things the seas are made safe for in historic moments, the "little navy" goes unsung about its private war. It fires at swiftly moving black triangles and lazing black shadows that reveal the submarine enemy. It makes the seas safe for the herring drifters.

The routine of the "little navy" is to enforce the sea fisheries act, to keep rival fishermen from each other's throat, to chase steam trawlers out of territorial waters, and to extend the protection of the British navy to British trawlers when foreigners interfere. It is usually sufficient to show the flag to impose authority. Occasionally a 6-pounder has to be fired across somebody's bows. But against the sharks, 12 pounders are brought into play. It costs money, but it is the finest target practice in the world.

Here is the story of the nonstop war with the sharks as told by Lieutenant Commander J. S. Dallison of the valiant H. M. S. Doon.

"Forty foot sharks are common off our coasts," said the commander. "They are a constant menace to fishermen. They are known as 'basking sharks' and they have no teeth. They live on plankton, a kind of minute sea life, which is also the food of herring. They and the herring go about together seeking plankton.

"The sharks frequently get caught in the herring drifter's nets. With a few flips of their immensely powerful bodies they rend them to shreds. A shark once towed a drifter four miles, although her engines were going full speed astern. Only then was the shark exhausted. So, to save the fishermen's nets, we shoot or blow up the sharks whenever we sight them.

"They have a great dorsal fin which projects three or four feet out of the water and often their tails are visible, too. When two sharks follow one another four fins are visible. They look like some fabulous sea monster.

"These brutes are amazingly strong. I have registered a direct hit on one with a 12-pounder high explosive shell and blown a huge hole in his back. He swam on.

"Since we have been waging war on the sharks their numbers have diminished. It is rarer for the fishermen to lose their nets now. Our gunners, by the way, like shark shooting better than target practice."

The commander touched lightly on the romantic side of the association of the "basking shark" and the herring. They are drawn together by a community of interest and of appetite for the lowly plankton. The herring is held to be brighter about finding plankton. And the shark lends his prestige to the operation. Terrifying though the "basking shark" is in size, he is a gentle and even timid and stupid creature, said the commander. He would not bite a bather. He would not eat a sardine. And certainly not a herring.

FROM A SUBSISTENCE HOMESTEADER.

Villa Park, Ill., Jan. 21.—I see that Harry L. Hopkins, relief director, revealed today he would send families on small acreage to raise part of their own food and somehow exist and provide other necessities. Do you think this can be done? Can you stop the rise of taxes after people have cultivated and planted the empty acreage into halfway decent homes and gardens?

I shall explain my own case. Fourteen years ago this month we purchased two acres of ground on the outskirts of a village, intending to raise what we could and enable us to settle down so as to have a home and land enough to raise what we needed during our older years.

Two years later when the fruit of our toil was commencing to bear rewards the village decided they wanted us in their territory. We could do nothing. There were two families against the village. Our votes were as nothing, and in the name of the law we were annexed. All we could do was watch taxes soar.

It did not take very long before some folks decided we needed a sidewalk. All we could do was grunt. Two years later somebody else decided we ought to have another sidewalk on the other side, and we happen to be on both streets. We knew nothing whatever of this until we were notified it had passed. Good and well, we finished paying for 432 feet of sidewalk, when along comes another petition. Some one decided they wanted more water. All we could do was gulp and swallow. Here we are, after fourteen years of hard work, with $2,000 assessments to pay and taxes close to $175 a year for two acres.

Last summer I worked hard—real hard, too—and raised chickens, ducks, rabbits, and all the vegetables I possibly could. Then my bills came along; first assessments and taxes will soon come, and I wonder if it is really worth while to try to help yourself and keep on your feet.

I am still trying, but heaven alone knows if I shall be able to avoid the poorhouse. Some say, "Why don't you sell?" I did try, and I wasn't even offered enough money by buyers to build me up another home.

So what's the use? Why try?

MRS. H. E. MILLER.

HARKEN UNTO THIS.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Not too late, I hope, to join in the crescendo chorus of "ayes" which has greeted your recent announcement of your list of "two dozen saner spellings."

And now that THE TRIBUNE has turned reformer [sic], we may expect the day to come when the new decalog of science will have its fulfilment; when the demagog will no longer be extoled, nor the highest rewards lavished upon those skilful in the cotillion or in hocky. Society, instead, will harken to the voice of the pedagog. For with science, and education, the controler, drouths will be definitly controled; deceitful advertisments will be canceled, and frontiers no longer patroled. There will be a new catalog of virtues; the dialogs of Plato—or their analog—will be recited by longshoremen, and mankind will enjoy tranquility indefinitly. But who shall write the prolog to this fantom world? Thus endeth this monolog!

WE HAVE IT ALL BUT THE PARTHENON.

Racine, Wis., Feb. 3.—". . . Besides that every year he sent out three score galleys, on board of which there went numbers of citizens who were in pay eight months, learning at the same time and practicing the art of seamanship. . . . He sent, moreover, a thousand of them into the Chersonese as planters to share the land among them by lot, and five hundred more into the Isle of Naxos. . . . And this he did to ease and discharge the city of an idle, and, by reason of their idleness, a busy and meddling crowd of people; and at the same time to meet the necessities and restore the fortunes of the poor townsmen. . . . With their variety of workmanship and occasions for service, which summon all arts and trades and require all hands to be employed about them, they do actually put the whole city, in a manner, into state pay; while at the same time she is both beautified and maintained by herself."

The foregoing excerpts were lifted bodily from Plutarch's life of Pericles, and were written some time near the year 100 A. D. With a few changes of names and the addition of a few alphabetical symbols the entire might be made over into an accurate description of our New Deal. The CCC, AAA, PWA, and CWA may be easily recognized. Our New Deal would seem to be not quite brand new.

Plutarch goes on to state that this reign of largess was curbed somewhat later on, when Pericles, his popularity and position secure, was forced to cut down on the public works program; in the parlance of the New Deal, he "cracked down."

Plutarch was an accurate and a just historian, and he in no way implied that the reign of Pericles was a dangerous economic experiment, or in any way contributed to the downfall of ancient Greece; but it must be remembered that many of Pericles' undertakings were financed by the spoils of foreign conquest. If our New Deal were financed by reparations, rather than taxes and dishonored pledges, it would have very few enemies.

The sum total is that the New Deal has been tried before and did not stick. Its result was the Parthenon, the Acropolis, and "the glory that was Greece." All in the past tense. A close examination of Pericles' reign, "the Golden Age of Greece," might be very useful in predicting the immediate future.

RICHARD CALLENDAR.

THE SO-CALLED DIRECT PRIMARY.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—What is a direct primary? And what choice does the public have in the selection of its party candidates? In the old days we had conventions of regularly elected leaders of our wards or districts and at this convention the candidates were put in the running for the election. The public was spared the expense of a direct primary which today is merely ratifying what choices the bosses select. Say what one will, an independent cannot be elected at a primary or election.

I read with considerable interest the other day of the slate of the Democrats for the coming direct primary being selected in one room by a committee of seven while the rest of the county committeemen were waiting in the other room until ten o'clock at night to get their report.

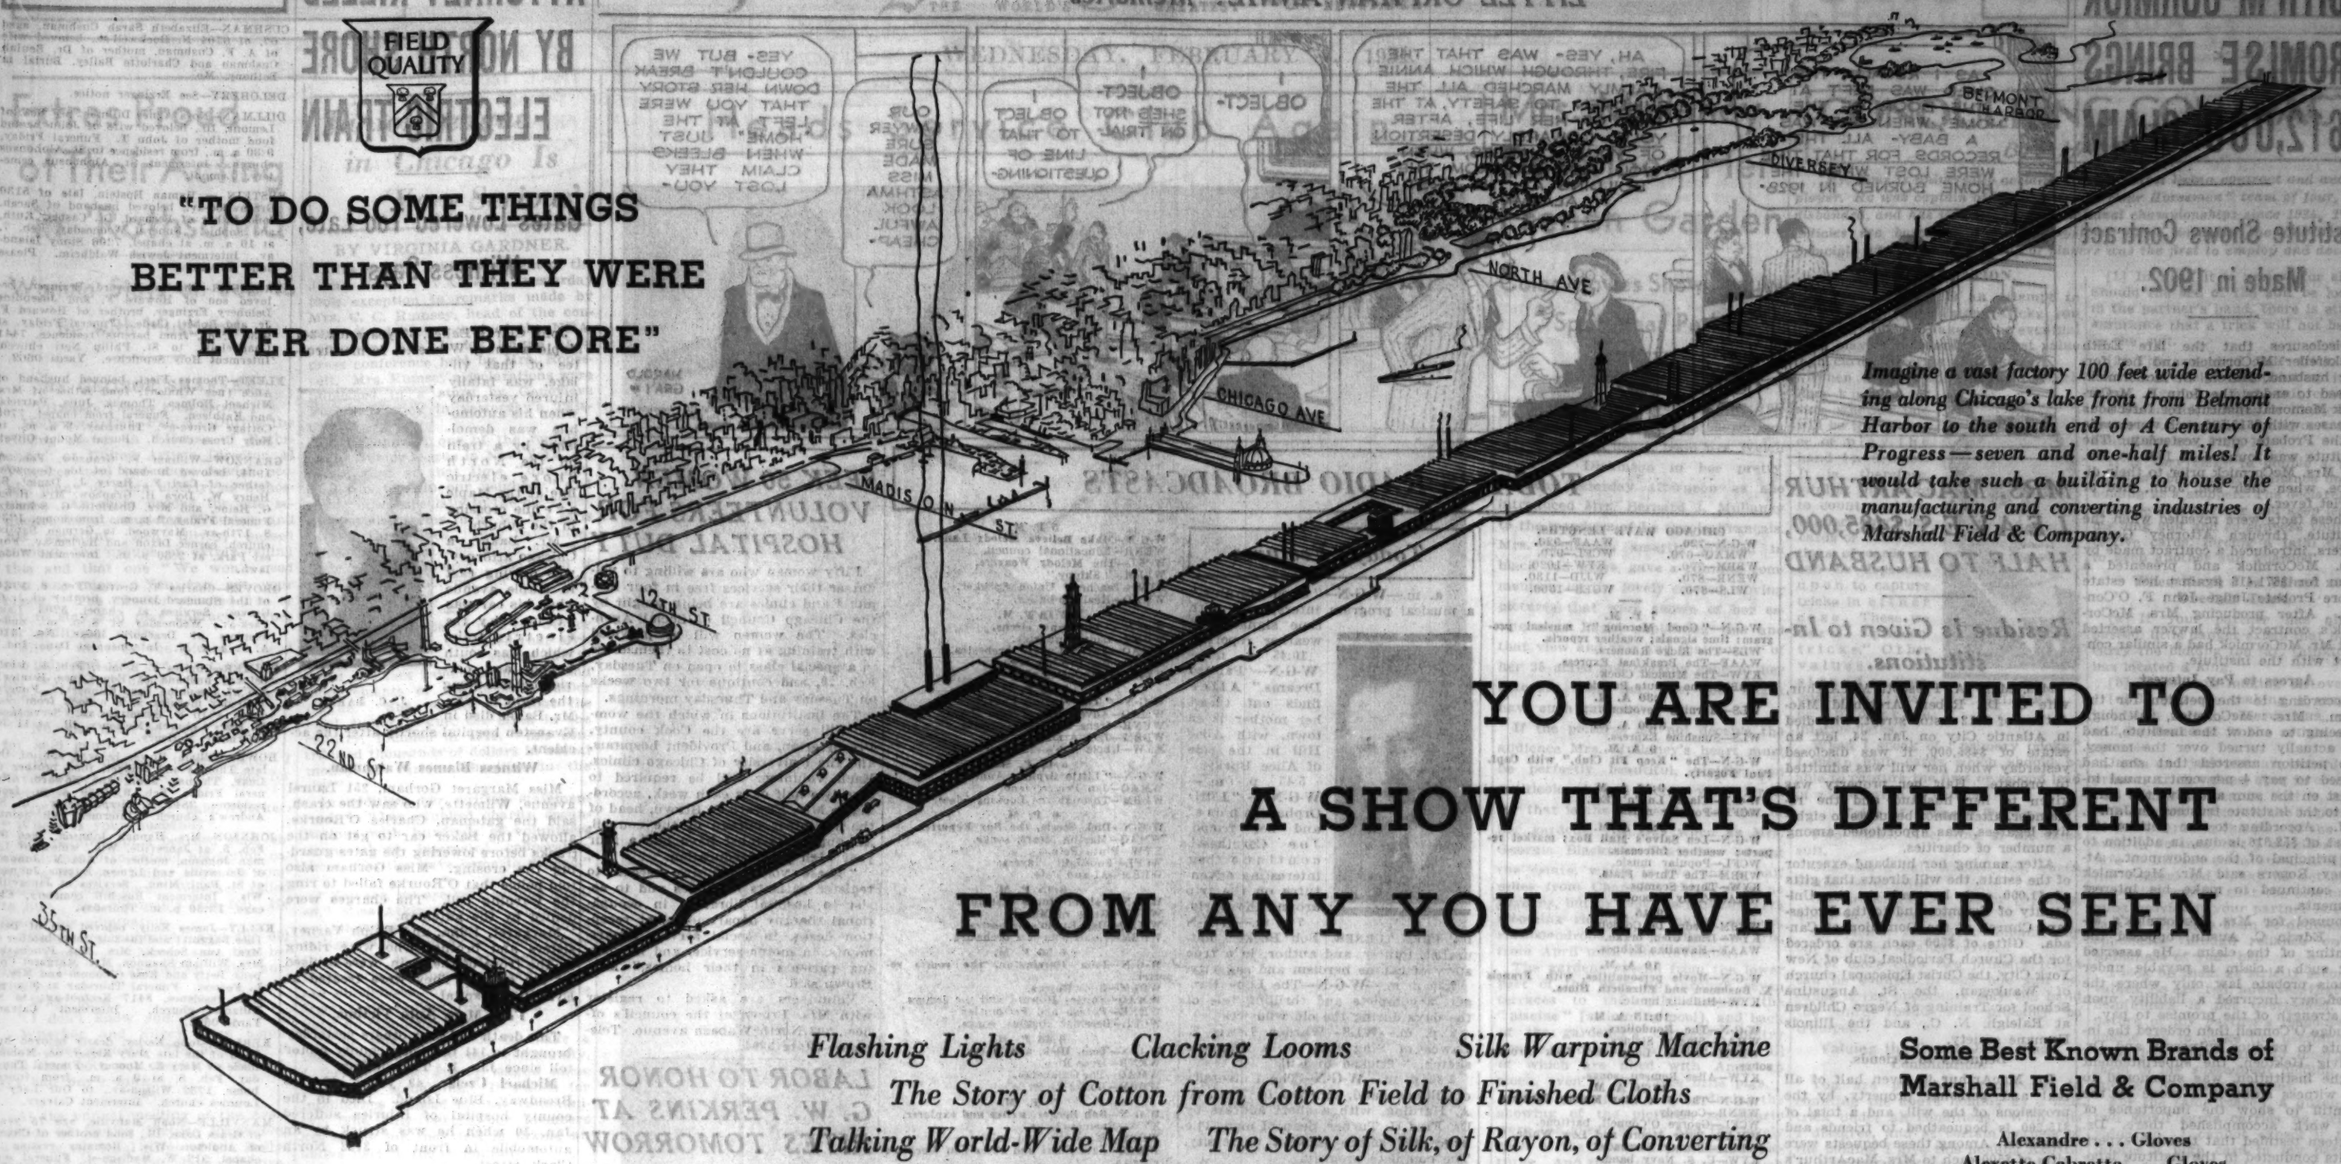
FIELD QUALITY

"TO DO SOME THINGS BETTER THAN THEY WERE EVER DONE BEFORE"



Imagine a vast factory 100 feet wide extending along Chicago's lake front from Belmont Harbor to the south end of A Century of Progress—seven and one-half miles! It would take such a building to house the manufacturing and converting industries of Marshall Field & Company.

YOU ARE INVITED TO A SHOW THAT'S DIFFERENT FROM ANY YOU HAVE EVER SEEN

Explanation of Hidden Qualities

A Few of the High Spots

Be sure to see the loom weaving Turkish (Terry) towels. We believe that this is the first time this interesting textile process has ever been shown in Chicago. Nearby is a silk warping machine winding 12,000 warp ends on great warp beams—the number of warps necessary to make silk 40 inches wide. Nearby also is a modern silk loom in actual operation. The shuttle travels back and forth more than 12,000 times to make just one yard of silk.

Manufacturers of Quality . . . The manufacturing organization of Marshall Field & Company includes 26 great mills and factories, many acres of roaring looms, industries in Chicago, Zion City; Pawtucket, Rhode Island; Philadelphia; Monticello, Indiana; High Point, North Carolina; Roanoke, Virginia; Manistee, Michigan and the entire manufacturing communities of Fieldale, Virginia; Spray, Leaksville and Draper, North Carolina.

Converters of Quality . . . Transforming raw cloths into finished goods—by bleaching, dyeing, printing, finishing—is called "converting." We make and buy the goods; to be transformed by our own processes, our own designs, our own colors, into products of exclusive beauty and merit—Marshall Field & Company, converters.

Importers of Quality . . . Four million miles annually Field's buyers travel, to lay before you world-treasures of beauty and excellence; from distant lands, places of weird customs and rare products. Your purchasing agents—Marshall Field & Company, importers.

Colonial Drapery Fabrics . . . Intimately identified with fine homes—Field's own creations have all the charm and distinction of Mt. Vernon pictured on their labels. Formerly, fine homes had imported cretonnes and draperies. Today Colonial Draperies are first choice—for their beauty, excellence and exclusiveness.

Making lovely women lovelier . . . It's a science—augmenting natural charm and beauty with creams, lotions, powders, tints which fit the personality. There's this about Field's famous Americe Toiletries—you know that they are pure, of excellent quality.

Paris bows to Field's . . . Smart Beau Manikins show you why smart couturiers are choosing Beau Monde Silks to please smart women. Paris starts style trends. Cable messages set Field's designers to interpreting them. And Field's looms roar, weaving fabrics of exclusiveness and lustrous beauty. Come and see why Paris and London, amazed, acknowledge the superb quality of Beau Monde Silks.

Be sure the children see this fascinating, educational exhibit . . . A knowledge of raw materials, of manufacturing methods and of the nature of fabric construction should be a part of the education of every child. Accurate, practical information in simple, understandable form may easily be gained from this exhibit.

Time was when some merchandise was not as good as it ought to have been. We found out where it was at fault, and how to correct the faults. We learned what materials and types of construction were best suited to specific needs.

Out of this knowledge grew Field Specifications. We asked manufacturers with whom we dealt to adopt these specifications. Many did so, and use them today. Some could not, however, for entirely legitimate reasons.

We then decided to manufacture certain merchandise ourselves—a natural business evolution. We began to establish mills and factories of our own, in most favorable locations. We have been buying and building them ever since.

To give you some conception of the tremendous extent of Field's manufacturing operations, of the variety we make, and of high controlled quality, we invite you to see

AN EXPOSITION OF THE PRODUCTS OF MARSHALL FIELD & COMPANY

Exclusiveness—our own styles, designs and patterns, not to be had from anyone else. Assurance of quality—materials and processes absolutely controlled. Dependability of supply—definite control of the quantity available. These are the advantages we achieve by manufacturing our own products in many lines.

You will find this exhibit exceedingly interesting. It will help you buy more understandingly. You will discover many valuable facts about merchandise.

And you will realize afresh that Marshall Field & Company is a world-wide organization, including its own great mills, factories and converting facilities, with all its energies and resources focussed on one objective—to serve your needs.

EDITH McCORMICK PROMISE BRINGS $612,000 CLAIM

Institute Shows Contract Made in 1902.

Disclosures that the late Edith Rockefeller McCormick and her former husband, Harold F. McCormick, agreed to endow the John R. McCormick Memorial Institute for Infectious Diseases with $612,500 each were made in the Probate court yesterday. The institute was founded in 1902 by Mr. and Mrs. McCormick prior to their divorce, when their son, John, died of scarlet fever.

These facts were revealed when the institute, through Attorney George Rogers, introduced a contract made by Mrs. McCormick and presented a claim for $671,416 against her estate before Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. After producing Mrs. McCormick's contract the lawyer asserted that Mr. McCormick had a similar contract with the institute.

Agrees to Pay Interest.

According to the petition for the claim, Mrs. McCormick, although agreeing to endow the institute, had not actually turned over the money. The petition asserted that she had agreed to pay 4 per cent annual interest on the sum and give the $612,500 to the institute trustees on Jan. 2, 1947. According to the petition interest of $58,916 is due, in addition to the principal of the endowment. Attorney Rogers said Mr. McCormick has continued to make his interest payments.

Counsel for Mrs. McCormick's estate, Edwin C. Austin, opposed the granting of the claim. He asserted that such a claim is payable under Illinois probate law only where the beneficiary incurred a liability upon the strength of the promise to pay.

Judge O'Connell then ordered the institute to produce witnesses and Dr. Ludvig Hektoen, the superintendent of the institution, was summoned to the witness stand in a move by the plaintiff to show the importance of the work accomplished there. Dr. Hektoen testified that through experiments conducted in the institute laboratories the cause of scarlet fever has been determined.

Serum Is Developed.

He added that a preventative serum had been developed and a test for susceptibility to the fever had been discovered through physicians working there. The witness said the claim against Mrs. McCormick's estate was being pressed because the institute is virtually without funds. He said a hospital which had been operated in conjunction with the laboratories had been closed because of the condition of the institute's financial affairs.

At this point Judge O'Connell continued the hearing until March 23.

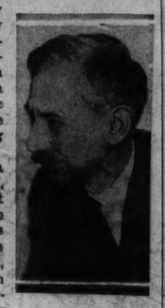
LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Memories

ATTORNEY KILLED BY NORTH SHORE ELECTRIC TRAIN

Gates Lowered Too Late, Witness Says.

John Clarke Baker, 57 years old, 347 Maple avenue, Wilmette, former trustee of that village, was fatally injured yesterday when his automobile was demolished by a train on the North Shore electric line at the Maple avenue crossing in the suburb.

Mr. Baker, a Chicago attorney, was driving east in Maple avenue when his car was struck by the electric train, which was south bound, and carried 100 feet along the right of way. Mr. Baker died in Evanston hospital shortly after the accident.



J. C. BAKER.

Witness Blames Watchman.

Miss Margaret Gorham, 251 Laurel avenue, Wilmette, who saw the crash, said the gateman, Charles O'Rourke, allowed the Baker car to get on the tracks before lowering the gates guarding the crosing. Miss Gorham also told police that O'Rourke failed to ring the warning bell. The charges were denied by the gateman.

Margaret, Edna, and Ralph Varney, sisters and brother who were riding on the front of the train, were bruised by the crash. They were treated at Evanston hospital.

Four More Auto Victims.

This death and four others yesterday brought to 141 the Cook county motor toll since Jan. 1. The victims:

Michael Uzelac, 49 years old, 540 Broadway, Blue Island. Died in the county hospital of injuries suffered Jan. 30 when he was struck by an automobile in front of 3122 North Clark street.

Oscar Berg, 36 years old, 5743 Emerald avenue. Died in the county hospital of injuries incurred Saturday. He was struck by an automobile while getting off a street car at Ashland avenue and 45th street.

Mrs. Helen Kowczewski, 28 years old, 1430 West Superior street. Died in the North Avenue hospital of injuries incurred when she was struck by an automobile at Wabansia and Milwaukee avenues Monday.

Mrs. Minnie Freytag, 47 years old, 3654 North Claremont avenue. Fatally injured by the automobile of Abe Segal, 5558 North Christiana avenue, as she attempted to cross Grace street at Western avenue. She died at the Martha Washington hospital.

Charges of manslaughter and leaving the scene of an accident against Alfred Codman, 23 years old, 2757 Pine Grove avenue, were continued yesterday until March 15 by Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the Felony court. Codman's automobile struck and killed Mrs. Elizabeth Freytag, 33 years old, 3145 Cambridge avenue, at Briar place and Sheridan road Saturday night.

RULES SONS MAY NOT FORCE DAD, 80, TO CELIBATE LIFE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Feb. 6.—Judge Donau of the tenth Viennese Civil court, today ruled that Anton, Carl and Robert Goetz may not compel their 80 year old father to live as if in celibacy as a condition for supporting him.

The elder Goetz has ten children by his first marriage and six by the second. Recently he married again, and will soon be a father the seventeenth time.

As Austrian law compels children to support indigent parents, three of Goetz' sons offered to give him ten schillings [currently about $1.78] daily providing he would agree to limit his family from now on. He refused to agree to abide by this condition and was today sustained by the court.

EVANSTON CHIEF IS UP AGAINST A DOG PROBLEM

Chief of Police William O. Freeman of Evanston held a debate with himself last night on the proposition: should Evanston adopt as a new member of its police force a Berlin trained police dog that understands German but no English. The offer of the animal, known as Hearold, was made by Otto Kamm, 1909 Lincoln street, its present owner.

"How," the chief asked himself, "can we tell Hearold what to do and whom to bite? Mistakes might be made if the dog should misunderstand what he's told. I am not even sure that Hearold could make the other dogs in town behave, as they all understand English."

He finally compromised by ordering a report made on whether there was a German speaking policeman on the force. If there is, he can have Mr. Kamm's dog for a helper.

Extras Proud of Their Acting in 'Rothschild'

Woman Stays on Job to Be with Husband.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 6.—During the closing scenes in "House of Rothschild" at United Artists Director Al Wuerker used two score Jewish people, many of them elderly, as atmosphere. As shots needed for one sequence were completed Wuerker and his assistant, Ben Silvey, passed through the groups of extras telling this and that one "We won't need you any more. You can get your check." The director selected five or six to stay and play character types for additional shots.

Silvey went to one pleasant faced old lady and told her she could draw her pay and go home. She demurred. Finally she went to Wuerker and said: "Can't I stay?"

"No, you must go now," the director said gently.

"But my husband is still here. I haven't been separated from him for forty-two years."

"O, is that the case?" said Wuerker. "Where is your husband?"

She pointed out a bearded man, obviously proud to extend his acting career a half day longer than his comrades. "Come here," Wuerker yelled to him. The old man's face fell. He feared his elimination.

"That's my husband," said the old lady proudly. "Never saw her before," the old gentleman said hurriedly.

"Why, papa!"

"I don't know you."

Wuerker and Silvey were astonished, then amused. The upshot of it was that both got checks for the extra half day's work.

At the annual meeting of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, which is the legal name of the Hollywood end of the Will Hays organization. Fred Beetson was rechosen as executive officer but his title changed from executive vice president to executive secretary-treasurer. Louis Mayer was reëlected president and Jack Warner and Winfield Sheehan as vice presidents. The name of the New York [or parent] end of the Hays organization is "Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc." Hays is president of that.

Mrs. Arnold Rothstein's story, "Now I'll Tell," covering 1912 to 1932, is the first directorial assignment given Edwin Burke, playwright and screen writer who went east to help Rothstein's widow write it. Spencer Tracy plays Rothstein and Alice Faye, the Broadway entertainer who is the murdered gambler's favorite in his rounds of Broadway night life. Fox is filming it.

Following preview of their musical, "Bottoms Up," this week, Buddy Desylva, producer; Sid. Silver, writer, actor and gag man, and Harold Adamson and Burton Lane, collaborators on the story, are going east together to put on the musical show, "Napoleon Jr.," in New York.

Rochelle Hudson says it's true she's engaged to a writer but it is not Barry Arivers. Trivers wired acquaintances here that he was much embarrassed in New York because, while it is true he's engaged, the girl's not Rochelle.

Katherine Quinn of Cleveland, O., who won a "slogan contest" about Mae West, has arrived to spend a week as guest of Mae and her studio. Her winning slogan: "The Girl Nobody Noes."

Gil Berry and wife, who have been keeping house in somewhat frugal fashion while Gil and the former Winnie Flint of Chicago were launching their movie careers, have received word that Winne's mother, Mrs. Amos T. Junior League in Chicago Is 'Very Serious'

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Miss Margot Atkin, president of the Junior league of Chicago, yesterday took exception to remarks made by Mrs. C. C. Rumsey, head of the consumers' advisory board of the NRA, concerning the Junior league at a press conference held by Mrs. Roosevelt. Mrs. Rumsey's declarations were published in a story by Genevieve Forbes Herrick in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

Mrs. Rumsey, one of the founders of the Junior league in New York, declared that at that time "our purpose was to help our neighbor," and that "now, especially in the big cities, the purpose seems to be for the girls to help themselves. They have magnificent quarters and swim and get their nails manicured. Too often it is a service club, but for the members' own benefit."

Miss Atkin declared that the Junior league of Chicago regretted that Mrs. Rumsey's statements "are so far in spirit and fact from the purposes and achievements of the present Junior league." She pointed out that the local Junior league, the sixth in the country, founded in 1912, "has contributed thousands of dollars in actual money to various charities in the city."

In addition, her written statement read, it "has supplied charity organizations with hundreds of volunteers upon whose interested coöperation these charities have come to depend."

"You see, we are very serious minded," Miss Atkin explained further in an interview. "That's why it hurts to have Mrs. Rumsey say such unfair things. It is true that some cities, New York, for instance, have elaborate clubhouses, but that is separate from their philanthropic work. We have no clubhouse here.

"Our sole purpose is to make a real contribution to our community. I feel that the Junior league name stands for something. It stands for intelligence utilized for the community. The only benefit our members get is the joy they feel in taking an active part in the community."

Asked what the qualification for membership in the league was, she said:

"I don't think it would be wise to say. It's a very intangible thing, very hard to describe. But being rich has nothing to do with it. It never has, contrary to popular opinion. Of course, we take into consideration whether a girl's family has contributed anything constructive to the life of a community."

Mrs. Carleton Scribner, editor of the league's twice monthly magazine, The Chicago Calendar, whose proceeds go to charity, declared that members of the Junior league had a sense of "noblesse oblige." Miss Atkin agreed, saying: "We feel that our work for charity justifies our having leisure and privileges."

"I know that we're much more expert as volunteer workers for charitable agencies than members of the league were in our friend Mrs. Rumsey's times," Miss Atkin said. "Occasionally we run into resentment against us in social work, just because in those days the girls knew so little about such work."

"Our whole aim is that just because we are girls in the leisure class with a capacity for influence we don't want to sit about playing bridge," she said. "Mrs. Rumsey intimates that we lead idle lives, when our whole aim is to be worth while.

"A girl might be rich and socially prominent and still not get in the Junior league," she amplified. "The founders, Mrs. Rumsey and the others, were all debutantes, but all of our members now have not made debuts. Some are poor. Some work. It's true that they have to have social standing, but it's more than that, it's social responsibility they must have. They have to have constructive ideas and —it's difficult to define, but we are very serious."

Mrs. Mullaney Describes Her French Garden

Color Movies Show Beauty Spot Near Paris.

BY JUDITH CASS.

"When a woman shows you her garden she shows you her heart," said Mrs. Welch Dickinson in her pretty French yesterday afternoon as she introduced Mrs. Bernard J. Mullaney to the members of Le Cercle Français. Mrs. Mullaney, smartly gowned in black and white, gave a running commentary on the lovely colored moving pictures that were shown of her estate near Paris, explaining this and that view and this and that corner of her 25 acres and making each of her listeners wish that she, too, might have such gardens.

If the pictures did not deceive the audience Mrs. Mullaney's heart must be perfectly beautiful, vividly and multicolored and very, very large, for that is the impression one got of her gardens. In 1926 when as Mrs. Georgia Blackman Pratt she bought the estate, which is two and a half miles from Chantilly, there were no gardens, but by 1930 the gardens were blooming riotously in phlox, azaleas, rhododendrons, roses, tulips, and iris, from April until mid-November.

The gardens extend from the lower part of the park up through seven terraces to the villa; around the "piscine" [swimming pool], and back of the gardener's cottages, poultry houses, and other farm buildings, all of which are filled with American stock, even to the three little pigs.

There was applause often during the showing of the pictures, so clearly were the sheer beauty and the lovely color of the flowers shown in the pictures. And the applause was as much for the creator of so much loveliness as it was for the loveliness itself, for Mrs. Mullaney, then Mrs. Pratt, planned the gardens herself and did the landscaping.

Will Repeat Talk for Garden Clubs.

Although she lives in Chicago now Mrs. Mullaney still owns the estate and she and her husband spent three months there last summer. They were married in Paris in September, 1932. Mrs. Mullaney will repeat the talk she gave yesterday, in English, however, and show the pictures again on March 12 before the State Federation of Garden Clubs.

After the talk yesterday tea was served, Mrs. Lewis Bernays, wife of the British consul general, and Mrs. Vernon Herbst pouring. Mrs. Bernays, who had a gay green and black checked bow under her chin, was planning birthdays for two of her sons, Bob, who was a Valentine baby, and Peter, who will be a year older on the 23d. Assisting was pretty Mrs. John Kohler who had come to the lecture with Mrs. Bernays and who was the envy of many, she speaks such beautiful French. She and her husband, son of the former governor of Wisconsin, who were married about a year ago, are living in Chicago after a summer in Winnetka.

Lecture in English at Italy Society.

Most of the "conversazione" at the meeting and tea that the Italy America society will hold this afternoon in Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland's apartment at 2450 Lake View avenue will be in Italian, but the talk that Miss Lucy Martin will give will be in English, so those whose Italian isn't so good needn't fear that they won't be able to understand the speaker.

Not all the members of the society speak Italian fluently, but those who do always take advantage of the opportunity to converse in that musical tongue when there is a meeting of the society.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

Mr. Sims is universally acclaimed the greatest living contract and auction player. He was captain of the renowned "Four Horsemen" team of four, now disbanded, and has won twenty-four national championships since 1924. These articles are based on the Sims system, which includes the one-over-one principle which the Sims group of players was the first to employ and develop.

CARD VALUATION.

SINCE bidding is an attempt to find out how many tricks you may hope to take in the eventual play of the hand, we must value high cards in terms of tricks.

When opening the bidding one seldom knows for sure whether one will be the declarer or play the hand in defense. It is, therefore, vital at this stage to count as trick winners only such cards or combinations of cards as can be depended upon to capture tricks in either case. These we term "primary tricks." Other values are designed as "secondary values" or "protective intermediates."

P. HAL SIMS.

When I speak of "primary tricks," I mean high cards which should be able to capture the first or second lead of a suit, even in defense.

Table of Primary Tricks.

Two tricks: Ace, king of the same suit.

One and a half tricks: Ace, queen of the same suit.

One trick: [1] An ace or [2] king, queen of the same suit.

Half trick: A king accompanied by one or more smaller cards.

Not more than two primary tricks can be counted in any one suit because if the opponents play the hand the third round will probably be trumped.

Valuing the Queen, Jack, Small Combination.

You are probably accustomed to counting the above holding as a half trick under all conditions. With this I disagree, and at certain periods of the bidding I give this holding REBID or SECONDARY value only.

I feel that it is unsatisfactory to give the same value to this combination as a king in either first or second hand because:

[1] In itself it is useless for slams. Should the ace of the suit be located in the partner's hand, there is still no assurance that a trick will not be lost in the suit.

[2] This so-called half trick may prove extremely disappointing in defense. Against a high suit contract, the queen-jack holding is likely to be trumped on the third round or trapped behind the ace, king, 10.

It is very risky to double a game no-trump bid through reliance on this holding as a stopper. The declarer will often be able to clear and keep leading his long suit and so squeeze your protective cards, forcing a fatal discard to keep another suit guarded.

When the Q J Is Valued at One-half Trick.

[a] If your partner has already passed, little danger exists that he will carry the bidding too far, thinking he has located a king.

[b] If you are making an overcall.

[c] If you are making a response bid, with certain reservations, which will be discussed in the article on responses.

Jacks and jack-tens are accorded no primary trick values, even in combination with higher cards, that is, A J or K J. I do not underrate the importance of these cards in the play of the hand, even in defense, but I consider it unsafe to include them automatically, in the original bid. They do not supply the quick control that the original bid must provide if your partner is to feel safe in bidding a slam or doubling the opponents through reliance on the soundness of your bid.

I look on them as strictly secondary values. Be assured, however, that their helpfulness is not overlooked. The nature of my partner's response will enable me to judge the usefulness of these low honors and to incorporate them in my subsequent bidding without risk of disappointment.

For the same reason, a queen with two small cards carries no primary valuation. I cannot expect it to reinforce a high card in my partner's hand, and thus produce a trick, until he shows me that he holds some face cards; it is, therefore, only a secondary value.

Tilt Your Hat at Any Angle Fancy Dictates

BY RHEA SEEGER.

If you have peered into the fully exposed faces of the wrong women under these ubiquitous push-back hats until you are so weary of the affairs that nothing or anything could persuade you to wear one yourself, be of good cheer. Brims are returning, and you will be comforted with the authentic information that you are perfectly free to wear your pet hat any place on your head . . . except the far-flung back way that has tried your soul and face for the last few months.

The new hats will keep you individual. You need no longer look like three thousand other shoppers. . . . If a chapeau looks infinitely more dashing worn contrarily down over the left eye instead of the right, do wear it that way and purr with content.

If you crave brims that shadow your eyes and make a mystery lady out of you, here's your chance to plant huge flat affairs well down over both eyes for double attraction.

If you are one of those females with fingers that itch to twist and turn and dip the brim of a hat hither and yon and mostly yon, this is the year you can go completely capricious and dip every hat you can buy to suit the angles and curves of your hairdress or face.

But, we're warning you, these new wide "flats" will stun you and every one else at first sight . . . they are quite abandoned affairs ranging from plateau effects like phonograph discs to the uncompromising stiffness of a huge cartwheel. However, there are some smoothies that coyly curl up the first few inches and either give you a surprised eyebrow-lifted looking appeal or else the fresh, dashing, sleek, stylish smartness such hats achieve.

The sailors have landed and conquered the town—from jaunty little tilted things swaggering with shallow crowns and a casual band for trimmings to larger, more generously sized models that will remind you of dancing Spanish senoritas or the overwhelming creations worn in the Gibson Girl era . . . but the most cheering news is the fashion fact of the freedom of the stance of any new hat you may decide to wear.

Decide on Anteroom for Robbins-Forbes Marriage Ceremony

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 6.—Controversy as to the scene of the Robbins-Forbes mixed marriage, in which the daughter of the United States minister to Canada is a principal, the mother of the President of the United States is expected to be a witness, was settled here today by arrangements for a Saturday afternoon ceremony in an anteroom of the archbishop's palace adjoining the basilica.

The bride embraces the Roman Catholic faith while her intended husband, a Bostonese, does not, and the Roman Catholic church decreed that the wedding would have to be performed in the vestry as customary in mixed marriages.

At one time today the wedding sponsors proposed moving the nuptial ceremony to Chalmers United church.

Learn of Lake Forest Marriage Ceremony Held After Midnight

Not even the Lake Forest neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Lithgow Mitchell have known that a marriage ceremony was performed in the drawing room of the Mitchells' Washington road home early on Jan. 19. At 12:10 a. m. on that date Mrs. Marjorie Ross Sharp of Sioux Falls, S. D., a niece of Mrs. Arthur Reynolds, became the bride of Harry Paul Degen of Kansas City. Edwin Burgess, a justice of the peace, read the service after the license had been obtained at 11 o'clock the evening of Jan. 18.

Besides the Mitchells the only others present were the bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ross, and the bridegroom's brother and sister-in-law, the Albert Degens of Winnetka.

Mrs. Sharp and Mr. Degen, who came to Chicago for a short visit with the Albert Degens, decided on the 18th to be married. Inviting Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell—Mr. Mitchell is a business associate of Albert Degen—to be witnesses they came in town only to find the marriage license bureau closed.

Then at the Mitchells' suggestion the party went to Waukegan, obtained the license, rounded up the magistrate, and had the wedding at the Mitchells. The occasion was topped off with a champagne supper.

"Can I say a vord, plizz," he begged. "Just von vord."

No one paid any attention to his pleadings for a time but finally some one pushed him toward the mike. Putting his mouth close to the little black disc, he shouted to all the world:

Before they went in to their seats she purchased a libretto of the opera for him. Asked the next day by one of his friends what he had heard, the young collegian replied:

"O, a goofy thing named Libretto."

THE other evening a Chicagoan invited some friends to a dinner which was to be a sort of belated repeal celebration. A regiment of wine glasses stood beside each plate, and cocktails were dispensed with so the palate of the guests might not be blunted for the wines that were to be served at dinner. There was a pale, dry sherry with the soup, and a delicate white wine with the fish. Fine old Pommery accompanied the roast, and champagne the dessert. After dinner brandy was served in great balloon glasses, the aroma of the brandy intensified by the warmed glasses, an inferior quality having first been burned in them.

"You must have a wonderful cellar, Mr. Blank," sighed one of the guests after dinner.

The host's reply somehow was a surprise and a letdown.

"O, no, I bought it all this afternoon at the chain drugstore on the corner," he said.

Banishing Shiny Nose

[TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

One way to outwit the depressing tendency toward a shiny nose. You use a special anti-shine cream or lotion on the area most inclined to gleam, usually the forehead, nose, and chin.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

The woman whose nose gets shiny shortly after powdering and who curses her powder for its lack of stick-to-itiveness might be interested in knowing what a cosmetic expert told us the other day. He'd been working on that because he's interested in face powders. He found in his own laboratories that about 35 per cent of face powder doesn't fall off or get rubbed off during the course of the day. It's there all right, but is swimming about invisibly in a sea of oil. You just don't see the powder for the shine.

What to do, then, for shiny nose trouble? You can't blame it on the powder any more. If it's a real problem with you you've got to shop around for a special sort of foundation that takes care of the area most inclined to gleam.

Several of the good lines of cosmetics have foundations that are to be used just on the nose, forehead, and chin. One house has an effective brownish liquid, some have whitish lotions and some have creams. In the accompanying picture the pretty girl is showing just how such a cream, a new one, is used. This type of cream is less spready than the average foundation cream and must be blended rather cleverly on the forehead, down the nose where the oil usually does its worst, and, if that area is prone to shininess, the chin.

These special anti-shine foundations are nice little things to have handy on the dressing table, and if you use one you'll be honorably discharged from the shiny nose army.

THE WILD BIRD

By OWEN JOHNSON

SYNOPSIS.

Barbara Brawne, aged 22, is completely dominated by an adoring though jealous father, who is against every modern idea and improvement. Lynwood, their home, is in the prim and proper village of Oxbridge, a place of intellectual sanctity. Barbara seems predestined to join the ranks of the village spinsters. Her father scares away any would-be suitors. She contemplates rebellion. Gregory Rance, popular novelist, is visiting her cousin, Laurie Chiswick. They are mutually attracted. Barbara overhears Rance asking Laurie about her. He says she is the sort of girl he'd want to marry. Barbara proposes to Rance. But Rance is divorced and her father hates divorce. Barbara invites him to a small dinner party and introduces him to her father as a casual acquaintance. Her father suspects Barbara's interest in Rance. He won't have him in the house again.

INSTALLMENT XXI.

SURRENDER.

"Gregory Rance happens to be an extremely honest person who says out loud what every one else in this generation is thinking," said Barbara.

Brawne sat down, staring at his daughter, amazed and incredulous.

"She talks of this generation! She is one of them!"

"No, father, it isn't on account of his opinion that you resent Gregory Rance. A lot of what he said you have said a hundred times. You are determined to dislike him because of just one thing—you know that's the kind of man I would be interested in."

He bridled up instantly.

"So you admit it?"

"Admit what? That I am interested in him? Of course I am. When I marry I want to marry just that sort of man, some one like Gregory Rance or Jack Bryce, men who have something in their brains, who belong to the future, who are alive and open minded!"

"In a word, who are everything that your father isn't!"

He rose angrily, but for the moment the suffering of the night and the instinct to defend her lover had left Barbara too angry to relent.

"It is no use trying to put me off the track by remarks like that," she continued sternly. "You have got to be just and understanding of my rights and now you are not."

"I have said what I have said," he replied, going to the door. "When

"I withdraw all I said. Invite whoever you want."

I am here two days a week I intend that my feelings shall be respected. The rest of the time you can do as you choose. That is all. The incident is closed."

When he had gone down in the garden to consider the matter he felt that all he had builded was nothing but a pack of cards which collapsed before his eyes.

In the end, despite all his precautions, he had lost his daughter. She was one of them, one of this accursed younger generation, without respect or loyalty.

"I have stood by what my father was and believed," he thought gloomily. "Carried on the old strain, loved the things he did because he loved them, and now my own daughter rejects everything I believe in, probably just because I do believe in it."

Over night she had slipped away from him. She was no longer his child to direct. It was the damnable French blood of her mother and grandmother in her. The thing he had always feared and fought against. . . . This was a crisis different from all the other tests of his authority. There could be no riding roughshod—no beating down of her resistance. He would have to conciliate her, persuade by carefully considered arguments. Win her back by old affections. . . .

"What am I going to do about it?" he asked himself gloomily. Already he had blundered and, having blundered, been forced to yield. Even then she had not accepted the compromise. He would have to retreat from his ultimatum, retreat completely. Otherwise—"Your house," she had said. The meaning was unmistakable. If he sought to dictate her friends as he had always done she would establish her own home. What was there to prevent her? Twenty-two and her own income.

When he turned to Rance his thoughts became gloomier. If Barbara turned to Rance it would be a complete desertion. He resented his bigness, his youth and vitality, his abrupt frankness and contempt for subterfuge, his confidence and his air of success. He had looked him in the eye and recognized that he was some one, a personality that could not be lightly dismissed, a man of serious ambitions. The things he wanted he would fight for with a tenacity that would be difficult to meet. For the first time he was frightened. Would the man prove too strong for him?

He was not certain just how far the intimacy had progressed, but his intuitions warned him that the danger was real. The thing to do was to temporize. In October he would take Barbara away to Egypt and up the Nile, a trip long planned. Get her away, temporize, swallow his pride, compromise, anything—but get her away. A man like Rance, with his contacts, would forget easily——

He returned to the house with the intention of seeking Barbara, but he learned to his dismay that she had left and would not return for lunch. He sat down at the table and shut himself up in his silence, staring at the aunts. Heavens, how old they all were. It was a presage of what the house would be like if youth should depart from it. To sit down three times a day, three old people, waited upon by old Thomas—a house devoid of youth and loveliness, empty, silent, predestined!

The Sunday afternoon train left at five. Barbara had never failed to drive him to the station. But today? Would she harden her heart and stay away or would she relent? Tea time came and the aunts came down for the ceremony, but no Barbara. He listened for her step on the veranda, hoping against hope.

"This is what it is coming to," he thought. "You can't stave it off much longer. Some day—sooner or later—you will be left like this—alone."

"And where is Barbara, Martin?" said Aunt Abbie, with the ear trumpet.

"Yes, where is Barbara?" repeated Aunt Mattie, putting on her spectacles. "She always is in for Sunday tea."

"She's been out all day, Martin."

"Don't you think it strange, Martin?"

He shook his head angrily.

"She'll come," he said with decision, and went out and stood on the porch.

And presently Barbara did come, but soberly and perfunctorily, without smiles, evading questions.

"She didn't want to come," he said to himself. "She wants to be somewhere else, with him perhaps. Still, she did come."

He went down and, taking her by the arm, led her to the seat under the great oak that stood at the top of the long descent to the river. He cleared his throat, made one or two false starts, and finally, almost inaudibly, said:

"I have thought it over." He stopped, but she gave no sign of relenting. "I have been thinking it over all morning. I had hoped to talk things over with you—but you—— There is one thing you must know. Your home, my dear, is here. I cannot bear the thought that—that it is a prison to you." She turned and looked at him so that under her clear look he became flustered and blurted out, "Barbara, don't be angry at me."

"I do not want to be angry with you," she said stiffly.

He looked away.

"I withdraw all I said. A mistake. Invite whoever you want at any time. Because it is your home, my dear."

"That is only just."

"I am out of touch with the things as they are going on," he said in a low voice. "Perhaps they were right and my world is gone. Perhaps I've been wrong in imposing it on you—as I have. From now on you are to do as you please." He hesitated and, disliking and fearing his old trick of appealing to her sympathies, she wondered what was coming. "Do as your generation does, my dear, if it will make you any happier—because if you felt that to live your own life as you want, you couldn't do so with me; if you should leave I—well, it would be the end of everything, that's all." He coughed, straightened up and added, "You've always wanted an automobile. Go and get it, the best you can find, and send the bill to me with your forgiveness."

Varied Part to Hair May Add Facial Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The "part" in the hair is taking on big interest right now.

There are women who go through life with the hair parted practically at exactly the same spot. The idea of shifting it over to the other side, or of raising it an inch one way or the other, is something that never occurs. But hairdressers, and women themselves, are discovering that you can make quite a remarkable facial improvement with a shift of the part.

A change in the part is really good for the hair. You might take a person who has been wearing her hair, for a long time, parted over the outer eyebrow edge and then raise that part so that it's just a little to the side of the center of the head, and there is, seemingly, a remarkable change in the shape of the face. I've seen this done with highly satisfactory results. Women have created an interesting change by shifting the part over to the other side of the head, again a change that is good for the hair.

Time was when we used to think one had to have a Madonna shaped face and a similar expression to get away with a center part. But that rule, like the old color rules that used to cheat some of us out of a good lift to the spirits, is no longer arbitrary. There are so many other things to be taken into consideration now, such as a neckline, say. With one kind of neckline, a girl might find the middle part not at all good for her but, with another kind of neckline, the center part is the right thing. Naturally, a middle part will not be becoming to every one. One does need a fairly regular profile to wear it well. But we talk of this particular hair part as we are doing, to indicate that it is something with which to experiment. And a change of coiffure is just as good for the soul as a change of hat.

This year, particularly, everything seems to be celebrating a new dawn. So why not you and your hairdress?

You may imagine, too, with hair being ordered off the face and parts being investigated for their beautifying possibilities, how serious becomes the business of beautifying those locks of yours. So better shine the hair and scalp up so that the new coiffure may be a success.

Decision About Two Eligibles Is Girl's Worry

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Two men are deeply interested in "Puzzled." She has known them both for a long time. One is fifteen years older than she, the other her own age, 24. The older man is prominent in his profession, wealthy, a wonderful person, kind, considerate, thoughtful, indulgent, even.

But No. 2 comes on the wings of real heart beats. In his company the material possessions appear to mean nothing. This one is mystery, romance, adventure, all three capitalized. BUT—

"Many people," the girl argues wisely enough, too, "marry for love and are miserable because they are poor."

Her Romance with the capital R is not poor, however. He has a job, but is far below the other in social and financial stature.

An embarrassment of riches, say we, in summarizing the girl's problem. And who can advise, but the girl herself, which of the two men would insure her the happiest life? For it depends entirely upon her own character and makeup.

It's a difficult thing to decide between a deep affection and ample funds on the one hand, and romantic love on the other. Maybe not at seventeen, but at 24 life has taken on certain values, certain necessities as desirable, and certain privations as insurmountable. The things that the richer suitor may have to offer may be the very things the girl secretly longs for. In every woman's soul, on the other hand, there is that taste for adventure that comes with the mysteriously romantic. But living with it may be something else again. It depends on the girl, and how honestly she is in love with the bearer of it, not only in love with him, but temperamentally fitted to play his kind of life, enjoy his kind of fun, share his limited stipend. Granted she is the temperamental mate in every sense of the word, this is the man who'll give her what she wants out of life. But, if she is the kind who looks over the rim of this offering at the luxuries hanging from another tree, she'd better marry the other man. If hardship with the man she loves looms as a hardship, it's a question if there is a great love.

BY MARY MEADE.

There's something decidedly jolly about opening the front door these gusty mornings and knowing perfectly well that, if the milk card was ejected last night, there'll be milk this morning, sitting all calm and contained in its bottles instead of wasting its fragrance in the Chicago river.

And, to add to the gayety of the scene, it's like discovering that, after all, there is a Santa Claus to remember that dollars are being neatly lopped off our milk bill each month or so now by the penny which wise milk dispensers have dropped from the price of each quart of precious milk. So, if you were starting to "view with alarm" a few weeks ago, and perhaps cutting down a bit on the young one's quart or the grownups' two cups a day, why just forget it. Milk is again reachable and more reasonable. And, as ever, it remains one of the most important foods we can buy for boosting home health and young growth and strength.

But if that isn't news, maybe here's something that is. Have you been running the soup gamut back and forth between tomato, potato, and bean, with only short stopoffs for bowls of corn, onion, and celery? Then I want to amble in with a few remarks. For, if you don't have a cluster of naturally born milk drinkers in your family you're going to have trouble almost surely in getting those needed cups below hatch. On the other hand, vegetables sometimes turn out to be the pitfall into which family peace goes tumbling. So why not marry the two problems and more often, for lunch or supper, serve up noble bowls of saucy soups, matching milk with vegetables seldom, if ever, seen in soup at your house.

Beets make a superior starter. This recipe brings you 6 cups of soup:

CREAM OF BEET SOUP.

2 medium onions, minced
2 tablespoons butter
2 cups chopped canned or cooked beets
1 cup rich meat stock
1 quart whole milk
2 teaspoons salt
Pepper to taste
1½ tablespoons vinegar

Simmer the onions in the butter until they are tender and yellow. Add the meat stock, milk, and beets, heating just to the boiling point. [Two beef cubes dissolved in 1 cup of boiling water will do if no meat stock is on hand.] Stir in the seasoning, remove from the fire, and add the vinegar. Serve at once.

CREAMED BROCCOLI SOUP.

Clean and cut up a good size head of broccoli, dropping the pieces into two quarts of boiling water, to which has been added a small piece of smoked ham for flavor. Turn down the flame and simmer gently for two hours. Add salt and pepper to season, also a tablespoon of minced onions and a clove of garlic, which have been fried together. Let the soup come back to a boil, then strain it through a sieve. Add ½ cup of coffee cream and serve, reheated, with toasted croutons floating on top.

CREAM OF CAULIFLOWER SOUP.

1 medium head of cauliflower
1 small onion, sliced
2 tablespoons butter
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
4 cups milk
Grated cheese

Separate the cauliflower into flowerlets and soak these 20 minutes in cold salted water. Rinse the pieces and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, and run through a coarse food chopper. Simmer the sliced onion in the butter until yellow and tender. Add the milk, seasoning, and cauliflower. Serve very hot, with strips of melba toast and a chubby bowl of grated cheese for sprinkling the soup tops.

Adolescence Is Just a Normal Time of Change

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Adolescence, as some one has a little facetiously said, is not a disease.

That may sound silly to you, but as a matter of fact there are a great many people who seem to regard adolescence almost as they do measles or scarlet fever—as a disease which attacks children when they reach their teens. There are parents who look forward to it with apprehension, when, if they could only understand it, it would appear to them as what it is—a perfectly normal transition which need not cause anyone much concern.

Parents have a way of expecting the most troublesome traits to sprout suddenly at this time—entirely new characteristics that materialize out of thin air just because a boy or girl is maturing mentally and physically.

There are, of course, changes that are a part of adolescence—but they are a natural part of it and they will not become troublesome or be a cause for worry if these three things are right:

First, if we as parents have done a good job up to that time.

Second, if we understand what the teens mean in the life of our child, and

Third, if we change our management of our offspring, no longer treating them as little children, but recognizing their need for a growing independence.

It is on this last point that the greatest mistakes are made. This does not mean that boys and girls in their teens must be allowed to do anything they please—far from it. But it means that it is necessary for them to be given much of the consideration we give to grownups, so that they do not feel restive under a childish restraint. This, then, coupled with a happy and well ordered earlier childhood, will prevent real trouble in adolescence. It is then that wise and loving management bears its fruit.

Many New Colors for Spring Appear in Fashion Shows

A wide range of new colors in cotton materials will usher in the spring and summer season it was indicated at the spring fashion revue at the Merchandise Mart last night. The show was held in connection with the display of wash dress and children's apparel which began last week. A crowd of 2,000 buyers and merchants filled the hall where the 100 foot runway was built. Everything from the popular short frocks to bridal and garden party gowns was shown.

Tropical hues, Chinese reds and blues, Mexican streaks, American Indian, and pottery colors were featured as the new shades for feminine summer apparel. Fabrics are more varied than ever before, according to several of the retailers. Seersucker, tailored linens, and pique, in stripes and gay checks, are slated for first place in popularity among the sports outfits. Parasols were seen with the garden frocks, adding a new-old touch.

Two other style shows were held last night at the Hotel Sherman and the Morrison hotel, both displaying a wide variety of silk and cotton wear for every occasion.

Individual Quilt Uses Pompoms to Nice Advantage

Baby Chrysanthemum

BY NANCY CABOT.

This is a most appealing little quilt block, with its two tiny pompoms of rust and yellow, combined with brown and green. One might almost say there is a speaking likeness, so striking are the flowers with their dark centers. It is one of the youngest in the quilty family and, with its extreme individualty, it is destined to go far.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service office, One South Dearborn.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—President and Mrs. Roosevelt tonight gave the last one of the state dinners for this season, when they entertained for the speaker of the house and Mrs. Henry T. Rainey. The company included Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis and Senator and Mrs. William H. Dieterich of Illinois; Representative and Mrs. Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, Representative and Mrs. William B. Bankhead of Alabama, Representative Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, the president of Cornell university and Mrs. Livingston Farrand, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Spalding.

Following the dinner John Charles Thomas, baritone, and Albert Spalding, violinist, gave a program in the east room to which several hundred additional guests were asked.

Mrs. Roosevelt was entertained at luncheon today by Mrs. Homer S. Cummings, wife of the attorney general. Among the other guests were Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, Mrs. Walter J. Cummings of Chicago, and Mrs. J. Bruce Kremer.

and Mrs. Higley's summer home at Gloucester, Mass., the latter part of June.

Luncheon Today for Mrs. Edward McGrew.

Miss Lucy Harrison is givin a luncheon today at the Casino for a very attractive young bridge who has come to Chicago to make her home. She is Mrs. Edward D. McGrew, wife of a young man who has been living here since his graduation from the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania in 1931, and who was a favorite young bachelor with the debutante crowd.

Both Mrs. McGrew and Mr. McGrew were reared in Parkersburg, W. Va. Mrs. McGrew is the former Julia Morris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hewitt E. Morris, and she attended Goucher college in Virginia and the Katharine Gibbs school in New York. Mr. McGrew, the son of Mrs. O. Dustin McGrew, and his bride are living on Dearborn parkway, but the middle of the month will find them settled in an apartment at 934 Judson avenue in Evanston.

Many Functions for Mrs. Churchman.

Parties galore await the arrival today of Mrs. Charles Churchman of Philadelphia, who comes to be the house guest of Col. and Mrs. Ralph H. James for a fortnight. Mrs. Churchman, the former Emily Biddle, arrives at 1:30 just in time to be whisked up to the James' apartment on Walton place for a late luncheon.

Mrs. James and Mrs. Churchman have been friends for years and Col. James and the late Mr. Churchman were the best of friends.

Mrs. James is having a cocktail party for Mrs. Churchman tomorrow afternoon at her home and on Friday evening she and Col. James will entertain for her at a small dinner party. On Saturday night the Howard Gillettes, who also count Mrs. Churchman one of their best friends, will entertain for her at dinner.

American Beauty roses, old silver, jade fruits and lovely lace made the tea table in Mrs. George Rasmussen's French dining room one of rare beauty yesterday at the tea party she gave at her home at 3400 Sheridan road for the board members of the Passavant hospital.

The jade fruits in jade bowls on bases of teakwood especially were admired by all the guests who enjoyed tea or coffee poured by Mrs. Harry H. Shearson and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid, or cocktails served by the butler.

The conversation centered on the benefit the board is sponsoring, the opening night of the Monte Carlo ballet on Feb. 16, at the Auditorium theater and there was great delight when Mrs. Francis Johnson, president, said that all the boxes were sold and that only about a hundred tickets were left.

Miss Katharyne Linn and her brother, Winfield Scott Linn, are giving a cocktail party Friday at their apartment, 399 Fullerton parkway.

Scott Durands to New Zealand.

The Scott S. Durands, never content with staying long in one place, are on another journey. They have gone to New Zealand by way of California and will not be at home again for ten weeks or longer.

Mrs. Charles M. Kittle and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Beuttas are sailing on the 10th for a West Indies cruise.

About the first of March the Harold C. Smiths and two of their daughters, Miss Elizabeth Smith and Miss Anne Smith, are leaving on a cruise through the Panama canal to California. This method of traveling west seems to become more popular every day. Instead of spending a week or so in California the Smiths will go en famille to Phoenix for a few days before returning to their apartment on Lake Shore drive.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Harahan of the Knickerbocker hotel, who have been planning a trip to California via the Panama canal, have postponed the trip for three weeks. Mr. Harahan's stepmother, Mrs. James T. Harahan Sr., who now makes her home in New York, is on her way around the world, and will stop in Chicago on her way from San Francisco to New York to see all of her old friends. She will be here some time in March or April.

Miss Catherine Patrick, daughter of Dr. Hugh T. Patrick of 1428 State parkway, has gone to South Goldsboro, N. C., to visit her brother and sister-in-law, the Talbot Patricks. She left a week ago and will not return to Chicago for at least another month, for she plans to go to Florida after she has spent a few weeks with the Patricks.

Miss Doris Tansill, daughter of the Robert W. Tansills of Wilmette, left last Saturday for Pasadena, where she will visit the Robert Harvey Smiths and their son, Robert H. Smith Jr.

From Winter Park, Fla., comes the news that Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley and Miss Lillian Dudley have arrived at that popular winter resort and have taken a cottage near the Alabama hotel for the rest of the winter. Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey has opened her house on the Via Tuscany facing Lake Maitland, where she will be joined later by her daughter, Miss Mary MacCaughey.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Barnes left last night to spend several months in California. During Mr. Barnes' absence members of the board of trustees will conduct the Sunday Evening club meetings in Orchestra hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Kingsley Buel Colton are being congratulated upon the birth of a daughter on Sunday at St. Luke's hospital.

With much regret the English Speaking union is announcing this morning the cancellation of the buffet supper party it was to have had for Patrick Braybrooke tomorrow evening at the Palmer house. A conflict in dates is the cause.

Hindu Dinner U. of C. Tonight.

It will be a simple matter to distinguish the native Indians who attend the Hindu dinner of the Friends of India at 6 o'clock this evening at the International house at the University of Chicago. According to the tradition of their land they will eat with their finger tips up to the first knuckle.

The dinner, given for Dr. Vernon Herbst, who has spent considerable time in India the last several years, will be in true Hindu style. Fruit bowls and candies will be the table decoration and the menu will start with the Indian version of a shrimp cocktail . . . shrimps seasoned with cocoanut milk and essence of tomato.

Then there will be lamb curry . . . dhal served with it . . . and after this vermicelli with raisins highly spiced. Cocoanuts and tea will top off the meal.

At 8 o'clock Dr. Herbst will show the movies he took while visiting some of the Indian maharajahs. Robert Cashman is to be the toastmaster.

Mrs. Frank Wheeler is giving a dinner party tonight and later taking her guests to David Itkin's world premiere production of a new three act play by Alice Gerstenberg at the De Paul University Little theater on East Lake street. The play, entitled "Deep Desire," will be repeated tomorrow, Friday and Saturday. It is played by fourteen women and, although the plot deeply is concerned about men, none appears in the play.

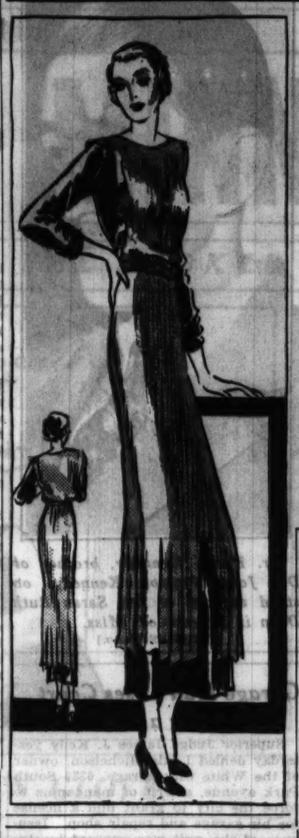
Paris Trots Out Toppers, Tunics, Vests to Refresh the Tired Winter Frock



BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Vests, toppers, and tunics to pull on over your simple winter dress are coming out by the hundreds in Paris. They supply an idea to make your old frock look new and so get through the rest of the season and into spring with style honors. The slip-over tunics, which Paris makes of lamé, metalized moire, and of crepe silk with metal threads ambling through its weave are charming, and they supply a make over idea suitable particularly to the matron. The Martial et Armand tunic in our sketch is a case in point.

The dress is merely a background for the tunic in this model. It is made of black satin and is starkly simple with three-quarters length sleeves. The tunic is of pastel blue silk having silver threads running through it. The bateau neckline simplifies getting into this tunic and is also fashionable. The edges of the blouse part of the tunic are banded with bias bands, and the hem of the skirt is plaited to a depth of about ten inches and split in front. At the waistline there is a plain self material belt with a buckle of rhinestones.

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

A play of decided interest as an imaginary footnote to American history was staged in the Chicago Woman's club theater last night under the title, "If Both Had Missed." It is offered by the Uptown Players, a group of amateurs whose earnest and often capable activities are winning a following among the theater goers of the town. In this case they are decidedly amateur in execution, for the play contains 35 characters and is therefore a large order for a group of novices. This work, however, is too stimulating and provocative in its material to be defeated by fumbling interpretation.

The story of Lincoln's survival into the political storms of the reconstruction period is told in five scenes. Booth's stroke of assassination is frustrated by a Negro servant; Thaddeus Stevens plots venomously to defeat Lincoln's plans for kindly treatment of the stricken south; congress ties the President's hands by legislation hostile to him and the former rebel states; and the lust for revenge prevails over the spirit of clemency and reconciliation. Even Gen. Grant turns brutally against his commander-in-chief.

In the spring of 1867 impeachment proceedings are brought against Lincoln on the charge of refusing to enforce acts of congress. He is acquitted—and then assassinated in the senate chamber. This time it is a journalist who fires the shot—Hilton, editor of a weekly journal of opinion. Mr. Hilton's earlier conduct in the play is characteristic of the editors of weekly journals of opinion, but whether or not he runs true to form in becoming John Wilkes Booth's successor is a debatable matter.

The rôle of the President is represented by Howard Cox with fidelity to the portraits and the descriptions of Lincoln's voice and manner. "If Booth Had Missed" will be kept in performance nightly through the rest of the week.

Artists' Equity to Hold Jungle Ball Saturday

Adviser Tells Purposes of Organization.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Who are Chicago's artists?

This is the question that confronts two dozen representative citizens this week as they round out the last minute details for the spectacular Jungle ball to be staged Saturday evening at the Hotel Sherman for the support of the newly founded Chicago Artists' Equity.

The point is this. Artists will be admitted to the party for a dollar each while the cost to plain ordinary stags will be $3 apiece and to couples $5. As a result every one who has ever used a set of crayolas or painted a sunset on glass is expecting to get in for a dollar. The committee of advisers with Mrs. Harold C. Pynchon as the chairman is firm in its decision, however, that an artist is a person who has had an entry in a recognized exhibit. The rest of the guests Saturday night will pay $3, $5, or $50 if they want a box.

The ball is to be an experience unique in the city's social life. In the words of Vachel Lindsay, it will be "A roaring epic, rag-time tune from the mouth of the Congo to the Mountains of the Moon."

Swallowed by a hippopotamus [this at the entrance door] the guests will wander in a dark jungle where monsters will lear from behind twisted brush and savage warriors will pound relentlessly on primitive drums. Tarzans and native dancers themselves [no one will be admitted "sans" costume . . . for those who forget there will be African dress at the door] the hundreds expected will enter the spirit of the setting.

Further interest will be provided by way of the Sherman exhibition hall transformed for the occasion into a native African village with thatched roof huts. Witch doctors will dispense spells and dusky-hued dancers will wield white fans in jungle versions of the classic fan dance.

The highlight of the evening as far as entertainment is concerned, however, will come about midnight when the Ashantis . . . a tribe of Africans who came to America for the first time last summer to dance at A Century of Progress . . . . give an exhibition of their art. The dance they will do cannot be a duplicate of their ceremonies, however, for this begins at 4 o'clock in the morning and continues through dusk.

The Artists' Equity which benefits by the ball was formed last Sept. 24 on a broad and humanitarian basis. "It is a body of artists not connected with any other organization, yet including members of all of the others," explains Mrs. Pynchon.

"It was formed with the all inclusive purpose of protecting and promoting the interests of artists . . . to give them legal assistance in making contracts, to help them collect unpaid bills, to help increase their social prestige and safeguard them in cases of unjust criticism, unjust juries, and other misrepresentations. The Equity hopes to go further and establish an office where members will be able to arrange for medical, dental, and hospital care at a fair and reasonable price in exchange for their works of art.

"An artist, like a prophet, is without honor in his home town," Mrs. Pynchon continued yesterday. "The C. A. E. would like to rectify that mistake when it is made. We all know that art, by whomever created, must stand on its own merit in the final analysis. Take two paintings of equal importance, one by an artist from the east, the other from the brush of one of our own . . . . the C. A. E. feels that under such circumstances it is fair to ask the coöperation of the Art Institute in giving the Chicago artist first consideration."

The John Roots, the Wirt Mortons, and the George B. Woodruffs are some of those who will entertain at dinner before the ball Saturday night. Others who have taken boxes in the "jungle" include Vincent Bendix, Robert Harshe, Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Miss Bobette Boysen, Mrs. James Simpson, Mrs. William O. Goodman, Mrs. D. Mark Cummings, Mrs. George Rasmussen, Mrs. James R. Leavell, and Mrs. Charles H. Worcester.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Paul Warburg entertained at supper last night at the Waldorf-Astoria for Mr. and Mrs. Robert I. Powell.

Miss Elsie Celeste Hutton and her brother-in-law, the Rev. Canon Harold Ayde Prichard, have returned from Bermuda.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mason Day left to pass a month at the Boca Raton club, Boca Raton, Fla.

Mrs. Edward Dimon Bird and her sister, Miss Lynn Curtis of the Ritz Tower, started for Palm Beach.

Geral is utterly different from anything you have ever used on your hair. It is not a dye, bleach or henna—nor does it contain oil. Applied in a moment, it actually beautifies the hair as rouge, powder and lipstick beautify the face. Geral makes Blonde hair more blonde. Gives Red hair a redder glow. Enriches the color and sheen of Brown and Brunette hair. And causes White or Gray hair to lose that ugly yellowish cast. Geral imparts NOT an artificial look but the natural life, sheen and softness of youthful girlhood. Obtain Geral at all good toilet counters or drug stores.

STATE OFFERS 'LOVE LETTERS' OF RUTH DEAN

Hints at Poison Highball Death Motive.

Greenwood, Miss., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The state offered today for the first time a possible motive for the alleged poisoned whisky highball slaying of Dr. John Preston Kennedy, District Attorney Arthur Jordan presented "love letters," he said were exchanged between Kennedy and Dr. Sarah Ruth Dean, on trial for murder.

Jordan placed a stack of envelopes on the prosecution table and referred to them as "love letters," but they were merely identified by the witness on the stand, Dr. Henry Kennedy, as letters received at his brother's office.

Introduction of their contents was deferred when Henry said he could not identify the signatures—"Ruth"—as Dr. Dean's handwriting. The state then announced they would be "properly identified and introduced tomorrow."

Gives Out Last Letter.

Subsequently, Jordan handed out copies of one of the letters at the press table, explaining: "That's the last letter she sent. He never got it." It read:

"My dear, sorry I missed you last night. Please call me when you get this. Am planning to leave Sunday and I want to turn over something to you. Best wishes and love. Ruth."

The letter was dated July 27, 1933, the date on which the state charges Dr. Kennedy and Dr. Dean met after midnight to drink a "farewell."

During the day an attentive jury heard Henry Kennedy testify that Preston Kennedy, dying, told him and another brother: "Dr. Ruth Dean gave me a drink of whisky with poison in it."

Study Relations of Two.

With the dying declaration of the dead physician and a description of the ten days of violent illness preceding his death laid before the jury, the state suddenly swung into the matter of "the relations between Dr. Kennedy and Dr. Dean."

Touching for the first time on the subject, District Attorney Jordan asked Henry Kennedy:

"Did Dr. Kennedy have any close relations with any one named Dr. Ruth Dean other than the Ruth Dean who is the defendant here?"

"No, sir. Just this one," said the witness.

Q.—Dr. Dean officed in Dr. Kennedy's clinic?

A.—Yes.

Q.—What relations did you note between your brother and Dr. Dean?

A.—Friendly at first. After a few months I would notice their automobiles parked by the office late in the afternoons. Dr. Dean's and Preston's car.

Dr. Henry Kennedy recounted a 30 minute visit that Dr. Dean and Dr. Preston had in the clinic after their return one night from a medical meeting they attended together. The woman kept her usually unyielding eyes averted during this recital.

Garage Man Loses Court Fight for a City License

Superior Judge James J. Kelly yesterday denied Louis Michelson, owner of the White City garage, 6333 South Park avenue, a writ of mandamus to force the city to grant him a license for his garage and repair shop. Issuance of the writ was opposed by Assistant Corporation Counsel William V. Daley and Otto Weiner. They told the court that Michelson has been convicted six times for towing away wrecked automobiles without the consent of the owners and then charging them exorbitant rates.

ADMITS KILLING FORMER CIRCUS WOMAN OVER PAY

Confesses Placing Body in Shallow Grave.

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Following a quarrel with Miss Alice Martin over $2.75 she had withheld from his wages because of damage done to a wagon, Ernest Wright, a farmhand, clubbed her to death, he told authorities here today.

Chief of Detectives Bert Morris and Sheriff Clyde Hesmer said Wright admitted slaying his employer, a former vaudeville aerialist, after they told him fingerprints found on the club with which Miss Martin was slain were the same as his fingerprints, taken here today.

Miss Martin's body was found last Saturday in a shallow grave on her 150 acre farm in Perry county near the village of Derby. Her skull had been fractured and her throat slashed.

Search was begun for Wright, but he eluded officers until Monday morning. Taken to all at Cannelton Wright steadfastly denied killing Miss Martin. He was brought here last night when a crowd congregated around the Cannelton jail and threats were muttered.

In his statement to local officers Wright said that late on the night of Jan. 25 he confronted Miss Martin and demanded the $2.75.

Refusal of Miss Martin to give him the money angered him, he said, and he killed her. He told officers he was intoxicated. After the killing he said he buried the body and then spent the night at the farmhouse.

Miss Martin was buried this afternoon near Derby.

FARMER KILLED BY FALL.

Quincy, Ill., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—William Dunlap, a farmer, 34, was killed today when he either fell or stepped off the running board of a truck near Payson.

AIMEE S. M'PHERSON AS FILM STAR WALKS OUT; MUST PAY $5,900

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Judgment of $5,900 against Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton, evangelist, was awarded today to assignees of J. Roy Stewart, late motion picture director, because of her failure to carry out a contract he had with her to make a movie based on her life.

Superior Judge Leon R. Yankwich made the award for work Stewart did in preparing for the movie, "Clay in the Potter's Hands." An outline of the scenario was written by Harvey Gates, and Mrs. Hutton paid $11,000 for it after a court judgment.

Stewart sued for $240,000.

Judge Yankwich said, "Because of the absence of a releasing contract and because of the inexperience of the defendant as an actress, the venture was highly speculative, a gamble, with no assurance of success, and the profits illusory."

The action was tried on behalf of Mrs. Mable Stewart, widow of the plaintiff.

SUES PUBLISHER CHAS. T. POWNER FOR A DIVORCE

Mrs. Rubie Riddiford Powner, 38 years old, of the Edgewater Beach hotel, yesterday filed suit for divorce in the Superior court against Willard E. Powner, owner of the Charles T. Powner Publishing company at 621 Plymouth court. The bill alleged that Powner struck his wife with a lamp on Oct. 15, 1933, and kicked her on Oct. 18, the day of their separation.

Mrs. Powner also asked he custody of their daughter, Suzanne, 10 years old, and the return of $30,000 in bonds which she alleged she gave her husband. Powner has an income of $1,500 a month and has personal property worth $50,000, the bill says.

The Powners were married Dec. 8, 1921, after an elopement to Crown Point. Mrs. Powner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Riddiford of 2378 Grove avenue, Oak Park.

SLAYER CLAIMS RADIO PROGRAM DROVE HIM TO IT

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—From his bed in the psychopathic ward of the General hospital here, Clarence Walter blamed radio music for the outburst in which he killed one man and wounded another with a jackknife yesterday in a broadcasting room of station KHJ.

"All night long I listened to the radio in my home at Santa Ana," the 41 year old patient told physicians. "Finally the call came to me. I heard them play 'There's a Ring Around the Moon.' I knew they were asking me to come up and explain the ring around the moon."

The man, described by his brother, Frank Walter, as "quite crazy five years ago," stabbed to death Edwin Wolverton, 21, of Grand Junction, Colo., and seriously injured Warren Fehlman of Los Angeles, who tried to overpower him.

A sanity hearing is scheduled in Superior court tomorrow.

NOTRE DAME DEFEATS MINNESOTA, 43 TO 34

VANCE, VETERAN HURLER, BOUGHT BY CINCINNATI

Cards Sell Allen to Phillies.

New York, Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Officials of the Cincinnati Reds today announced the purchase from the St. Louis Cardinals of Arthur C. [Dazzy] Vance, veteran fast ball pitcher, as club owners of the National league assembled here to adopt the 1934 playing schedule.

At the same time the Phillies made public the acquisition of Ethan Allen, another 1933 Cardinal. Both deals were cash transactions and, while the Phils did not reveal the sum exchanged for Allen, it was reported that the Reds gave the Cards only $7,500, the waiver price, for Vance's services.

Allen, 30 year old outfielder, batted .241 for the Cardinals last season in 91 games. He has been in professional baseball for eight years.

Dazzy Was Good Then.

One of the most colorful pitchers ever in baseball, Vance, now 40 years old, once was the highest salaried pitcher in the National league, receiving $23,000 from the Brooklyn Dodgers. He was obtained by the Cardinals last year.

Jake Flowers, utility infielder, who has spent his big league career commuting between Brooklyn and St. Louis, was sold to the Buffalo club of the International league by the Dodgers.

Brooklyn's sale of Flowers was no surprise. It has been known for the last week that the weak hitting jack of all trades was on the block. After breaking in with the Cardinals in 1926 he was traded to the Dodgers the next year. He filled in as relief infielder for four years, but had his best season in 1930, when he hit .320 in 89 games.

Jake Can Run, Anyway.

He was traded to the Cards in 1931 and, after failing at the plate in the world series with the A.'s that year, was sent to Minneapolis of the American association. The Cards traded him to the Dodgers last year in the Vance-Slade deal and Jake did nothing to justify his retention. He always has been a good base runner, but an erratic fielder.

Bill McKechnie, Boston Braves pilot, denied emphatically that he had approached the Dodger management with trade overtures. He said he would like to strengthen his club and would waste little time in doing so if he didn't have to part with too much.

Powel Crosley Jr., millionaire who recently took over the presidency of the Cincinnati Reds, and Larry MacPhail, general manager who has made an effort to strengthen the club, also said they were anxious to consummate several deals.

Season Opens April 17.

For the first time in the history of the National league, which dates back to 1876, all eight clubs this year will receive an equal distribution of Saturday and Sunday dates.

The arrangement was made possible by the advent of Sunday baseball in Pennsylvania, which, for the first time, will enable the Pirates and the Phillies to play home games on that day. Each club in the circuit will play 12 Sundays at home, as well as 12 Saturdays.

The National league schedule for 1934, formally adopted today, provides for the following games on opening day, April 17:

Boston at Brooklyn.
Philadelphia at New York.
Chicago at Cincinnati.
Pittsburgh at St. Louis.

The four visiting clubs all will open their home seasons on April 24 against the same opposition they encountered on April 17.

Walker on Committee.

Judge Emil Fuchs of Boston, Charles A. Stoneham of New York, Sam Breadon of St. Louis, and William Walker of Chicago, were named on the National league's committee on interleague relations. The committee on the constitution is Stoneham, William E. Benswanger of Pittsburgh and Stephen W. McKeever of Brooklyn.

President Heydler, Breadon, and Jerry Nugent of Philadelphia were appointed to serve as the playing rules committee, and Judge Fuchs, Walker and Crosley were selected as the committee on telegraph and radio.

After the meeting the New York Giants were host to the visiting magnates at a victory dinner.

Set All-Star Game Date.

July 10 has been set aside for the all-star game with the American league and the owners expressing themselves as favoring a rotating plan of conducting it. As New York already has been chosen for the city, this means that the game next summer will be played at the Polo grounds, as last year it was held in Comiskey park, the American league park in Chicago.

The list of umpires appointed will see only one change in the staff which operated last season. Bill Stewart, well known as a referee in hocky circles, has been named to replace Ted McGrew. The other nine again will be Klem, Reardon, Stark, Pfirman, Magerkurth, Rigler, Quigley, Barr, and Moran.

The league also voted to renew its service bureau for publicity purposes and announced the engagement of Ford Frick, New York newspaper man, to take charge of the bureau on March 1. Free passes again are to be limited to 500 for each club, as has been the case the last two seasons, and radio also was left holding its present status, with each club determining for itself whether it wants to broadcast its games.

"I Took Baseball Too Seriously," Cobb Confesses

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 6.—(AP)—If Ty Cobb had his baseball career in front of him now, instead of behind him, he wouldn't be quite so "rough and tough" as he was in the days when he was the outfielding ace of the Detroit Tigers and one of the greatest players the game ever has known.

The Georgia Peach, now a resident of Atherton, near here, was reminiscing at a banquet welcoming Charles [Gabby] Street, former St. Louis Cardinal manager, to the Coast league as manager of the San Francisco Mission club.

"If I had it to do over again, I wouldn't take baseball so seriously," Cobb said. "In my playing days I was bearing down all the time. I guess I was pretty rough and tough. Looking back over the years, I believe I could have cut out a different path than I did.

"There were some mighty fine fellows playing in my days. We battled our way through baseball. It was a fight, tooth and nail. I could have cemented some wonderful friendships in those days with fellows who would be real friends today. I believe I made a mistake there. Baseball is a great game but there is such a thing as taking it too seriously."

Pa Stribling Is Through as Fight Manager

Ochlocknee, Ga., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Pa Stribling, the former circus acrobat whose longing for a career in the prize fight ring was realized through his son and then cut short by the latter's tragic death, quit the boxing business today. He announced from his farm here that he had given up his managerial contracts and would enter the lumber business in Charleston, S. C.

Four months ago his oldest son, Young Stribling, one time challenger for the world's heavyweight boxing championship, was killed in a highway accident. With him went Pa's love for the game.

"The fight game no longer holds interest for me since W. L.'s death," Pa said. "Early this year I decided to retire and to give up my managerial contracts with Jimmy Maloney, a heavyweight, and Clyde Chastian, a light heavy."

Teaches Youngsters to Box.

Into retirement with Pa also goes his other son, Herbert [Baby] Stribling, who fought with mediocre success as a welterweight.

Years ago, after seeing Sullivan and Jeffries and Corbett fight, the elder Stribling acquired an ambition to enter the game. His diminutive stature hindered him, but when his first son was born pa vowed he would make a fighter of him.

When W. L. and Herbert were youngsters the Striblings joined a vaudeville troupe as "The Four Grahams," did acrobatic stunts and ended their performances with a boxing bout between the boys. Later pa would issue a challenge for W. L. to meet any boy in the audience.

Begins Career As Fighter.

As W. L. reached his middle teens his professional career was launched, with pa as his manager and ma as his cook and trainer. This partnership lasted more than 15 years as W. L. fought all over the country and grew into a heavyweight. Pa arranged his fights and pa and ma always were behind his corner, shouting instructions and encouragement.

Stribling's star set after his defeat by Max Schmeling in the Cleveland championship fight. But pa always figured W. L. could beat most of the heavies and they planned future campaigns.

Boxing carried the Striblings to the far corners of the world and brought them a small fortune. They have extensive land holdings throughout the south in addition to the plantation here and homes in Macon.

Even the teeth come under rigid surveillance. Dr. Stoehr looks over Joe O'Connell, who expects to win a championship for the C. Y. O.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The New York Rangers increased their lead in the American division of the National Hocky league tonight by whipping the Montreal Canadiens, 3 to 0, before 11,000. The defeat dropped the Canadiens back into a tie for second place in the Canadian section with the Montreal Maroons.

The Rangers scored a goal in each period, mostly on speedy thrusts which took advantage of infrequent lapses in the Canadien defense.

Bunny Cook opened the scoring by sinking his own rebound in the third minute of the game. Murray Murdoch got the second period goal on Vic Ripley's pass across the rink and Ott Heller took the puck all the way down the rink in the third period to score his first goal at home this season.

The Canadiens pressed hard throughout, Andy Aitkenhead, New York goalie, having 45 stops, 21 of which came in the third period. Lineup:

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

ROGERS HORNSBY, while he hasn't said as much, apparently leans toward National league training for outfielders. . . . His two recruits, George Creonte Puccinelli and Raymond Watson Pepper, both have served with the St. Louis Cardinals. . . . Two other newcomers, Pitchers Ed Baecht and Buck Newsom, are former National leaguers. . . . Hornsby had not seen more than half a dozen American league games before he took over management of the Browns last season. . . . Bun and Bill Cook, who play together for the New York Rangers, work together for themselves, operating a huge wheat farm in Saskatchewan when they are not playing hocky. . . .

Bill Tilden is still an amateur at heart. . . . The Stadium wants him to play there in his next Chicago appearance, but he is afraid he would not be able to fill all those red seats. . . . He prefers a small hall jammed to the rafters to a big building only partly filled. . . . The Buffalo club of the International league played to more than 320,000 fans last season for one of the best gate records in the minor leagues. . . . Ray Schalk is manager of the Buffalo team. . . .

Col. E. R. Bradley's box at the Hialeah race track is the same which was occupied by Al Capone five years ago. . . . There's an outside chance that Frank Froschauer, Illinois basketball ace, at present ineligible, may clear up the subject in which he failed. . . . Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, who has been ill for several days with a throat infection, hopes to be able to attend the dinner for Elmer Layden at the C. A. A. tomorrow night.

Tom Walsh, professional at the Westgate Valley Country club and a leader in THE TRIBUNE Golf school, which will be called to order presently, is now on the night shift, the reason for same being Mary Esther Walsh, who arrived at the Little Company of Mary hospital a few weeks ago. . . . Contrary to popular impression, athletics and brains do mix. . . . Semester marks at Wisconsin show Robert Knake, basketball center; Karl Ockerhauser, swimmer, and Willis Parrott, freshman full back, had straight A's in their courses, the highest possible scholastic average. . . . Rolf Poser and Gil McDonald, basketball players, were close behind with several A's and the rest B's. . . . Parrott made 51 grade points, the highest record ever acquired by a freshman athlete. . . .

Mule Haas, White Sox outfielder, is sailing from New York to Los Angeles, where he will join the training camp late this month. . . . Barney Ross will be hard to sue. . . . When asked by John Harrington, W-G-N sports announcer, about his favorite movie stars, the lightweight champion named two males. . . . Asked if he had any choice among the gals, he closed up like a clam. . . . Andy Frain's ushers are no respecters of persons unless that person has a ticket for his seat. . . . Charley Bidwill dropped down to the ringside at the Stadium the other night and squatted in a vacant chair. . . . Along came an usher and asked for his stub. . . . Bidwill didn't have it. . . . He was forced to leave. . . . The seat belonged to Judge Bernard Barasa. . . . Mr. Bidwill, if you don't know, is president of the Stadium Operating company. . . .

Among the survivors of the Lusitania disaster was William Doherty, two months old. . . . He and his mother were rescued on the last lifeboat lowered. . . . Young Doherty is now a freshman at Temple university and his ambition is to become a major league catcher. . . . His preference is the White Sox, he recently told Mule Haas. . . . Dixie Flaeger, who was a Northwestern football hero in 1903, operates a salmon canning factory in Oregon. . . . The Big Ten has just adopted a rule prohibiting conference teams, varsity or freshmen, from playing alumni teams. . . .

George Melinkovich, full back, and Dick Pfefferle, tackle, on the 1932 eleven, have returned to Notre Dame. . . . Melinkovich left school because of a serious infection which caused him to lose 30 pounds. . . . Pfefferle had a shoulder injury which necessitated an operation last summer. . . . George Phair and Jimmy Powers, New York sports writers, were one time track stars at Marquette university. . . .

Ten years ago today—The American league decided to give its most valuable player a diploma every season. . . . Babe Ruth signed with the New York Yankees for three years at $52,000 a year. . . . The testimony of the crooked world's series was read in court during Joe Jackson's suit against the White Sox. . . .

KRAUSE SETS SCORING MARK WITH 22 POINTS

Roscoe of Gophers Makes 16.

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Capt. Ed [Moose] Krause, established an all time Notre Dame scoring record by making 22 points to lead in a 43 to 34 victory over Minnesota here tonight. The game marked the 25th victory in 27 starts and the 16th consecutive home triumph for Notre Dame. It was also Notre Dame's fifth victory of the season over a Big Ten team.

George Roscoe, Gopher forward, exhibited a dazzling display of one-handed shots from all angles and distances—even shooting his free throws with his right hand—to score 16 points.

Some Accurate Shots.

Krause was fouled by George Svendsen in sinking his first basket, and he added the free throw. Thereafter he made several one hand hook shots after pivoting, one a completely blind shot over his head, three long shots, two out of five free throws and he capped everything by dribbling nearly the length of the floor to drop the ball in while the 5,000 assembled fans gave him one of the greatest cheers ever received by a Notre Dame star.

He was removed from the game with six minutes still remaining to play, or his record might have been still greater.

Gordon Norman, who is leading the Big Ten with 74 points scored in eight games, an average of more than nine points a game, scored seven points for Minnesota, making three of them on free throws.

Peters Makes Ten Points.

Marty Peters, lanky Irish sophomore forward, made ten points, all of them coming in the second half. He played only a few minutes of the first period.

It was only the brilliant work of Krause which enabled Notre Dame to command a lead of 23 to 17 at the half.

The Irish took an 8 to 2 lead early in the game. Roscoe whittled it down to 8 to 7, however, with two field goals and a free throw. Norman and Krause exchanged baskets and Notre Dame led 10 to 9. Johnny Jordan, Irish forward, made a free throw, but Norman tied the score at 11-all with a short one handed shot.

Jim Baker's short basket on a fast break gave Minnesota the lead for the second time of the evening.

Score Is Tied.

Krause dropped a one hand shot after pivoting to tie the count at 13 all. Jordan's follow up shot just before Peters replaced him started the Notre Dame avalanche of points. George Ireland added a long shot and Krause made six more points before the half ended.

Minnesota showed the effects of playing its third game in four nights and Notre Dame kept the ball zipping at a fast pace to run the count up to 40 to 25 at one point, despite the efforts of Roscoe to keep the tired Gophers in the running.

Greencastle, Ind., Feb. 6.—[Special.]—Evansville college avenged an early season defeat tonight by whipping De Pauw, 31 to 21.

De Pauw overcame an early Evansville advantage to hold a 13 to 12 lead at half time. Hickman and Townsend starred for De Pauw, while Riggs, McGlothlin, and McCutchan shared scoring honors for Evansville. In a preliminary game the De Pauw freshmen lost to State Normal freshmen of Terre Haute, 37 to 22.

DE PAUL WINS OVER ST. LOUIS FIVE, 39 TO 33

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The tall De Paul basketball team from Chicago beat St. Louis university, 39 to 33, here tonight. Charley Dirksen, St. Louis forward, scored 18 points, but his mates were not in a hitting mood. Adams and Weston led the De Paul attack with 11 and 10 points, respectively.

BROWNING MAY WRESTLE FEB. 21 IN STADIUM SHOW

Refuses to Sign Until Opponent Is Named.

Jim Browning, recognized as heavyweight wrestling champion by the New York Athletic commission, yesterday tentatively agreed to head the wrestling show at the Chicago Stadium Feb. 21. Browning informed Stadium officials that he is available, but he will sign only after the opponent under consideration is approved by him.

Browning also stated that he must be billed as champion despite the Illinois athletic commission's recognition of Jim Londos as titleholder. Joe Foley, Stadium official, believes that this can be accomplished to the satisfaction of Browning and the commission.

The new arrangement shoves the contemplated match between Joe Savoldi and Everett Marshall or Joe Stecher out of the picture. The Stadium announced, however, that if the commission allows Savoldi to use his drop kick he will appear in a supporting number.

Vince Dundee, middleweight champion, will arrive Sunday for his 10 round nontitle bout with Ben Jeby of New York at the Stadium Feb. 16. Jeby is due Monday.

Frank Sigilio, west side lightweight, sparred four rounds yesterday against two partners for his six round feature bout at Cicero stadium Friday night. Sigilio, who is undefeated as a professional, went two rounds with Hugh Allen, a featherweight, and two with Johnny Terry, welterweight. Against Terry, Sigilio opened up with both hands to the head and body throughout the workout. Ruby Allen replaces Marie La Plante against Nell Donald in a wrestling exhibition.

Two supporting contests on the Eddie Ward-Johnny Terry card Friday at Rainbo Fronton were arranged yesterday. Tod Kelly meets Al Schiarato and Sam Adams collides with Chuck Roberts at four rounds. Johnny Liston, south side middleweight, will appear in the five round semi-final. His opponent has not been selected.

Jackie Ausborn, Birmingham, Ala., welterweight, will oppose a suitable opponent at Marigold Gardens Monday. . . . Young Geno, La Salle, Ill., featherweight, drilled at Coulon's gymnasium yesterday for an eight round encounter with Jackie Sharkey Monday at Midway arena . . . Moss Brawner, heavyweight, has resumed training after an illness of three months.

Davey Day, local lightweight, and his co-manager, Sam Pian, left last night for Kansas City, Mo., where Day boxes on the junior welterweight title card headed by Barney Ross and Pete Nebo tonight. From Kansas City Ross, Day, Pian and Art Winch are to leave for San Francisco, Cal., where Barney clashes with Frank Klick, junior lightweight titleholder, on March 5. The group will not return until April.

Two changes were made yesterday in the interclub amateur boxing tournament between the Belle Plaine Athletic club and Northwest gymnasium at St. Hilary's auditorium, California and Bryn Mawr avenues, tomorrow night. The revised card follows:

118 pounds—John Katzmarek, Northwest gymnasium, vs. Bob Iverson, Belle Plaine.

126 pounds—George Sames, Northwest gymnasium, vs. Edward Hellstrom, Belle Plaine.

135 pounds—Frank Lobach, Northwest gymnasium, vs. Howard McConnell, Belle Plaine.

147 pounds—John Saborowski, Northwest gymnasium, vs. John Piovanitch, Belle Plaine.

160 pounds—Paul Stewart, Northwest gymnasium, vs. Jack Coleman, Belle Plaine.

175 pounds—Levi Pierson, Northwest gymnasium, vs. Chris Schussler, Belle Plaine.

Heavyweight—Eldon Butler, Northwest gymnasium, vs. Nick Podlewski, Belle Plaine.

Eight amateur matches will be held tonight at Presentation auditorium, Springfield and Lexington avenues. . . . Two other amatuer shows are scheduled Friday, one at the Elmhurst C. Y. O. center and the other at St. Augustine gymnasium, 50th and Bishop streets. F. M.

Winning Ping-Pong

BY COLEMAN CLARK.
[National Champion 1932.]

[This is the ninth of a series of articles on how to play ping-pong.]

THE FLICK SHOT.

THE flick shot is a dandy to have in your bag. To some it comes naturally; others plug away at it for some time before it clicks.

The shot is lightning fast, and is made with a quick flick of the wrist. You have all shot playing cards into a hat. That's the action you want. It is always made on the backhand. There is no sweep to the stroke, it is all over in the flash of an eye. Note in the illustration the shortened follow through.

This shot is a corker because the suddenness of it gives the enemy no clue as to where you will place it. He is often flabbergasted. Make sure to meet the ball on the rising bounce, that is, before the ball has reached its maximum height. Be sure to turn the wrist over after you have struck the ball. Master this shot. It will give you a dangerous offensive weapon.

Tomorrow—spin on the ball.

Florida Race Commission Clears Ray

Miami, Fla., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The Florida racing commission today upheld its suspensions of Edward Haughton, Kentucky trainer, and Harry Cooper of Vancouver, B. C., but absolved Nat Ray, one time famous steeplechase rider, of any irregularity in the running of his horses.

The commission, by amendment to its rules, broadened its ban against stimulating or doping horses, but laid down definite provisions by which a horse needing medication could be withdrawn from a race.

Ray States Case.

Ray was suspended by the stewards of Hialeah Park last week after the track's chemist reported traces of a stimulant in the saliva taken from Kiltamond, a Ray trained horse, after the race.

The commissioners were told by Ray and others that the stimulating chemical was minutely contained in a tonic given Kiltamond and that there was no intention of "doping."

A representative of the firm compounding the tonic testified the product is used by numerous stock farms and that its chief purpose was to eliminate digestive disorders.

Face Federal Charge.

Haughton was ruled off by the commission two weeks ago when the commission's chemist reported traces of a stimulant in saliva taken from the horse Making Bubbles after a race at Tropical Park.

Cooper was debarred after federal agents reported they found a quantity of an alleged narcotic in his home. He is at liberty under bond in state and federal narcotic cases.

FREISINGER WINS 440 SKATE FINAL IN INDOOR MEET

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 6.—(AP)—Speed skaters from the United States and Canada faced the starter's gun in the North American indoor speed skating meet tonight.

Leo Freisinger of Chicago, star of the recent western meet at Chicago, won the intermediate 440 yard final in 44 3-5 seconds.

Herb Flack of Toronto won the first senior men's final, skating the 220 yards in 20 3-5 seconds to beat out Trunab Connell and Lamar Ottsen, both of Chicago, in that order.

Ottsen, the Chicago entry, came back to win the mile in 3:22 1-5, beating Darmstadt and Joe Bree of Brooklyn.

E. Yates of Toronto won the junior boys' 440 yard final in 47 3-5 seconds with A. Parmentier of Detroit second.

Flack made it two in a row in the men's senior division as he defeated Ray Darmstadt of Astoria, N. Y., and Edwin Stundl of Chicago in the 880 yard final. The Canadian star was clocked in 1:25 3-5.

Mancuso Has Typhoid, but It's a Mild Case

Houston, Tex., Feb. 6.—(AP)—The physician attending Gus Mancuso, first string catcher for the world's champion New York Giants, said today Mancusco had typhoid fever. The physician said, however, the disease appeared to be of a mild form and that Mancusco should be able to report for training some time next month, unless complications developed.

Tricks Help Beginner in Skeet Shoot

BY BOB BECKER.

The marksman who goes out the first time to try his skill at skeet will find it extremely worthwhile to take advice on how to stand, hold the gun, etc. There are a lot of tricks in this comparatively new phase of trapshooting which the average hunter or upland game shooter can pick up at the start if he will listen to the advice of an experienced gunner.

We saw an example of this the other day at the Knollwood Country club on the north shore. Two very good field shots who never had fired at a skeet target came up to the firing line. Inasmuch as the rules of the game require the shooter to keep the butt of his gun below the elbow the beginners were self-conscious about their position, and also didn't hold their guns in a way that enabled them to get them to their shoulders with a minimum of effort.

Coaching Boosts Score.

After shooting a rather small score on the first round the result of some friendly coaching was evident in subsequent scores.

One of the common mistakes is to stand in such a position that one faces the number one trap instead of the spot where the clay pigeon is going to be broken. The other day a very good skeet shot on the north shore made this correction in stance for several inexperienced shooters. It is an important thing to remember.

When we were on the firing line in a shootoff for a cup we developed a "complex" which possibly may bother other skeet shooters. We would pick up the bird flying out of the high tower very quickly, follow through in a natural manner, but then deliberated too long on how much the bird was falling, etc. It was fatal to a good score. The "unofficial coach" on the sides lines caught this fault at once.

Here's Another Fault.

In shooting doubles calling for quick snap shooting without any time for figuring, we had no trouble with the high tower targets. The point was that in doubles we followed through and pulled the trigger in a natural manner.

On singles we tried to draw diagrams and project right angles and what not to make sure of our bird. From a 21x 25 in a first round [shot without any arithmetic in the trigger pulling] our delayed timing pulled us down to an 18x25 in a shootoff, a score which taught us a lesson.

RUTH, 40 TODAY, SAYS "WHAT OF IT?" NO PARTY

Babe Joins Graybeards of Sport Still Champ.

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Babe Ruth enters his 40th year tomorrow and joins Big Bill Tilden, the Hon. Michael Scott, MacDonald Smith, and others in a gallant company of athletic graybeards who still give youngsters a run.

All past their prime, as athletes go, they still can muster the fire on occasion and raise their games to championship heights.

It is distinguished company in which baseball's great man finds himself. Tilden, at 41, is the national professional indoor champion; Scott, 55 year old descendant of the Scotch Bard, is the British amateur golf titleholder; Mac Smith, golf's master stylist at 43, is leading the winter golf parade in medal score and money won.

There Are Others.

Only slightly behind that quartet, with Ruth the highest paid player in baseball, are a host of other distinguished competitors near 40 or over that age. There are Walter Hagen, Max Marston, and Francis Ouimet in golf, R. Norris Williams in tennis, Clarence De Mar, Pat MacDonald, and Matt McGrath in track and field, and an even dozen others on major league battlefields.

Those still in the big leagues are mostly pitchers with Ruth, Edmund John [Bing] Miller of the Athletics, Walter James Vincent [Rabbit] Maranville of the Boston Braves, Miguel Gonzales of the Cardinals, and Joe Judge of the Boston Red Sox, the notable exceptions. Miller and Ruth are outfielders, Maranville a second baseman, Judge a first baseman and Gonzales a catcher.

Rarin' to Go.

The pitchers are Urban [Red] Faber of Chicago White Sox, 45; Burleigh Grimes, St. Louis Cardinals, 40; Jesse Haines, Cardinals, 40; Sad Sam Jones, Chicago White Sox, 41; Adolfo Luque, New York Giants, 43; Herb Pennock, Boston Red Sox, 40 on Feb. 19; Eppa Rixey, Cincinnati Reds, 42, and Arthur [Dazzy] Vance, Cincinnati Reds, 40.

Ruth himself attached very little importance to the 40th milestone in his life. Today, almost completely recovered from his recent illness, he was bustling around on affairs of business, preparing for his departure Thursday for St. Petersburg, Fla., and the start of training for his 21st big league campaign. He hadn't even thought about a party, leaving that for Mrs. Ruth to arrange. There was going to be no high jinks to celebrate this occasion if he had his way about it.

His reaction to the momentous event was characteristic:

"Sure, tomorrow's my birthday. What about it?"

HAWK REGULARS READY FOR GAME WITH RED WINGS

After yesterday afternoon's practice at the Stadium, Manager Tommy Gorman announced that the regular Blackhawks are ready to appear against the Detroit Red Wings in Thursday's hocky game at the Stadium.

With Jack Leswick back at his center position between Johnny Sheppard and Leroy Goldsworthy, the third line which had started to click when Leswick was taken ill is expected to resume its form as an attacking force which will give the Hawks not only a line with a scoring punch, but one that, by its back checking ability, can break up many a scoring threat of the opposition.

The steady improvement shown by the ailing Lionel Conacher was also pleasing to Gorman, who expects the big fellow to be in shape to take his full time on the defense line in Thursday's important game against Detroit. Second place in the U. S. division is the prize to the winner of the game. But one point, or half a game, is all that separates the two.

Carnera is to appear before Referee Peter B. Olney tomorrow in a continuation of the proceedings resulting from his filing of a bankruptcy petition last June.

Goldstein and Smith Earn Titles in J. O. Y. Tourney

BY FRENCH LANE.

Champions were crowned in the open division of the Jewish Organized Youth's first annual amateur boxing tournament last night.

Meet the champs. Here they are:

112 Pounds—Morey Cornick, Jewish People's Institute.
118 Pounds—Dave Schimmel, Jewish People's Institute.
126 Pounds—Irving Goldstein, Trafton's gymnasium.
135 Pounds—Harold Brown, Jewish People's Institute.
147 Pounds—Sid Greenberg, Jewish People's Institute.
160 Pounds—Sid Rosen, Hakoah.
175 Pounds—Joe Lubin, unattached.
Heavyweight—Harry Smith, West Parks.

The 1,200 spectators who for the second time in two nights packed every inch of space in the Jewish People's Institute gymnasium roared out a mighty cheer for every champion.

Cheer Goldstein and Smith.

For Irving Goldstein, the featherweight champ, and Harry Smith, a sandy haired slugger who captured the heavyweight title, the crowd fairly lifted the roof off the gymnasium.

To win his title Goldstein, who was a runnerup in THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves Intercity team last year, had to come out victorious in two vicious scraps.

First he whipped Sammy Kaplan, also a former member of the Golden Gloves team. This was a whirlwind affair and when Kaplan opened up a cut over Goldstein's left eye in the second round it looked like he might grab the decision.

Handicapped by Cut.

The cut handicapped Goldstein in the early part of the last round. Then he cut loose with a brilliant rally, peppered Kaplan with rights and lefts and had him groggy just as the bell tapped to end the struggle.

Goldstein's foe in the championship scrap was Ben Hauser. Again the cut over the left eye bothered him in the first round. Hauser had the shade. In the second stanza Goldstein went on another rampage. He had Hauser down twice, the bell saving him the second time he was tumbled over.

Hauser wasn't able to come out for the third round so Goldstein won on a technical knockout. He's going to be a hard fellow to beat in the Golden Gloves tournament and so is the heavyweight Smith.

Wins Twenty Straight.

The latter is a big raw-boned 200 pounder and the match in which he won the championship was the twentieth of his ring career. It was also his twentieth straight triumph. Fourteen of his opponents have been floored for the count. He is an usher in a west side movie theater.

The big fellow can deal a damaging blow with either hand and he shifts with such skill that his rival heavyweights could hardly lay a hand on him.

All the J. O. Y. champions and runnersup will rest for a couple of days then go back into hard training for their battles in THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves tournament. Their admirers on the west side are confident they stand an excellent chance to carry away the Tournament of Champions team trophy.

The J. O. Y. tournament will wind up tomorrow night when the semi-finals and championship matches will be held in the novice division.

Final Physical Exams Tonight for Golden Gloves

Final physical examinations for Golden Gloves candidates will be held tonight at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. All boys who receive letters of instructions to report tonight must be present between the hours of 6:30 and 8:30 o'clock. In addition any other boxers who received letters to report on other nights and have not been examined will get their last opportunity tonight.

After tonight's examinations, which will qualify boys for the four Chicago sectional tournaments, the program for the west sectional tournament next Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday at the 132d Regiment armory, Rockwell and Madison streets, will be drawn up.

One hundred and twenty-one representatives of the Catholic Youth Organization reported last night at C. Y. O. center for their examinations. Nine were rejected by the physicians.

The Rev. Louis F. Kroeck, general director, announced the C. Y. O. championship personnel which will compete in the Tournament of Champions at the Chicago Stadium Feb. 26, 27, and 28 as follows:

112 pounds—Henry Fuscaldo.
118 pounds—Frank Schultz.
126 pounds—Andy Scrivani.
135 pounds—Phil Kenneally.
147 pounds—Bob La Monte.
160 pounds—Charles Wozniak.
175 pounds—Ray Wozniak.
Heavyweight—John Logan.

Henry Fuscaldo, runner-up to Frank Schultz in the flyweight class in the recent C. Y. O. tourney, is making his third attempt to win a diamond studded Golden Glove. In 1932 he was eliminated in the preliminary rounds at White City and last year he was defeated in the Tournament of Champions at the Stadium.

Nestor Bruggman, welterweight, passed the physical requirements. Bruggman, who is 20 years of age, finished second in the C. Y. O. tournament. He whipped his Los Angeles opponent in the intersectional matches at Los Angeles last month.

Probably the most promising of the local amateurs is Packey Rodak, 18 year old brother of Leo Rodak, who won flyweight, bantamweight, and featherweight Golden Gloves crowns. Though he has engaged in only five bouts, in four of which he was victorious, Packey is in the open flyweight division. He is a former Bowen High school student.

Barney Ryan, 20 year old lightweight, believes his luck is due for a change. He lost in the semi-finals of the C. Y. O. tournament to Johnny Barbara and more recently Phil Kenneally was awarded a decision over him in the finals of the Illinois Athletic club championships.

Al Soukup, 1932 Golden Gloves flyweight titleholder, will try for the featherweight crown this year. Soukup, who is 19 years old, is a student at the Chicago Art academy, 18 South Michigan avenue.

John Logan, C. Y. O. heavyweight champion, has engaged in 48 matches. He lost 10. One of these losses was suffered in last year's Golden Gloves tournament when he was eliminated in the preliminary rounds. Logan is employed at the United Wall Paper Factories, Inc., Fillmore and Spaulding streets.

Charles and Ray Wozniak, 21 year old twins from Villa Park, are confident that one or both of them will earn a championship. Both were eliminated in the 1932 Golden Gloves tryouts as middleweights. They tried again in 1933 and Charles was beaten in the quarter-finals by William Treest after Ray had conceded victory to Charles. This year Charles will be in the middleweight ranks and Ray in the light heavyweight.

Kurt Bartz, six foot and eight inch heavyweight, is getting in condition for the tournament by wheeling concrete at Proviso High school.

Central A.A.U. Track Meet on March 16

The Central A. A. U. indoor track and field championship meet will be held Friday night, March 16, in the University of Chicago fieldhouse, Racine Thompson, chairman of the track and field committee, announced yesterday. The meet is one of three which will be held that week-end as part of a track program at the University of Chicago.

Two open four men relays, one for 1,600 meters and the other for 3,200 meters, will feature the meet. Although being held for the first time, it already is indicated that there will be keen competition in these two events. Many of the teams which have entered the Armour relay games the following day, Saturday, March 17, will compete.

In addition to the special events there will be 11 championship events, including the 60 meter dash, 300 meter run, 600 meter run, 1,000 meter run, 3,000 meter run, 1,500 meter walk, 65 meter high hurdles, running broad jump, high jump, 16 pound shot put, and pole vault.

Blue Ribbons and Baby Ruths Resume Play

Winners of the first half, the Baby Ruths, meet a rejuvenated Blue Ribbon team at the Coliseum tomorrow night in an Amateur Hocky association game. The game marks resumption of association play after a two week recess necessitated by the automobile show.

The Blue Ribbons have just returned from an undefeated ten day trip in Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin. The Baby Ruths have had a prolonged rest, encountering only the Chicago Blackhawks in a short scrimmage during the vacation.

HOPPE DEFEATS THURNBLAD IN 44 INNING GAME

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—Willie Hoppe, opening a bid for the only billiard title he has never won, tonight defeated Arthur Thurnblad of Chicago, holder of the title in 1931, 50 to 28, in the world's three cushion tournament.

In a brilliant display of billiards that stamped him the man to beat, Hoppe set forth in quest of Welker Cochran's crown with an exhibition seldom seen in tournament play. He ran out in 44 innings, the second shortest game of the meet.

Hoppe Clicks Off Eight.

Thurnblad attempted to match the old master's consistent play, but after Hoppe had put together a high run of eight in the ninth inning, the Chicago player found himself fighting an uphill battle.

Keeping pace with Hoppe was Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., who has held the title ten times and beaten the former balk line champion in the latter's two previous bids for the three cushion honors. Layton defeated Kinrey Matsuyama, diminutive Japanese star, 50 to 49, in 63 innings. Matsuyama had a high run of eight, while Layton's best was six.

Hall, Denton Win.

Tiff Denton of Kansas City, winner in 1923, and Allen Hall, 33 year old Chicago star, also won their opening matches.

Denton turned back another former titleholder, Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, 50 to 33, while Hall, with more consistency than brilliancy, defeated Augie Kieckhefer, also of Chicago and champion two years ago, 50 to 41. Both games were 59 innings.

DETROIT BANKER REVEALS APPEAL TO HOOVER IN '31

Hazy on Details of Plea at Senate Inquiry.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Detroit bankers sensed as early as 1931 that the financial skies were darkening, and did everything in their power to strengthen their own, as well as the banking lines of the country generally, Wilson W. Mills, who was chairman of the board of the Wayne First National bank of Detroit, told the banking and currency committee today.

He discussed correspondence with high public officials, among them President Hoover, the purpose of which was to hasten federal legislation to strengthen the national banking structure.

Mr. Mills, under date of Oct. 17, 1931, wrote to President Hoover suggesting federal action, the exact nature of which, he declared, he was unable to recall at this time. Mr. Mills told the committee that so far as he knew, there was no copy of the letter in his files. President Hoover's reply to the letter, however, was found in the files of the First National and a photostatic copy of it placed in the record by Ferdinand Pecora, counsel for the committee.

Denies Political Contributions.

Mills was the only witness today. He was shown a photostat of a memorandum which was sent him by Joseph M. Dodge, a vice president and director of the First National, in which it was suggested the bank make a contribution of $500 to the Democratic party. The memorandum, which referred to state politics only, said there were several matters to which the money could be applied and named the state banking commission, the chief of the state constabulary, and the state highway department.

The suggestion Mr. Mills said, came to Mr. Dodge from a subordinate and that for some reason, perhaps a "joke," Mr. Dodge sent it to him.

"I know nothing about it whatever, except that not a nickel was paid," said Mr. Mills.

The name of the Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin was drawn into the inquiry. A memorandum alleged to have been sent Jan. 3, 1933, to Mills by Donald N. Sweeney, another officer of the bank, saying the priest's discourses were "sufficient to incite a bank run" was read by Pecora.

Score Coughlin Utterances.

On questioning by Pecora Mills said he had heard the earlier testimony of Edward D. Stair, Detroit publisher, formerly head of the Detroit Trust company, that the First National bank would not have closed had it not been for the "unfortunate publicity through the radio priest," but when Pecora asked if he was referring to Coughlin the witness said icily:

"Better ask Mr. Stair."

The memorandum said Father Coughlin's discourses showed a "growing tendency to radicalism" and that he was speaking before audiences "incapable of drawing differentiations." This, it said, was particularly true in distinguishing between "bankers" and "international bankers."

Pecora disclosed today he expects to have complete data to present to the committee about loans to judges by the First National bank of Detroit.

He already has introduced an exhibit he said was obtained from books of the bank introduced near the close of the past year, showing loans totaling $639,631 to 43 judges. He did not, however, read the names of any of them into the record.

PAY 15% FEB. 13 ON DEFAULTED SANITARY ISSUE

The sanitary district will pay $424,350 in defaulted principal on bonds Feb. 13, prorated among bondholders, it was announced yesterday by Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee. The sum represents a 15 per cent payment of total obligations of $2,829,000 in bonds defaulted during the period between Jan. 1 and June 1, 1932.

Cash was obtained from the tax collections of 1930 and prior years. After Feb. 13 the district will have outstanding principal obligations totaling $14,856,650 with delinquent interest payments amounting to $3,347,391.

Trustee Woodhull pointed out although the money could be held until enough funds were on hand to retire the bonds in full, the district will save in interest payments with the partial payment of the principal.

BONDS OF WEST PARKS WILL BE OFFERED TODAY

The west park board today will offer $19,650,000 in new 20-year refunding and funding bonds to be exchanged for the district's outstanding bonds in its program to clean up the obligations left behind by the former administration. The announcement was made by the A. C. Allyn & Co., investment house at 100 West Monroe street, which is acting as financial agent for the park commissioners.

The refunding bonds will be applied as follows: $12,450,000 exchanged on a par basis for outstanding bonds and accrued interest; $5,900,000 for funding accrued interest, back pay, vendors' claims, interfund borrowings and income due the employés' pension fund, and $1,300,000 to retire 1929 tax anticipation warrants.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In reporting the recent lease of the Liggett store, at the northwest corner of State and Monroe, by the Edison Brothers Shoe company of St. Louis, to be occupied by "Burt's Shoes," the name of the broker was inadvertently omitted. The deal was negotiated by M. J. Siedenbach of Heymann & Bro., 215 Broad street, Philadelphia.

Return of Capital Brings Threat of Credit Inflation

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Apprehension over the prospects of a gigantic credit inflation in the United States as a result of the accelerating repatriation of American capital from abroad and the inflow of foreign capital is being expressed in financial quarters.

The fears of wild currency inflation have been assuaged in part by the revaluation of the dollar at the new 59.6 cent figure. Revaluation and temporary stabilization, however, of itself is creating a situation which will lead to a huge inflation of credit—the type of inflation which was seen in 1928 and 1929.

Foreigners Invest in U. S.

Banks report that the current foreign demand for American securities is the biggest seen in years. One banker estimated that between 2 and 3 billions of capital held by foreign nationals is awaiting investment here. In addition there is another 2 to 3 billions of fugitive American capital which fled prior to the desertion of the gold standard and subsequently through purchase of foreign securities.

There is no question as to the demand from the foreigners, bankers declare. This attraction of American securities is caused in part by developments abroad such as the critical political situation in France and in other nations which have given indications that they would place restrictions on the export of capital. This coupled with the promise of stabilization here is bringing an influx. The same causes are bringing American capital home.

Return Flow Slower.

Repatriation of American capital is not taking place as rapidly as it went out, however. The amount of United States capital which has returned to this country since the President's monetary message over two weeks ago is variously estimated between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000.

In the three months ending with November last year it is estimated that $375,000,000 of American capital sought refuge in England alone. It is evident that a great deal of this is still to come back.

The danger in the situation, it is pointed out, rests in the mobility of such capital. If a big expansion of credit develops and stock prices rise sharply the resulting situation will be the same as that faced by this country from 1929 on.

Fleeing Capital Upsets Markets.

Foreign capital was hastily withdrawn. It took no time at all to convert American securities into gold or its equivalent, and the run on America seriously upset financial markets and eventually led to the desertion of the gold standard. A similar crisis is almost inevitable if the present prospective credit inflation develops, it is asserted by bankers.

Even the action of the New York reserve bank in cutting its rediscount rate is not likely to discourage the return of capital, it is asserted. Traditionally such an action means that foreign capital will seek more profitable fields, but in the present situation it will fall of this result, bankers believe.

LARD HIGHER ON PROSPECT OF CUT IN COTTON OUTPUT

Prospects of a drastic curtailment in cotton production resulting in a smaller output of cottonseed oil and influencing the demand for lard brought in good buying of the latter yesterday. The close was 10 to 12½ cents higher.

Cash trade was fair, with regular lard quoted at $6.02½; loose, $5.32½, and leaf, $5.37½, all gaining 12½ cents for the day.

Dry salted clear bellies were unchanged to 5 cents higher on futures, and cash lots were firm at $7.25.

Liverpool lard was unchanged on spot and 6 pence higher on most futures. Prices:

BUTTER, EGG AND POTATO FUTURES HIT NEW HIGHS

Butter, egg, and potato futures advanced to new highs for the season on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday. Butter closed ½@¾c higher, while eggs were up ½@½c. Potatoes closed lower to 2c higher.

February and March butter opened firm, but held quietly until the last hour, when a sudden wave of buying set in and the markets quickly started gaining. Withdrawals from storage totaled 1,300,000 pounds more than last year.

Fresh egg receipts continued to increase. Total arrivals in Chicago and New York exceeded last year by only a relatively few cases, however, and storage holdings have been reduced far below the total on hand a year ago. The egg deliveries benefited largely by the bullish movement in butter.

April potatoes sold at a new peak of $2.72, but moderate pressure caused a decline in March. While receipts were light, truck supplies were heavy and the cash market quiet.

Sales: Butter, 126 cars; eggs, 31 cars; potatoes, 7 cars. Prices:

SILVER FUTURES

Silver futures advanced nearly ½c per ounce in the early trading in New York yesterday. The report that government agents were investigating holdings of bar silver and futures resulted in rumors the administration was planning increased use of the metal for currency. The upturn, however, was not fully maintained, due to profit taking, and the finish was .10 to .29c higher. Sales aggregated 5,825,000 ounces. Foreign bar silver was ½c higher at 44½c and new domestic unchanged at 64½c. February closed at 44.35c; March, 44.50c; May, 45c; July, 45.45@45.55c, and September, 46.04c.

RUSH OF BUYING CARRIES COTTON TO SEASON'S HIGH

Cotton had the highest finish of the season yesterday owing to a general rush of buying from all quarters, induced by favorable action of the senate agricultural committee on the Bankhead bill for compulsory control of production.

There was a lull in trading around mid-day, but in the last hour buying carried prices up to new high levels and the close was around the top.

There were net gains of 19 to 24 points on futures in Chicago, and 17 to 25 points in other markets, New York leading. Spot cotton in New York jumped 20 points to 12.15 cents, New Orleans 15 points to 11.95 cents, Houston and Galveston each 20 points to 11.85 cents. Prices:

WRECK ANOTHER LOOP STRUCTURE DUE TO TAXATION

Medinah Building Owners Plan Small Edifice.

BY AL CHASE.

Mounting taxes have sounded taps for another big and well known loop office building. Isaac Mayer, of the law firm of Mayer, Meyer, Austrian & Platt, and also a trustee of the Levy Mayer estate, owner of the fourteen story Medinah building, at the northeast corner of Jackson and Wells, announced yesterday that on April 1 wreckers will start tearing down the building.

All of the brick, stone, concrete and tile work from roof to street level will be removed but all of the steel frame of the first and second floors will be left and on this a modern, fireproof two story "taxpayer" is to be erected. At present the fourteen story structure's income fails even to pay the taxes.

Hope to Show Profit.

According to George S. Lurie, of the George S. Lurie company, renting managers of the property, it is expected that the new two story "taxpayer" will live up to its name and in addition to paying all of the property's taxes, perhaps even show a slight profit.

Ever increasing taxes forced the owner of the building a year ago to break all office building precedents and take a radical step in building operation. Tenants in the twelve upper floors were notified to move. Heat, elevator service and all conveniences were shut off on those floors and the building virtually was made into a two story structure.

It was hoped that this would temporarily solve the tax problem by theoretically making a fourteen story building into a two story "taxpayer." But the owner had to continue to pay taxes on a fourteen story building and the age of the building prevented securing high rentals in the two floors utilized.

Tenants Notified to Move.

Isaac H. Mayer then decided to make the theoretical two story "taxpayer" into a real one. Tenants have been notified to be out of the building by March 31. Wreckers will start the next day to raze the structure.

The Medinah Temple building, as it was first called, was erected in 1893 by the Medinah Temple company, which leased the four upper floors to "the Medinah Temple of the Ancient Arabic Order of Nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Chicago." Later the Shriners outgrew their quarters and the present Medinah temple, at North Wabash and Ohio, was erected.

The late Levy Mayer, brother of Isaac Mayer, purchased the leasehold and building in 1905. The property fronts 114 feet on Jackson and 110 on Wells. V. J. Coakley, of the estate of David Mayer, will be associated with Mr. Lurie in renting the new two story structure.

GOODYEAR-SEARS DEALS ASSAILED BY TIRE DEALERS

Independent tires dealers testified yesterday before the federal trade commission that mail order competition had ruined their business. The commission is investigating charges that contracts between Sears, Roebuck & Co. and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company tended to build a monopoly in the trade.

Patrick E. Walsh, now a proprietor of a gasoline filling station, who had been in the tire business for eight years up to 1929, testified: "I would need a 25 per cent margin to permit me to sell tires profitably. I found I couldn't meet the Sears price on Goodyear made tires. So in 1929 I loaded all my tires on a truck and took them back to the factory.

Ray Corkill declared that mail order competition had been inimical to his business. "All the old tire dealers who were in business when I started are out of business now," he said.

That other factors—for example the sale of tires by gasoline and oil stations—had also been prejudicial to the independent tire retailers was the position that attorneys for Goodyear Tire and Rubber company tried to establish.

Straus Safety Deposit Co. Debts Put at $15,260,920

Schedules in bankruptcy filed yesterday in the United States District court showed that debts of the Straus Safety Deposit company, owner of the skyscraper at Jackson boulevard and Michigan avenue, amounted to $15,260,920. The assets are $21,243,953, of which twenty million consists of real estate. Of the liabilities, $9,181,799 is secured by real estate and other collateral, including a first mortgage on the building.

DOLLAR DIPS AS FRENCH PLEDGE FAITH IN GOLD

Exchange Markets Reverse Trend.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 6.—Assurance by Edouard Daladier, the French premier, that the French government would continue to defend the gold standard caused a swift turnabout in the exchange markets today that lifted the franc 12 points and restored almost all its loss of yesterday.

In consequence, the gold value of the dollar as computed from francs suddenly slumped 1.20 cents to 62.09 cents, or only one-tenth of a cent above its closing price on Saturday.

The franc, after closing here at 6.19 last night, following a decline of 14 points, soared in the trading abroad and opened here at 6.34 cents, up 15 points. It fluctuated nervously around that level and closed at 6.31. This was a discount of 4.8 per cent from the new gold parity set by the American revaluation of gold compared with a discount of 7.06 per cent yesterday.

Pound Rises Four Cents.

The pound rose nearly 4 cents to close at $4.97. Other currencies moved along with the franc and pound. The Canadian dollar was 3-16 of a cent to 99 3-16 cents, the Dutch florin was 1.24 cents higher at 64.5 cents, the German mark moved up .69 of a cent to 38 cents, and the Swiss franc gained .59 of a cent to 31.07 cents.

The premier's statement evidently stopped the speculative bear drive against the franc and restored French confidence in the ability of the franc to stick to the gold standard.

This eased, if it did not check the flow of French funds out of Paris to London and New York, and thereby greatly relieved the strain on the Bank of France.

Believe Franc Supported.

Belief among foreign exchange dealers that official support was being accorded the franc was supported by the daily gold report of the Federal Reserve bank, which revealed two transactions reducing the amount of gold held under earmark here for foreign account. One of these, amounting to $8,735,900, did not affect monetary gold stock and must, therefore, have consisted of another "swamp" by the treasury of gold held abroad in return for gold earmarked here.

The other, amounting to $4,543,100, increased monetary gold stocks by that amount, which indicated that it represented gold which had been just sold at the new price of $35 an ounce. This was the first important sale of earmarked gold to the Federal Reserve bank since before the suspension of the gold standard here last year.

During the eleven months that the United States was off gold foreign central banks could not sell their holdings of earmarked gold to the reserve bank at the statutory price of $20.67 without taking a heavy loss, due to the depreciation of the dollar, but, now that the reserve banks are authorized to buy foreign gold at $35 an ounce, no loss is involved.

Today's two releases of gold from earmark lowered the total amount of gold under earmark here for foreign account to $59,525,606.

GOLD BUYING ON WANE

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 6.—There were distinct signs in the city of London today of the first symptom of gold indigestion in America. The dollar fell and the pound touched $5 for a few minutes before a moderate reaction.

Another factor in the gold market is that all accommodation for gold on ships until the end of February has been booked, and American speculators will not buy future gold for fear that Roosevelt may change his mind and the price before the gold is shipped. The insurance companies have also advanced the rate on the insurance of gold from 1 shilling [currently 25 cents] to 2 shilling 6 pence [currently 62½ cents] per hundred pounds, which takes some profit out of shipping gold.

Gold Price Declines.

In all these adverse circumstances the price of gold declined 9 pence to 139 shillings 3 pence per ounce, equivalent to $34.60 with sterling exchange at $4.97. Offerings of gold totaled £1,200,000 [approximately $6,000,000], part of which was gold lured from hoarders' hiding places by the high price.

Today's developments were too late, however, to check the gold rush from the continent. Ten air liners landed at Croydon bringing $25,000,000 in gold from Paris and Amsterdam, all of which is eventually going to America.

How rapidly the situation changes is shown by the fact that the ship Manhattan, which is arriving tomorrow, carries $8,500,000 worth of gold from the federal reserve to the Bank of England. This was shipped while the advance in price was still on the side of Great Britain. It will probably be sent right back again if steamer space is available.

Inflationsts in Position to Reap Benefits

Examination of financial statements of companies having officials prominently identified with the "Committee for the Nation to Rebuild Prices and Purchasing Power" discloses the benefits which may accrue to these concerns from inflation. The committee has been carrying on a campaign since its organization in January, 1933, on behalf of inflation which it sees as an instrument to offset the effects of the depression.

This activity has been opposed by interests identified with "sound money" groups, including many business leaders and economists.

In a recent article in these columns the sharp rise which has occurred in the common stocks of a number of companies having officials who are members of the Committee for the Nation was pointed out. Advances of some of the shares were startling, giving evidence that the campaign for inflation has been highly profitable.

Inflation "Benefits" Varied.

There are a number of ways in which inflation can help individuals or companies. It may result in a marked increase in the market price of common shares, giving the owners a chance to hedge against reduced purchasing power of the dollar. Such a situation would help companies whose prosperity is based largely on speculative activity.

Inflation may benefit companies with heavy bonded debts and fixed charges, and stipulated obligations on preferred stocks enabling them to pay off debts incurred in dear dollars with depreciated currency. It may benefit companies having large inventories by raising the market prices of inventories. It may benefit companies having dealings with customers especially likely to benefit from inflation.

While these groups are profiting, advocates of sound money point out that persons who have been able to save something—in bank accounts, insurance or other forms—have a part of their wealth confiscated by inflation because of the depreciated purchasing power of their belongings when converted into currency.

List Leading Members.

Following are the names of a number of individuals identified with the Committee for the Nation whose companies figured in the recent article on the movement of common stocks: John Henry Hammond, chairman, Bangor and Aroostook railway; Vincent Bendix, president, Bendix Aviation corporation; George W. Borg, chairman, Borg Warner corporation; E. L. Cord, president, Cord corporation; E. L. Norton, chairman, Freeport-Texas corporation; Max Epstein, General American Transportation corporation; Frederic H. Frazier, chairman, General Baking company.

Also William J. McAneeny, president, Hudson Motor Car company; M. B. Nelson, president, Long Bell Lumber corporation; J. H. Rand Jr., president, Remington-Rand, Inc.; Lessing J. Rosenwald and Gen. Robert E. Wood, chairman and president, respectively, of Sears, Roebuck & Co.; F. L. Innes, president, Spiegel-May-Stern company, and Philip K. Wrigley, president, the William Wrigley Jr. company.

Possibilities Revealed.

Examination of the financial statements of the companies in which the above group are interested shows the possibility for immediate profit under inflation.

Bangor & Aroostook: Funded debt of $17,356,000 and in addition must meet stipulated charges on $3,480,000 of $7 cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value. Inflation would simplify problem of meeting fixed charges.

Bendix Aviation: No funded debt. As of Dec. 31, 1932 had 2,097,663 shares of stock outstanding. Price of common advanced from $7.62½ March 2, 1933 to $23 Feb. 1, 1934. Net investment in land, buildings, machinery and equipment as of Dec. 31, 1932

CO-OPERATE TO AVOID CONTROL, NRA CHIEF ADVISES MERCHANTS

A plea to NRA members and code authorities for more effective cooperation to prevent the necessity of government control of business was voiced by Dr. Kenneth Dameron, deputy administrator of the National Recovery administration and of the retail trade code yesterday. He addressed the interstate merchants' council and some 1,600 buyers at luncheon at the Hotel Sherman as part of the 25th semi-annual convention now in session.

Dr. Dameron pictured the steadily rising tide of business in anticipation of spring buying throughout the country, indicated by the rush of business reported by Chicago wholesale houses since the convention opened Monday.

"The increased purchasing power resulting from the New Deal measures in Washington has increased the retail business of this country from 12 to 48 per cent over last year," he declared. "The code has eliminated unfair competition, various forms of trade discounts, unreliable advertising, special rebates, etc. I don't believe you are willing that the government should step in and run your business, so I urge that every one take an active part in seeing that the retail code is carried out."

The Chicago Association of Commerce, sponsor of the retail group and the four scheduled style shows, reports an expected attendance of 12,000 buyers and merchants, representing the United States and Canada.

WEIRTON STEEL PREPARES TEST OF LABOR ORDER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—The Weirton Steel company is preparing to make a court test of President Roosevelt's executive order, issued last Thursday, governing a method of procedure by the national labor board for determining spokesmen for collective bargaining, it was reported here today.

The issue will be joined later in the week when agents of the national labor board who were in Pittsburgh today confer with Ernest T. Weir, head of the Weirton company. The meeting today between Milton Handler, general counsel of the national labor board, and James F. Dewey, labor agents of the board, was inconclusive, it was announced this evening. The board, through its representatives, asked for access to the pay rolls so that a check of employes might be made. Earl Reed, counsel for the company, postponed a decision until the return to Pittsburgh of Mr. Weir.

The company in the meantime is reported to be preparing papers in an injunction suit to test the right of the national labor board to go to employes and ascertain their sentiment without complying with the terms that will be sought to be imposed by the company.

COSTS MAY FORCE U. S. TO MAKE OWN CEMENT—ICKES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington D. C., Feb. 6.—The present high cost of cement may drive the federal government into the cement industry, Secretary Ickes, who is also the public works administrator, said today in revealing that complaints from the government and private industry had been turned over to the federal trade commission for investigation.

One of the reasons for delay in the public works program, Mr. Ickes declared, had been the price of cement.

"If we didn't have to pay more for cement than it is worth, think how much further along public works and public works employment would be," he added. "We could make it down in the Tennessee valley. It would be a very good project for a subsistence homestead. Personally, I would be in favor of it."

The cement code forbids the establishment of new plants. Secretary Ickes said he did not believe the code would apply to government manufacture, however.

January Sales of Chain Firms Rise Sharply

Business of two large chain store organizations was maintained during January at a substantial margin over last year, according to reports issued yesterday.

Sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. for January amounted to $14,733,847, showing a gain of 45.88 per cent over sales for the same month in 1933, which totaled $10,100,149.

The improvement in rural purchasing power increased mail order business by 80.67 per cent over that for January, 1933. Retail sales were 20.81 per cent greater than in the like month last year.

Year's Sales Up 10.90 Per Cent.

A gain of 10.90 per cent was established in sales for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1934, which totaled $197,553,940 in comparison with $178,141,334 for the preceding year.

Walgreen company's volume last month was $4,302,113, or 17.4 per cent in excess of the total of $3,664,964 in January, 1933. In December sales were $5,310,693, or 29.3 per cent more than in December, 1932.

On Jan. 31, 1934, there were 477 stores in operation in comparison with 473 on the same date of 1933.

Peoples Drug Volume Gains.

Sales volume of Peoples Drug Stores for January was $1,322,137, representing a gain of 0.8 per cent over the total of $1,310,613 in January, 1933.

Sales of G. C. Murphy & Co. in January amounted to $1,554,500, compared with $1,129,575 in the same month a year ago, an increase of more than 37 per cent. Sales in December were more than 25 per cent higher than in December, 1932.

On the other hand sales of Dominion Stores, Ltd., for the four weeks ended Jan. 27 decreased 1.8 per cent to $1,373,111 from the volume of the like period in 1933.

January volume of the first fourteen chain and mail order companies to report totaled $88,801,171, against $88,228,210 in the same month last year.

RESERVE CHIEF RAPS RFC HEAD; DEFENDS BANKS

Private Capital Need of Trade—Black.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Declaring that private capital has always been and must continue to be the backbone of American business, Gov. Eugene R. Black, head of the federal reserve board, today took sharp issue with Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, who said yesterday that unless banks increase their loans the government must step in and do the lending.

Reserve board officials, led by Gov. Black, were quick to spring to the defense of banks and to point out today that they had discovered no great number of deserving borrowers who were unable to get accommodations from banks. Gov. Black cited figures compiled by the New York Federal Reserve bank which tended to show that most of the would-be borrowers who complained to the reserve bank of their inability to get bank loans were seeking funds for purposes that made them ineligible for commercial loans.

Reserve Banks Not Invoked.

The federal reserve banks, which were authorized in 1932 to make direct loans to any deserving borrower who had been turned down by commercial banks, have not experienced any increase in such applications, Gov. Black said.

He pointed to the experience of the New York reserve bank to show that those applications which have been received were largely ineligible for commercial loans. The New York reserve bank has received more than 1,200 requests for direct loans on the grounds that the applicants could not get loans from private banks.

Investigation showed that almost all of these requests were for mortgage or capital loans, requests which are outside the field of commercial banking, reserve board records show. After inquiry the New York bank found that only 14 of the 1,200 applications were eligible and acceptable lending risks.

Opposes Another Federal Agency.

Asked if he thought there should be some federal agency to make the capital and mortgage loans which seem to be so badly needed or to discount them after private institutions have made them, Gov. Black said decidedly not. He said that the government's invasion of the credit field had already gone far enough. Private credit and not government credit must be the mainstay of American business, Gov. Black said, stressing the fact that private credit has carried the burden in the past.

Chairman Jones, speaking before a New York meeting of bankers last night repeated a threat which he made before the American Bankers' association convention last summer. He declared that the only alternative to larger private loans was an expansion of government loans. Such an expansion would gradually squeeze private banking out of the picture, and eventuality openly regarded by Raymond Moley, former braintruster, and other New Dealers as inevitable.

CONSUMERS CO. SHOWS $876,622 LOSS FOR 1933

The Consumers company yesterday reported consolidated net loss of $876,622 for the year ended Dec. 31, 1933, in comparison with a loss of $931,892 in 1932. After a net profit on the retirement of first mortgage bonds and after adjustment of depreciation and depletion, surplus showed a deficit of $2,168,272 on Dec. 31, 1933.

Sales for 1933 were $11,612,814, or 6.3 per cent less than those of 1932. The decline was smallest in the last four years. Falling off in material sales accounted for 78.5 per cent of the total reduction in sales, according to the report. Hope that the trend in sales might be reversed is found in increased building permits last month.

In the last quarter of 1933 sales of ice and building materials exceeded those for the like quarter of the preceding year for the first time since 1929. The improvement has continued through January.

Grain Code to Force Heavy Margins from Big Traders

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—A prohibitive margin requirement, designed to prevent the accumulation of excessive individual lines, will be included in the revised grain exchange code being drawn up by the agricultural adjustment administration, it was learned today. The code, according to reports, also will contain a prohibition against trading in indemnities, or "puts" and "calls." AAA experts regard this type of trading as unnecessary to the conduct of the grain futures business.

The exchange code, according to Chester C. Davis, federal farm administrator, is nearing completion and should be ready for announcement within a fortnight. Thus far, he said, major differences between the government and the exchanges have been ironed out.

Maximum Margin 25 Per Cent.

The definite margin requirements to be included in the code, it was said, are 10 per cent of the open market price on futures contracts held by an individual, up to 2,000,000 bushels. On all lines over that total, the margin requirement will be 25 per cent.

AAA officials believe the 25 per cent requirement will virtually prohibit the acquisition of individual holdings beyond two million bushels.

The farm administration has blamed the long lines held by a prominent Chicago speculator for the sudden slump in commodity futures last summer and believes that the 25 per cent requirement will prevent a recurrence of that situation without imposing a definite restriction on lines.

Delay Imposing High Margin.

In order that traders with excessive lines at the present time will not unload their holdings immediately when the 25 per cent margin requirement is announced, the grain code will prove for a "waiting" period during which the virtually prohibitive percentage will not be effective. AAA officials were fearful, it was said, that the imposition of the 25 per cent requirement suddenly, would precipitate a serious market crash.

Under the code, daily fluctuation limits of five cents on wheat, four cents on corn, and 3 cents on oats, will remain effective, subject to removal or alteration by the secretary of agriculture.

Motor Vehicle Sales Put at 1,739,633 Units in 1933

PACKERS AGREE TO CHECK OF BOOKS BY AAA

Yield After Long Fight Over Code.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 6.—Culminating months of heated negotiation and bitter feeling, the Agricultural Adjustment administration and the packers came tonight to a virtual agreement on general terms of a federal marketing agreement for the packing industry.

Technical details of the code were being worked out by experts of the AAA in coöperation with a committee of packers headed by Thomas Wilson, head of the Wilson Packing company of Chicago. As soon as the final draft has been whipped into shape satisfactory to both sides, it will be taken to Chicago for approval of the industry. Barring last minute complications, it was understood, the packers' committee will leave Washington with the completed tentative code tomorrow.

U. S. May Inspect Books.

Agreement between the government and the industry, it was learned, followed the submission of the packers to the insistence of AAA officials that

The Commissioners, pursuant to legislative authority, have authorized the issuance of $19,650,000 of Refunding and Funding Bonds, which will be offered to the present bondholders and creditors in the following manner:

Refinancing Plan

(1) $12,450,000—20-year Refunding 4%, 4¼%, 4½%, 4¾% and 5% Bonds, to be dated July 1, 1933, and to mature July 1, 1953, without option of redemption prior to maturity. These bonds will be exchanged par for par, for the present outstanding bonds. The holder will receive in exchange for his bond a new Refunding Bond bearing the same rate of interest. All unpaid interest accrued up to July 1, 1933 upon all bonds of the West Chicago Park Commissioners will be funded by the issuance of

(2) $1,025,000—20-year Funding 4% Bonds, Series "A", to be dated July 1, 1933, and to mature July 1, 1953. These bonds will be redeemable on any interest date by lot after due notice, at par and accrued interest.

(3) $625,000—20-year Funding 4% Bonds, Series "A", to be dated February 1, 1934, and to mature February 1, 1954, to pay accounts due for supplies, materials and merchandise up to July 1, 1933. These bonds will be redeemable on any interest date by lot after due notice, at par and accrued interest.

(4) $2,400,000—20-year Funding 4½% Bonds, Series "A", to be dated February 1, 1934, and to mature February 1, 1954, to pay salaries and pay-rolls of employes to and including February 28, 1933. These bonds will be redeemable on any interest date by lot after due notice, at par and accrued interest.

(5) $1,850,000—20-year Funding 4% and 4½% Bonds, Series "A", ($425,000 will be 4½% bonds) to be dated February 1, 1934, and to mature February 1, 1954, to pay inter-fund borrowings from the Public Benefit, Special Assessment, and Additional Land Funds, and to pay Park Employes' Annuity and Benefit Fund and the Park Policemen's Annuity and Benefit Fund, for monies due said funds. These bonds will be redeemable on any interest date by lot after due notice, at par and accrued interest.

(6) $1,300,000—20-year Funding 4½% Bonds, Series "B", to be dated February 1, 1934, and to mature February 1, 1954, to pay principal and interest to February 1, 1934, on outstanding tax warrants issued in anticipation of the collection of taxes levied for the year 1929. These bonds will be redeemable on any interest date by lot after due notice, at par and accrued interest. Before these bonds are delivered it will be necessary to obtain a decision from the Illinois Supreme Court that bonds may be issued for such purpose.

Methods of Exchange

All exchanges of Refunding and Funding Bonds for bonds, coupons, and other evidences of indebtedness will be made at the Administration Building of the West Chicago Park Commissioners, Garfield Park, Chicago, Illinois, or at the offices of A. C. Allyn and Company, 100 West Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois when such Refunding and Funding Bonds have been prepared and are signed and ready for delivery.

The holder presenting a bond will receive in exchange a Refunding Bond of the same denomination and bearing the same rate of interest. All unpaid interest on the bonds refunded accrued up to July 1, 1933 will be exchanged as nearly as may be practicable, in multiples of $100, for 20-year Funding Bonds, Series "A", bearing interest at 4% and redeemable on any interest date.

All other evidences of indebtedness which have been duly audited and allowed by the West Chicago Park Commissioners, including warrants, vendors' claims or salaries and wages of employes, will be exchanged as nearly as may be practicable, in multiples of $100, for 20-year Funding Bonds, Series "A" or Series "B", bearing interest at 4% or 4½% and redeemable on any interest date.

General Information

This plan, in addition to recognizing the full obligation to bondholders and other creditors, is preeminently fair to the taxpayers because it contemplates no increase in taxes.

Bond and Interest Levy of the District even during the past four years has averaged approximately $1,660,000, of which about 70 per cent, or an average of $1,162,000, has been collected each year. The interest requirements on the $19,650,000 plus the $2,000,000 Revolving Fund Bonds presently to be outstanding will amount to $959,067.50. It is apparent, therefore, that sufficient funds will be available to meet all interest requirements each year and provide substantial sums for sinking fund.

All these Bonds are exempt from all Federal Income Taxes. Legality of all the Bonds to be approved by Messrs. Chapman and Cutler, Chicago, Illinois. A. C. Allyn and Company, for and on behalf of the West Chicago Park Commissioners (having been employed for that purpose) hereby offer to exchange new bonds for outstanding bonds and claims in accordance with the foregoing plan. A circular giving details of the plan and further information may be obtained from

New York, Feb. 6.—Buying enthusiasm was not quite as much in evidence in the listed bond market today as it has been during the last few days. THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average of forty domestic corporation bonds was lower for the first time in eight trading days.

The turnover in the listed market as a whole was $26,123,000, compared with the 12 year record total of the day before of $30,689,000. Today domestic corporation bonds accounted for $20,312,000 as against the record figure of $24,038,000 on the previous day.

Losses Generally Moderate.

In the irregularly-lower trend in the corporation issues, few active issues lost more than a point or two. Indeed, a number of issues were bid up more than a point, notably several utility issues. In the industrial group, obligations of the Paramount Publix group were particularly strong as a result of the favorable decision of the United States Supreme court on the question of leased properties.

United States government long term bonds were generally lower in quiet trading. Final prices for this group were down 8-32ds to up 2-32ds point. The turnover was $1,447,500.

Foreign Issues Recover.

Many leading foreign loans staged mild recoveries today as all leading exchange rates rallied against the dollar. French government 7½s rallied 5 points and the 7s half a point. Dutch East Indies loans finished up 2⅞ to down a point on the day. German loans drifted irregularly lower and Austrian and Swiss issues mounted. Latin American bonds showed rather wide irregularities.

Curb bonds were active and slightly lower in the domestic group and somewhat higher in the foreign group. In the former group, utility bonds generally showed more interest than did the industrials.

NEW ISSUE.

A $2,500,000 issue of West Virginia bonds maturing $125,000 annually June 1, 1934-1953, inclusive, is being offered by the First National bank, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Bancamerica-Blair corporation, Salomon Bros. & Hutzler, and Phelps, Fenn & Co.

General Cigar.

Investors' Guide: Thank you for information you have given me in the past. It has been very useful to an inexperienced investor. Please send information on General Cigar common. Is the stock high grade?—B. F. W.

Answer: General Cigar company is one of the leading American cigar manufacturers, producing about 14 per cent of domestic output. Gradual reductions in prices of its leaders during the last four years to offset reduced purchasing power of consumers and shift in public taste from cigars to cigarets has enabled the company to maintain its leadership.

Increasingly keen competition in low priced cigars had an adverse effect on profits in 1933. In the third quarter net loss, after a million dollar inventory writedown, was $243,000. Net income for the first nine months was $198,000, but general improvement in conditions enabled the company to increase this substantially in the fourth quarter.

The four year record of earnings follows:

	Net income.	Inc. per pfd. shr.	Inc. per com. shr.
1933	$ 722,000	$14.43	$ .79
1932	2,088,000	41.17	3.61
1931	2,721,000	54.41	5.01
1930	3,202,000	64.03	6.03

On Dec. 31, 1933, current assets, including cash assets of about $7,500,000, totaled $23,037,000, against current liabilities of $842,000. There was no funded debt. Capitalization consists of 50,000 shares of 7 per cent $100 par cumulative preferred and 472,982 shares of no par common. The common has paid regular dividends of $1 a quarter since 1927.

The outlook is clouded by increased cost of tobacco, due to the processing tax, continued competition of cigaret manufacturers and higher production costs as a result of the NRA. The industry has adopted the policy of cigaret producers, concentrated production and concentrated intensive advertising of one product. Increased use of machinery has cut production costs. Rise in consumer purchasing power should be of substantial benefit.

The preferred deserves a fairly high rating. The common is medium grade.

Bank Practice.

Investors' Guide: What is the custom practiced by banks in loaning money as to the date of payment of interest? Is interest payable when the loan is made or at the expiration of the loan?—G. W.

Answer: It is the custom of banks to collect interest on the loans they make at the time the loan matures; otherwise the borrower would never have received the full amount of his loan.

STOCKS ZIGZAG; PROFIT TAKING OFFSETS BUYING

Utility Group Is Strong; Rail Issues Weak.

New York, Feb. 6.—Between recurring waves of profit taking brought on by yesterday's upturn and growing concern over the new bill offered in congress for stock exchange control, the share market had a difficult time keeping up appearances today. Most trading favorites and groups alike spent the session very largely sloshing around with selling about equal to new buying.

A flurry of speculation for the rise in the utilities and a scattering of low priced stocks of various description in the late trading had a bracing effect on the whole list and the final gong found the market generally pointing irregularly higher. Net changes ranged from losses of 2 or 3 points in some of the rails and specialties to gains of 1 or 2 points in various other departments.

Liquor and Rail Issues Sold.

Liquor and carrier shares attracted the brunt of the day's selling, most of which was to secure profits on the late advance. A number of merchandising stocks, including Austin Nichols and McLellan, shared honors in the late afternoon buying movement with the power and light group. In the last named section buying was generously apportioned, with some of the cheaper descriptions vying strongly for the limelight.

One of the biggest trades of the day in point of volume was a sale of 90,000 shares of Commonwealth and Southern at a fractional advance, reputedly on order of a prominent stock exchange member. Gains of 1 to nearly 3 points were made by American Water Works, Public Service of New Jersey, Consolidated Gas, Electric Power and Light, Peoples Gas, North American, and others.

Silver Stocks Ease from Top.

There was an early flurry of buying in silver stocks as a result of attention focused on that group by the government inquiry into silver holdings, but the move failed to hold and the group finished only fractionally above its previous levels.

Some of the demand for low priced store stocks was predicated on the Supreme court decision on rent claims in the case of bankrupts, which was regarded as perhaps opening the way for an early lifting of receiverships in the field.

Communication shares provided another bright spot in the day's dealings. Western Union and Postal rose 1½ points or so each.

Disappointment over the Socony-Vacuum dividend weighed on the oils and the group closed lower. Likewise payment of only the regular dividend on General Motors brought some speculative disappointment to bear on the motors in view of recent hopes of another extra for the corporation.

The turnover was around 4,359,000 shares, as compared with 4,946,000 yesterday.

HOGS REACH NEW WINTER PEAKS IN MODERATE TRADE

Cattle Trend Is Mixed; Lambs Decline.

Sharp improvement was registered in the Chicago hog market yesterday as prices at most leading outside centers resumed their advance. The Federal Surplus Relief corporation called off more of its buyers as prices here soared to new winter high marks, but this failed to halt the rise.

Receipts were far below average for this time of the year and not quite up to the day's limited demand. Hogs weighing 240 pounds and under sold under brisk competition at a 25 to 35-cent advance, in places gaining as much as 40 cents over the low spot of the preceding session.

Medium and heavy "house" hogs were slower on the rise, but there was a good clearance before the close for 250 to 400 pound averages at a 15 to 25-cent advance. Top 180 to 200 pound averages sold freely at $4.65, mostly on federal account, making the highest February mark in three years. The top at the high point of February, 1933, was $4.15 and two years ago the highest sale for this month was $4.35.

Most Local Interests Idle.

While enough small city butcher buyers who deal mostly in fresh pork created good competition for the starvation receipts left after federal buyers had taken their quota, practically all major local interests remained almost idle because of the sensational rise in costs including the processing tax. Some did not buy a hog for the regular commercial trade, working entirely on hogs bought for the relief corporation.

The advance in costs of hogs in 12 days amounts to $1.65 in top grades, packers complain. On Jan. 25 top grades were selling at $3.50 on the market. The $1.00 tax at that time made the cost to the packer $4.50 per cwt. Yesterday's peak was $4.65, and the $1.50 tax rate now being levied makes these grades figure $6.15 to the packer. A year ago yesterday packers were paying $4.00 for tops.

Cattle Trend Is Mixed.

A two way market existed for cattle yesterday. Light and medium weights of choice quality were strong to a little higher, but big weights weakened off right at the start and closed very draggy, off 10 to 15 cents. Lower grades of cows bought for canning by the relief corporation, were strong to 15 cents higher. Plain quality light lambs and heifers also showed strength.

Veal calves were fully steady. Steers averaging 1,052 pounds topped the market at $7.25, but very little of the supply here yesterday was of the quality and weight to sell above the $6.50 line. The bulk of all steers of beef merit cashed within a range of $4.25 to $6.50. A number of extra heavy steers ranged down to $4.00 and under. Late Monday a load of 1,904-pound steers cashed at $3.85.

Packers put up a bearish front in the lamb market and forced prices down 25 to 35 cents, ending one of the most spectacular advances in many months. City butchers bought wooled stock late at $9.45, with the packer top stopping at $9.35. Aged sheep continued to rise, however. A few old ewes averaging 135 pounds reached $5.00, the highest for this class since May, 1931.
